School Okays Expense Budget Of $8.1 Million

Tentative budget for the 1981-82 school year — showing a deficit of income under expenditures of $301,452 — was approved by the Thief River Falls board of education at its meeting Monday evening in the school district service center. The deficit will be balanced by the use of the general operating fund balance. Income of $7,771,599 and expense of $8,099,414 are anticipated for the coming year.

Because salary negotiations with faculty and union employees are still underway and limited provision for increases have been extended in the budget projections, it was pointed out at the meeting that salary settlements which exceed the budgeted expenditures would also need to be taken from the fund balance.

Plaques were presented to Kenneth Murphy for his 12 years of service to education as a member of the Thief River Falls school board, and to Dr. William Corliss for his 10 years of service as superintendent. Murphy, who was defeated in the past school board election, completed his final term Tuesday. Dr. Corliss is being succeeded by Robert Block as superintendent effective today. Murphy will be replaced on the board by Arnt Aune.

Approval was given to expenditure of up to $7,000 for siding and insulating of the St. Hilaire school gymnasium. Labor is to be supplied under the CETA program with supervision by the district's buildings and grounds supervisor.

Membership in the Minnesota high school league was approved for another year. The name of board member Harry Sjulson was approved for submission as a candidate for service on the Northwest regional development commission.

Hired by the district were Paul Anderson and David Wandschneider, summer announcers for the AVTI radio station; Diane Rothschadl, summer cosmetology instructor; Dian Johnson, summer school special education management aide; Yvonne Gonsorowski, vocational rehabilitation secretary-counselor aide; and Patricia Larson, part-time vocal music at St. Hilaire.

Transfers approved included the following: Vern Treat from fourth grade at Washington elementary school to vocational programs counselor at the AVTI; Ruth Klosterman from Title I reading at Northrop to second grade at Washington; Sharon Stauss, from half-time Title I reading at St. Bernard's to half-time English at Franklin middle school; Kathryn Trickle, from half-time Title I at Franklin to half-time English at Franklin; and Ed Duke from farm operations and management instructor to science instructor at Lincoln.

Resignation was accepted from Jerel Melhouse, warehouse clerk and audio visual repairman. A one-year leave of absence without pay extension was granted to bus driver Wendell Tiegland and permanent employment was authorized for Delmer Rux, custodian.

TAKING ADVANTAGE of a day or two of sunshine, area farmers are hurrying to put up an abundant first cutting of hay. Rainfall has contributed to lush growth of alfalfa but the rain nearly every day has made it difficult to get the hay dry enough to bale for storage. Helping her dad (Duane Vatsaas) with his haying yesterday was Mrs. Jean Bach, who described the hay condition as "tough" and was having difficulty with knots slipping on the bales. Small grain crops were also advancing rapidly in the area with many headed out and current prospects for an abundant harvest good.

10-Ton Routes Designated In NW Minnesota

Additional seasonal 10-ton routes have been designated throughout Minnesota on trunk highways, county state-aid highways and municipal streets by commissioner Richard P. Braun, the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) announced.

The route designations are effective immediately, unless otherwise indicated.

The designated routes are in addition to those designated via the previously required hearing process.

The seasonal designation allows the routes' use by trucks with tandem axle loads of up to 34,000 pounds and total gross weights of 80,000 pounds for properly registered vehicles. Special permits are not required to use these routes, Braun said.

The newly designated routes will remain at the 10-ton rating unless Mn-DOT determines they should be posted for lower weight limits, he said.

The newly designated routes in this area are as follows:

Trunk highways: TH 1 from Thief River Falls to its junction with TH 219 (effective August 3); TH 9 from Ada to its junction with US 2 (effective August 3); TH 92 from its junction with TH 222 to US 2 at Bagley; TH 219 from its junction with TH 1 to Goodridge (effective August 3); and TH 222 from Oklee to its junction with TH 92.

A 10-ton route map and list can be purchased from Mn-DOT by sending $3 to Supplies Section, Minnesota Department of Transportation, Room B-20, Transportation Building, John Ireland Boulevard, St. Paul, MN 55155. Checks should be made payable to the commissioner of transportation.

42 Take Part In Goodridge Blood Drive

Staff of United Blood Services of the Upper Midwest note that in Goodridge's recent blood drive, 43 people signed up to donate and 42 were able to give blood.

Six of the volunteers were first-time donors.

Ernie Swanson, Gordon Henrickson and the Goodridge Lions club sponsored and organized the drive.

Donations will help meet the needs of many area patients in the 47 hospitals served by United Blood Services. Without the support of local communities, this precious fluid would be impossible to obtain.

Renaissance Is Theme For Art In The Park

Seventh annual "Art in the Park", a Renaissance festival this year, will be conducted in the L. B. Hartz park near the national guard armory July 17 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Art in the park, sponsored by the Thief River Falls community arts council, will feature artists and craftsmen from around the area who will display their wares in a Renaissance atmosphere complete with strolling minstrels.

Snacks, also created around a Renaissance theme, will be available throughout the day from 4-H club members. Musical performances will occur periodically throughout the day also.

4-H club members will serve a pork dinner in the park from 6 to 7 p.m. Dinner will be followed by a Commedia Theater Company performance at 7 p.m. Visitors to the park are invited to bring folding chairs or blankets for the open-air performance of a lively, funny love story set in Renaissance Italy.

Tickets for the pork dinner and play are $4 and must be purchased in advance of the Renaissance festival at Larson's Music store or from members of the arts council.

In the event of rain, all festivities will be conducted in the Thief River Falls armory.

WILDLIFE isn't something a person finds only in the country. This urban-dwelling night hawk (top photo) is a downtown Thief River Falls resident, raising its single offspring on the coarse stone roof of a building in the central business district. As this Times photo was taken, the hawk was covering the youngster which is partially visible below and ahead of its left wing. Since there is frequent outdoor activity by apartment dwellers nearby, the bird appears somewhat accustomed to having people around, but moved a few feet off the nest when the photographer finally crept too close. Natural camouflage of the adult hawk and the rapidly-growing young bird is evident in these photos.

Joni Melander And Lyle Swanson Exchange Vows

Joni Marie Melander and Lyle Swanson exchanged marriage vows recently at the Lund Lutheran church in Gully.

The bride is a daughter of Darlene Melander of Gully and Gene Melander of Bemidji. Groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Swanson of Thief River Falls.

Rev. Dale Moe officiated at the double ring ceremony and Julie Brothern of Bagley was the pianist and accompanied Lezli Peterson, cousin of the bride, as she sang "God, A Woman and a Man" and Steve Sorvig, friend of the groom, who sang "Wedding Song" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, was attired in a white gown of polyester organza and chantilly lace. The empire bodice of chantilly lace was trimmed with seed pearls and schiffli embroidery on an organza sheer inset. The bishop sleeves featured an inner fitted sleeve with seed pearls and chantilly lace detail. A flared organza skirt also featured chantilly lace detail at the hemline and skirt front. The skirt back had a panel made of chantilly lace and flowed into a full cathedral length train. Her cathedral veil edged with chantilly lace was held in place by a camelot headpiece trimmed with seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of blue and white silk roses accented with blue tipped carnations and babies' breath.

The groom wore a white vested tuxedo with a white pleated wing-collared shirt and white satin ascot. His blue carnation boutonniere was centered with a white rose bud.

Darla Melander, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Roslyn Bolgrean, cousin of the bride; Gloria Svir, sister of the groom; and Candace Bergh, friend of the bride. They all wore floor length gowns of blue floral polyester and carried bouquets of blue and white silk roses accented with blue tipped carnations and babies' breath.

Attending the groom as best man was Barry Rewertz, cousin of the groom. Groomsmen were Mark Swanson, brother of the groom; Godfred Svir, brother-in-law of the groom; and Joel Melander, brother of the bride. They wore blue vested tuxedos with white shirts and blue satin ascots. Their boutonnieres were the same as that of the groom.

Flower girl was Lisa Swanson, niece of the groom. Her floor length dress was of white polyester, trimmed with white lace, and she carried a basket of blue and white roses.

Ring bearer, Jerrod Melander, nephew of the bride, wore a white toxedo with a white ascot and blue carnation boutonniere, matching that of the groom.

Serving as acolytes and ushers were Jayson Melander, brother of the bride and Larry Swanson, brother of the groom.

The bride's mother chose a floor length gown of shrimp polyester knit and the groom's mother selected a full length gown of pink polyester knit. Their corsages were blue and white silk roses.

The bride's personal attendants were Junelle Sparby, Kim Olson and Joy Kaushagen, friends of the bride.

A reception was held in the church parlors with Linda and Jeffrey Melander, sister-in-law and brother of the bride, and Marilyn and Curtis Swanson, sister-in-law and brother of the groom, serving as hostesses and hosts. Serving the punch were Julie Gilbert and Karen Sparby.

The four-tiered wedding cake decorated with blue and white frosted flowers had a gold cross with entwined wedding rings on top. Cutting and serving the cake were Vivian Rouland and Betty Schantzen and pouring coffee were Lucille Yonke and Arvilla Rouland.

Pam Swanson and Jay Brekke attended the guest book and Romona Emerson and Tracy Rouland were at the gift table.

Following a wedding trip to Hawaii, the couple is at home on the Swanson dairy farm west of St. Hilaire.

The Ruby

GENUINE BIRTHSTONE FOR JULY

Possessing the most stimulating of all colors, the Ruby has been aptly dedicated to the high noon and bright midsummer. It was thought to contain a glowing spark struck from the planet Mars, a spark that could not be quenched until the world itself grew cold. The Ruby is the birthstone for contentment and peace.

Block Assumes Supt. Role In TRF Schools

Block said he has concerns about what spending limitations will mean for education in Minnesota, but that he feels the legislature did the best it could for education in the state during the past session. He commended the Thief River Falls board and administration for operating this district on a sound financial basis and noted that it is in satisfactory financial position at the present time.

The new superintendent will be immediately involved in negotiations on contracts for the district's faculty and union employees, meeting today with representatives of the union representing bus drivers, cooks, custodians and others. At that meeting the board's counter-offer to the union's initial request is being presented.

Block was hired by the School District 564 board at a meeting held March 11 when a resolution was adopted offering him the position. Wiebolt said that 32 applications were considered for the post, seven candidates were interviewed, and the selection was made following a board delegation's visit to Eden Prairie and two visits by Block here for interviews.

Born in Missouri Valley, IA., on Nov. 27, 1933, he holds an associate in arts degree from McCook junior college in 1955, BS degree in agriculture from North Dakota state university in 1957, an MS degree in education administration from NDSU in 1959, MS degree in science specialty from Oregon state university in 1963 and specialist in education administration degree from the University of Minnesota (Duluth) in 1975.

He also received an executive fellowship grant for study in education administration in 1978 and 1979.

Prior to entering the administrative field, Block taught science from 1959 to 1967 at Fargo public schools and was director of the lab school at Moorhead state university from 1967 to 1969.

Block has held membership in a number of community organizations, including vice president of the Grand Rapids chamber of commerce in 1975, chairman of St. Paul's Lutheran church in Eden Valley in 1977-79, president of the Eden Valley Lions club in 1978-79 and president of the chamber of commerce in Eden Valley this year.

The new superintendent and his wife Vendla have an 18-year-old son Steve and 15-year-old daughter Susan. The family has purchased the Richard Trudeau home at 903 Knight av. N.

B. Anderson Attends NFU State Camp

Bernice Anderson of Goodridge recently returned from a week's study of "A Global Project" at the National Farmers Union (NFU) All-States camp near Bailey, CO.

At the camp, high school graduates who have taken part in Farmers Union state camps and youth studies for three years met to review Farmers Union philosophies and relate them to the challenges of the world.

Anderson joined 95 other youth from six states in an international project centered on back-home activities promoting United Nations-declared world food day October 16.

Issues of food, energy and land were debated in preparation for a simulated U.N.-type conference where campers represented 11 mythical countries. Activities culminated in a banquet featuring NFU president George W. Stone.

"I've just returned from Washington, D.C., where I testified before Congress on the need for a national food policy and international commodity agreements to stabilize farm income, and the need to bring interest rates in line to brighten the future of those of you who want to enter farming," Stone said. "I'm not sure all of our leaders appreciate the impact of the potential loss of our next generation of family farmers."

NFU past-president Tony Dechant also spoke to the campers on his efforts as former president of the International Federation of Agricultural Producers to alleviate starvation across the globe.

President of the National Farmers Union's insurance companies Ray Novak, stressed that all-states camp provides a social consciousness-raising. "My experiences in the Farmers Union youth program brought me the leadership to become president of a large insurance company, and at the same time gave me the understanding that the international exchange of food and fiber creates a peaceful world," he said.

Director of youth and young adult activities for the Denver-based family farm organization Cindy Domenico was all-states camp director. National senior youth advisory council, elected by last year's all-staters, planned the evening programs, while NFU director of education Sherry Leach coordinated camp projects. Three college-age Farmers Union youth, were also on camp staff.

"YOUR COOPERATIVE Involvement" was the theme of a three-day Young Couples conference recently attended by Mr. and Mrs. Greg Hallstrom of Red Lake Falls at Breezy Point. Sponsored by CENEX, Minnesota Farmers Union and Farmers Union Oil Company in Thief River Falls, the conference focused on cooperative principles, responsibilities of co-op board members and managers, and member development. Young couples participated in discussions relating to the co-ops' financial needs, role of the farm organizations, and shared ideas about their local co-ops. Harlan Rosvold, CENEX vice president of engineering and construction, was guest speaker at the banquet.

Former TRF Resident Builds Youth Program

Beginning of a Young Life Outreach, a youth ministry program, has been associated with Al Torkelson, a former employee with Thorp Loan & Thrift of Thief River Falls.

Torkelson, a car dealer in North Branch, established the program when he discovered youngsters stealing from him a couple of years ago. Since he didn't want the two to be turned over to the authorities, he made a "deal" with the local sheriff in that city. The two would "serve their time" by going to a Young Life camp in Colorado and the theft would be stricken from their records.

"The two came back with changed attitudes," he said. This was the beginning of a Young Life outreach in North Branch which has since expanded. Program is coordinated by Larry Ostrom of Cambridge, area Young Life director.

Torkelson has reported that 45-50 kids know show up for Young Life in North Branch. "The money we raise today will send 22 kids to camp," he said, adding, "Young Life has a lasting effect on them (kids)."

Keinz Succeeds McCabe In State Aeronautics

Richard B. Keinz, director of program planning for the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT), has been named assistant commissioner for Mn-DOT's aeronautics division effective July 1.

Announcement of the appointment was made by Mn-DOT commissioner Richard P. Braun. Keinz succeeds Lawrence E. McCabe, who resigned March 1 to take a position with the metropolitan airports commission.

"Dick Keinz brings to this position a complete understanding of Minnesota's aeronautics programs and policies, having served in the division for eight years," Braun said.

Keinz joined the Minnesota department of aeronautics in 1972 as director of aviation planning, that department's first planning division. When the aeronautics department was merged into Mn-DOT in 1976, he was appointed director of the office of airport development, a position he held until March of 1980, when he was named to the program planning post.

As assistant commissioner for aeronautics, Keinz will provide administrative management for Mn-DOT's division of aeronautics, which includes administrative and engineering assistance to Minnesota municipalities in the design, construction and maintenance of airports and other air navigational systems.

Keinz first joined the Minnesota highway department, forerunner of Mn-DOT, in 1961 as a bridge design engineer. After serving three years as an officer in the U.S. marine corps, he rejoined the highway department in 1965 until joining the department of aeronautics.

Selection of Keinz was made by commissioner Braun based on recommendations of an eight-member screening committee which reviewed some 35 final applicants of 97 persons interested from throughout the United States. The screening committee, made up of persons from the aeronautics community, had narrowed the applicants down to three top contenders and three alternates earlier this month.

In his current position, Keinz has been responsible for developing and maintaining Mn-DOT's total transportation improvement program including the management of the highway improvement budget activities.

Married and the father of three, Keinz is a civil engineering graduate of Iowa state university and has completed his coursework for a master's degree at the University of Minnesota. He resides with his wife and family in Burnsville.

Mn-DOT Deputy Commissioner Robert J. McDonald has been serving as acting assistant commissioner for aeronautics since McCabe's resignation.

Children Pay One Third Of Lunch Costs

Last year children paid only about a third of the actual cost of their school lunches, according to a report released by the U.S. department of agriculture.

The report showed that school lunches cost local school food authorities between $1.36 and $1.66 to prepare, depending on the type of kitchen facility in which the meals are prepared. Data from the spring of 1980 showed that children nationwide paid an average of 56 cents for the lunch at school. Roughly half of the meal costs go for food, according to the report, and 34 to 40 per cent of costs pay for labor.

The report outlines cost, participation and nutritional impact data requested from USDA by Congress in Senate Resolution 90 (June 1979).

To come up with the nationwide data Congress wanted, USDA conducted three major studies: (1) An assessment of the costs required to prepare school meals, (2) a study of the effects of nutrition education in several states, and (3) an evaluation of the nutritional impact of USDA's school-based programs, which will not be completed until January of 1982. The nationwide studies gathered data from a total of over 2,000 school districts.

A more complete treatment of the issues of nutritional impact, income and family composition of participants, targeting of benefits and impact on the agricultural economy, all based on recently completed and ongoing nationally representative studies, will be reported later this year.

The report was prepared by the food and nutrition service office of policy planning and evaluation.

The national school lunch program served more than four billion meals to nearly 27 million school children in fiscal year 1980.

Public Display Best For July 4th Fireworks

State fire marshal Wes Werner of the Minnesota department of public safety says the best way to celebrate the Fourth of July safely and legally is to enjoy fireworks at an authorized public display.

He reminded Minnesotans that it is unlawful for any persons to offer for sale, expose for sale, sell at retail or wholesale, possess or use or explode any fireworks.

"Fireworks means any substance or article prepared for the purpose of producing a visible or audible effect and includes blank cartridges, toy cannons, firecrackers, torpedos, skyrockets, roman candles, sparklers or any other device commonly used as fireworks," Werner said. The only legal fireworks are supervised public displays.

Sale or use of fireworks is a misdemeanor which can bring a maximum penalty of $500 and-or 90 days in jail.

Legislative Review
Marv Hanson

District 1 State Senator

As you all are aware the 1981 meeting of the state legislature finished up with a special session. Because of the budget problems outlined by the governor, the special session saw a tax bill enacted which raised the sales tax from four to five per cent. New and used farm machinery is exempted from this increase.

It was a difficult session of the legislature this year, probably the most difficult since 1971. It seemed political rhetoric, partisanship and press releases hamstrung many matters under consideration. But there comes a time when that all has to be set aside. When serving in the legislature you must recognize your responsibilities to the people of our state. It means that you have to do more than just complain about things. It means that you have to look at what's best for all the citizens of Minnesota.

You have to look at what's best for the young people going to our local schools, out AVTI's, our colleges and universities. Do they have an opportunity to complete their education and develop their skills and talents? You have to consider the elderly. How are those who can no longer care for themselves going to be cared for? And what of the mentally retarded and the handicapped?

Are our businesses and farmers getting their products and grain moved out on our state highway system? Are we keeping our roads and highways up?

These are some of the questions and matters that must be resolved each time the legislature meets.

This does not mean the state just freely spends. No, the state must meet those responsibilities in a manner that is efficient and fair to the taxpayer. State government in Minnesota can be more effective and the legislature took steps to do just that. This year the legislature trimmed the 1981-83 two-year state budget initially presented more than in any other previous session. Most state agencies saw reductions in the number of employed positions allocated to them. Three state agencies were merged into one for considerable cost savings.

It was on this basis that the 1981 legislature met and completed its work. There will be a short special session, probably in July, to increase the short term borrowing authority of the governor to meet cash flow difficulties the state will have in the October-December part of the year.

The following is an outline of school aid legislation passed this past session. Next week I will report on further measures enacted this year that should be of interest.

On a general basis revenues available to our local schools to meet their budgets are calculated on a statutory formula for pupil enrollment. This same formula for pupil enrollment determines state school aid.

Schools in District one continue to experience declining enrollments. This means that even though the state statutory formula allowance many increase, there may be only the same amount, even possibly less, total revenue available to our local schools than the year before if enrollment declines. This can put severe constraints on the educational programs our schools can offer students when costs keep rising as they have.

This is why I felt it was necessary to have the supplemental budget bill passed. Without its passage almost half of the schools in District one would have had less or about the same funds to operate as they did last year. The majority cacuses in the legislature continued to press for this measure in the special session and the Governor finally agreed to it. With its passage most of the school districts in northwest Minnesota will receive modest increases in their school budgets.

School districts will also have increased discretionary levying authority up to 2.5 mills. This levying authority is exercised at the discretion of the local school board but is subject to referendum if residents of the school district petition for one.

Without these two measures, the supplementary budget bill and the increase in discretionary levy, schools in District 1 would have been severely impacted. And that would have hurt educational opportunities for your young people attending our schools.

Mn/DOT Gives Facts On Auto Crashes In '80

How much did traffic accidents cost Minnesotans in 1980? How, where, when and under what road conditions did the accidents happen? Who are the people being killed and injured, and are things getting better or worse?

Answers to these and other questions have been compiled by the Minnesota department of public safety, according to commissioner John P. Sopsic.

"There are a few surprises in the numbers," Sopsic said. "For the most part they represent continuing accident trends, but there was a very unusual drop in the total number of crashes which occurred on our roads and the estimate for vehicle miles traveled in Minnesota dropped for the first time in several years."

Sopsic said the cost of accidents to Minnesotans continues to hover around $400 million. That's like taking a ten dollar bill away from every man, woman and child in Minnesota. Even at that it is a conservative figure because it's based on the national safety council's 1979 estimates for costs per accident in lost wages, medical expenses and property damage. The 863 deaths, 45,227 injuries and 72,163 property damage accidents accounted for the $400 million cost.

Minnesotans reversed a five-year trend toward ever increasing numbers of miles driven. Estimated decrease was one-half billion miles in the state last year compared to 1979.

Minnesotans were also more careful when they did drive. Total accidents dropped by more than 17,000 to a near 10-year low of 103,612. Only in 1974 when the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit was passed were fewer crashes reported in the past decade. There were 102,964 accidents reported that year.

Crashes involving two or more moving vehicles dominated the 1980 accident chart. The 62,429 collisions accounted for more than 60 per cent of all accidents. They also accounted for about 60 per cent of all injuries and 44.3 per cent of the traffic accident deaths.

More unusual accidents involving fire, explosion or submersion accounted for 138 accidents in the state last year, less than one-tenth of one per cent of all traffic accidents.

Urban areas with populations greater than 5,000 showed more than twice as many accidents as rural areas, but rural areas accounted for almost two-thirds of all traffic accident deaths.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I recently sent the following letter to state representative LeRoy Stumpf:

Dear Mr. Stumpf:

I am enclosing a copy of an article, "Foregin investment in U.S. helpful, nothing to fear", which appeared in the June 22, 1981 issue of "Realtor News".

This article concurs with my own personal thinking. Any time you restrict outside investment to any given area or region, you will only harm the citizenry of that area or region by depressing values of its property or product. We can not afford to be an "Island Unto Ourselves".

Sincerely,
Norman L. Anderson
Realtor

To The Editor:

I wonder how many people like me attended the pig wrestling contest last Sunday evening with an open mind, having never been to a spectacle like this before. And how many people left there feeling the fright and the pain that the pigs must have felt and the disgust knowing that people like me actually let this happen.

I watched as the contestants fought with the pigs, forcing them down, turning them over, pulling on their legs and pushing their heads down into the water and mud. Think of how traumatic this must be for the animal, not to mention the medical problems which may occur (if not death) due to aspiration of the water.

Someone made the comment, "since when do animals have the same rights people have?" Listening to people like this talk, can we really call ourselves civilized? I believe it is people like this who run down defenseless animals on the road. What kind of degenerate people are we to let this take place?

Please stand behind me in this effort to stop this from happening again.

Sincerely,
Susan Melby

Important Legislation Sponsored

Even though Congress seems to be struggling to reach agreement on the budget and tax cut legislation, there is also a large amount of other legislation being generated. In this column, I would like to make you aware of some of the bills I am sponsoring.

H.R. 27 — Guns — Prison Sentence for Use in Federal Crimes. I am sponsoring this legislation which provides for a mandatory, minimum five-year prison sentence for those convicted of committing federal crimes involving the use of firearms.

I believe it effectively addresses the problem of gun-crime in our nation.

This bill does not restrict a person's ability to own guns. However, it will come down hard and sure on those convicted of seriously misusing them. Today, many criminals commit crimes with guns, believing that even if caught, they will be placed on probation or receive early parole. If this bill is enacted, they will be able to count on only one thing: a prison sentence of at least five years and not be eligible for parole. Some will surely be discouraged from committing crimes. Those who are not deterred, and are convicted, will not have the opportunity to soon repeat their offense; they will be in jail.

H.R. 1776 — Legislative Veto. The American People, not only from the Seventh District, but from around the entire country, have made it clear that they want less regulation and better regulation. They want to have more to say about regulations which affect their lives. Legislative veto is a way to achieve this. It provides a mechanism whereby Congress, the elected Representative of the people, can tell the bureaucracy when it has gone too far, or in some instances, when it has not gone far enough.

This bill gives Congress the authority to have veto power over all rules and regulations set down by Federal agencies. Under this law, the new regulations proposed by agencies making up the Federal bureaucracy would be studied by the appropriate authorizing committee. If the committee should then seek to have a rule or regulation vetoed, the measure would then be sent to the Floor of either the House of Representatives or the Senate. To veto rules and regulations action would have to be taken by both Houses of Congress.

H.R. 2383 — Prohibit the Use of Funds to Establish a Nine-Digit Zip Code. This bill is designed to guarantee that government funds are not appropriated for the establishment of a nine-digit zip code. In December of 1980, the Committee on Government Operations issued a report on this proposal lableing the plan a potential "collossal failure" and faulting the Postal Service's planning for the program, its failure to adequately examine costs to private industry and other defects. The Senate then overhwelmingly approved an amendment to a continuing resolution which blocked the Postal Service from going ahead with immediate plans to use the longer zip code.

Originally the Postmaster General had planned to have the new code start in January, but after hearing so many complaints from Congress and other sources, the beginning date was postponed until June.

As it stands now, the date at which the nine-digit zip is expected to commence has been pushed back even further as the Office of Management and Budget conducts its own investigation of the Postal Service's plan.

I am also sponsoring H.R. 2788 which states that if the zip code is expanded, the use of nine-digits will be voluntary instead of mandatory.

It is my hope that the American people will not be confronted with this plan until it can be determined that it is economically feasible and in the best interest of everyone.

Next week I will explain other legislation which I am sponsoring.

Reminder Given For Summer Driving Safety

As Minnesotans prepare for vacations and summer weekends, public safety commissioner John P. Sopsic issues some reminders about summer driving.

Sopsic advised motorists to have their vehicles safety-checked at a service station or garage before leaving on vacation.

Other tips include:

—Be sure your tires are properly inflated, according to the owner's manual. Check for unnatural wear which might be corrected with proper alignment or balancing. Replace tires with less than 1-16 inch tread, or when wear bars become visible.

—One of the primary troubles experienced by motorists is engine overheating. You can prevent this in slow-moving traffic by shifting into neutral and accelerating your engine briefly during stops. This speeds up the fan and water pump and aids cooling. If your engine begins spouting steam, pull off to the side of the road. Do not remove the radiator cap until the engine has cooled and the pressure has disappeared. Wait for help.

Plan enough rest stops on trips so driver and passengers, including anxious children, can get some respite. In Minnesota a number of rest areas are being staffed by volunteers on holiday weekends. Known as REACT teams, the volunteers are coordinating their efforts with CARE (Coordinated Accident Reduction Enforcement), a project of the Minnesota state patrol.

—Allow enough time between home and your destination so you can comply with the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit.

—Do not carry liquor or beer in the vehicle. It should be stored in the trunk. Drinking in a motor vehicle or having an opened liquor or beer container in a vehicle is a violation of state law.

RESPONDING to advice from the crowd, this hog wrestler was unable to do much about her own sticky situation Sunday. The action took place during the hog wrestle sponsored by the Northern Minnesota Pork Producers association as part of its annual feeder pig show and sale.

PROPER TECHNIQUE for placing a muddy hog in a barrel is demonstrated by these two teams from the hog wrestle conducted Sunday in Thief River Falls. The hog wrestle was the concluding event of the second annual feeder pig show and sale conducted by the Northern Minnesota Pork Producers association. In the top photo, the hog is being deposited rear-end first into the 55-gallon drum. In the bottom photo, a captured hog is about to be released.

"Ultra-pasteurization" is the heating of milk to 280 degrees F. for at least two seconds, giving it extended shelf life under refrigeration. The process is called sterilization in other countries.

State Jobless Rate Falls To 4.9 Per Cent

Minnesota's unemployment rate in May was 4.9 per cent, which compares to 5.1 per cent in April and 5.6 per cent in May of 1980, commissioner Rolf Middleton of the Minnesota department of economic security has reported. Comparable national unemployment rate for May was 7.1 per cent.

Compared to May a year ago, the size of the Minnesota civilian labor force increased 2.1 per cent. The number employed increased 2.1 per cent; and the number of unemployed decreased four per cent.

Minnesota's labor force in May was 2,201,400 persons, up 37,700 from April and up 44,500 from May of last year.

Number of persons employed in May was 2,094,600, up 42,100 from April and 57,900 from May a year ago and the number of persons unemployed in Minnesota in May was 106,800, down 4,400 from April and down 13,400 from May a year ago.

Production workers in manufacturing were paid average weekly earnings of $329.43 in May for working an average of 39.5 hours at $8.34 per hour.

In May of 1980 production workers were paid average weekly earnings of $295.93 for working an average of 39.3 hours at $7.53 per hour.

Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Peros

Q. Pastor Don, will we know our loved ones when we get to heaven? Will we look the same as we do now?

A. From what I can discover in the Scripture, we do not lose our identities in heaven.

In Matthew 17 Jesus took three of His disciples with him (Peter, James, & John) upon a mountain where Jesus was transfigured.

In Matthew 17:3, it says, "Behold, there appeared unto them (Peter, James, & John) Moses and Elijah talking with Jesus.

Now remember, Peter, James, & John had never seen Moses or Elijah at all in their lifetime, because Moses and Elijah had been dead about 1,000 years. But when they appeared in their spiritual bodies they were immediately recognized.

Remember after Jesus' resurrection when He had received His spiritual body, that people recognized who He was.

I Corinthians 15:5-8 says that "He was seen of Peter; then of the twelve: after that, He was seen of about 500 brethren at once; after that He was seen of James; then of all the apostles, and at last He was seen of me (Paul) also."

In Acts 7:55 when Stephen was being stoned to death, "he looked up stedfastly into heaven, and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing on the right hand of God."

The Christian that dies and goes to heaven will receive the same kind of spiritual body that Jesus had after His resurrection. It will be recognizable with its own identity.

I Corinthians 15:42-44 says, "So also in the resurrection of the dead. It is sown in corruption; it is raised in incorruption: it is sown in dishonor; it is raised in glory: it is sown in weakness; it is raised in power: it is sown a natural body; it is raised a spiritual body. There is a natural body, and there is a spiritual body."

Yes, we will know our loved ones when we get to heaven, those of us that have received Christ as our personal Saviour and have made necessary preparations to meet Him and them.

If you have any questions that you would like to have answered from the Bible, please write Pastor Don Peros, Box 129, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

Animals Trained To Perform Human Jobs

Since prehistoric times, humans have domesticated and trained animals to help them perform onerous chores. It started with cavemen training dogs to help in the hunt and today people are still dreaming up new schemes to make animals do their dirty work, according to the current issue of National Wildlife magazine.

Over the years pigeons, especially, have been found to be cooperative workers. "During the four-month Prussion seige of Paris in 1870, pigeons carried hundreds of thousands of official and private messages to and from the outside world," says the National Wildlife Federation's bimonthly publication. "The messages were inserted in a small goose quill and attached by waxy silken thread to the strongest tail feather."

During World War II British forces dropped pigeons in baskets from airplanes so that local residents could retrieve them, attach any information that might be of interest to allied forces and then release the birds. After circling the area once or twice the pigeons would head for home, perhaps hundreds of miles away.

Researchers now think pigeons may have a future as assembly line inspectors — checking for defects in drug capsules or electronic equipment, for example. Human inspectors tend to make errors about 15 per cent of the time, whereas pigeons make errors only one per cent of the time, one psychologist found.

"And they don't get bored," adds National Wildlife. "Studies have found that they can remain on the job for three days straight without sacrificing accuracy. The birds do loaf on the job, though, so most pigeon projects call for three birds inspecting in tandem, each a check on the others."

The technique used in training pigeons and other animals is called positive reinforcement, developed by B.F. Skinner, the famed behaviorist. It involves using food as a reward — when, for instance, a pigeon sports a defective drug capsule — and ignoring wrong behavior. Animals are not starved; the reward is part of a daily ration.

British submarine commanders employed this technique during World War II. Their submarines would release large amounts of bread in the water, and gulls would flock to it. After a while, the birds gathered naturally at the sight of a long, dark shadow sliding underwater. Spotters ashore alerted the authorities. No one knows how many German U-boats fell victim to a flock of hungry gulls.

Positive reinforcement has also been used to train macaques, short-tailed monkeys, to harvest coconuts from the tallest palms in the fields of southern Thailand. And in Boston, a capuchin monkey named Hellion does household chores for a 24-year-old man who is paralyzed from the shoulders down as a result of a car accident. Hellion can turn on the lights, put cassettes into a tape recorder, retrieve food from the refrigerator and feed her owner.

The military has a long history of putting animals to work. In one battle with the Romans, Hannibal set elephants in his front lines, ready to charge. His plan backfired, however. Spooked by trumpets and irritated by the enemies' darts, the elephants turned and stampeded into their own cavalry.

Today, the U.S. Coast Guard is training pigeons to sport orange, yellow and red — the colors of life jackets, buoys, rafts and flags. The pigeons will be carried in a plexiglass bubble beneath a helicopter and will peck at an electrical switch when they see these colored objects floating on the ocean below.

The Navy, meanwhile, has long used sea lions and other marine mammals to retrieve or deliver objects at great depths. "Apparently," says National Wildlife, "they work better than humans, who require scuba gear, decompression chambers, medical personnel, good weather and a few days to complete a mission."

A Navy porpoise has carried tools and messages to aquanauts in a lab 200 feet below, off the California coast. Sea lions have recovered antisubmarine test rockets at depths of 490 feet. And a killer whale has been trained to recover dummy torpedoes from depths of 1,600 feet.

During World War I, pigeons were commonly used as "spies," carrying messages back and forth across enemy lines. Whenever the Germans occupied new territory, they made it a practice to destroy all the pigeons in the area. An estimated one million Belgian pigeons were captured or killed in that war. Probably the most famous was Cher Ami, a plucky British racing pigeon. When an American battalion advanced too far ahead of its lines, it was surrounded, and neither humans nor birds could get through heavy fire to report the batallion's location. The last hope was Cher Ami.

"Through the fusillade of fire, the little racing pigeon rose, heading for home carrying the vital information," recounts National Wildlife. "Suddenly, a burst of shrapnel ripped its leg. But it didn't stop. Gamely, it flew on, reaching the base in 25 minutes. The message, attached to the wounded leg, hung from a few shreds of sinew."

Today, Cher Ami's stuffed body is on display at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C. A real war hero, it serves as a reminder of the amazing feats animals can be trained to perform for humans.

Gas Hazard In Certain Mobile Home Furnaces

A program to repair as many as 55,000 liquid propane and natural gas furnaces used in mobile homes is being conducted by the manufacturer because the furnaces may pose a risk of death or poisoning by leaking carbon monoxide gas if portions of the vent system corrode.

The repair program pertains to all model MMG "Miller"-brand gas furnaces manufactured by the HOME Division of Lear Siegler, Inc., of Holland, Mich. The firm, in voluntary cooperation with the U.S. consumer product safety commission (CPSC), has agreed to replace the flue-pipe extension within the furnaces.

Corrosion in the flue-pipe extension and vent system may permit carbon monoxide gas to be emitted into the living areas. CPSC has been informed of 19 deaths since 1969 which have been associated with carbon monoxide leakage from the MMG model furnaces.

Approximately 46,000 furnaces were manufactured from 1964 through 1971, and an additional 9,000 furnaces were converted to liquid propane or natural gas, although it is unlikely that all of the furnaces still are functional because of their age. The furnaces were sold, exclusively for use in mobile homes either as original equipment or as replacement appliances.

Mobile home owners should check their gas furnaces for the presence of the "Miller" brand name on the top of the louvered door. Consumers then should identify whether they possess an MMG model by opening the door and determining whether the large vertical pipe inside is approximately five inches across. If so, consumers should call the manufacturer's toll-free number at 1-800-253-3874 (in Michigan, call collect 1-616-394-4326). The firm will arrange for free installation of a new flue-pipe extension.

Consumers who are uncertain whether they own an MMG model gas furnace after inspecting the interior pipe are encouraged to contact the manufacturer's toll-free number for assistance in identifying their furnace.

CPSC also is reminding consumers that all gas furnaces require periodic inspections and maintenance by qualified personnel in order to detect such hazards as vent pipe corrosion. Consumers should contact their local heating contractor for suggestions on arranging such inspections.

CPSC operates a toll-free Hotline to assist consumers with problems relating to the health and safety aspects of products. Consumers may contact the Hotline at 800-638-8326.

Wilson Given Trap Honor

Stan Wilson, Jr. of Thief River Falls will join pretty select company next week when he will be inducted into the Minnesota trapshooting Hall of Fame during the 68th annual Minnesota state trapshooting tournament July 8-12 at the Del-Tone trap range in St. Cloud.

The prestigious Hall of Fame honor has been given to just 31 other shooters, most of them from the metropolitan area. Only other northern Minnesota shooters on the Hall of Fame list are Bard Higgins of Duluth and Lowell King of Detroit Lakes.

The Hall of Fame selection committee is headed by Jimmy Robinson of waterfowl fame who serves as trapshooting editor of Sports Afield. Robinson himself supplied the press release for The Times concerning the induction of Wilson.

It's a great honor for the Wilson family and it provides a great deal of pride for the people involved in the local trapshooting program.

Miscellaneous

+Citing family and other job responsibilities as his reason for stepping down, Tom Kelly has announced his resignation as hockey coach at the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC).

+Crookston, scheduled to be in Thief River Falls Tuesday for a 7 p.m. Northwest League game, emerged as champion in the eight-team Crookston American Legion State Farm baseball tournament played Saturday and Sunday. "We had an excellent tournament," reported Crookston coach Jim Simon. "We got some good pitching from Mark Melby and Brian Bachmeier, and our bats were working, also." Crookston routed Red Lake Falls 18-0 and Farmington 7-0 in its first two starts before beating Wadena 5-2 in the finals, lifting its record to 7-1. In other first round action, Farmington edged Park Rapids 5-4, Wadena handled Warroad 8-2 and Frazee stopped Alexandria 7-3. Wadena eliminated previously unbeaten Frazee 9-1 while Crookston was beating Farmington 7-0 in the semifinals. Park Rapids ousted Red Lake Falls 5-2 and Alexandria was a 7-1 winner over Warroad in Saturday's consolation bracket games, but Sunday's consolation games were rained out.

+Lockport (Manitoba) Red Devils defeated North Star Transport of Thief River Falls 5-4 and 1-0 in the finals of the double-elimination North Valley men's fast pitch softball tournament played Saturday and Sunday in Grand Forks. Marty Brown, a 39-year-old farmer from Williams who joins the Thief River Falls squad for weekend tournament play, pitched a perfect game Saturday as North Star Transport beat Lockport. The Thief River Falls entry then blanked Winkler (Man.) 5-0 Sunday to become the only unbeaten team in the tournament before falling to Lockport twice, the first one going nine innings. In 31 and two-thirds innings of tournament pitching Brown, who plays for the Williams Nighthawks in the Rainy River league during the week, gave up just 11 hits and did not give up an earned run.

+In a match-up of former Lincoln high school standouts, Mitch Rustad defeated Bill Jury 2-6, 6-3, 6-3 in the finals of the 21-under singles portion of the Grand Forks tennis classic Sunday. It was a rare victory for Jury over Rustad, who has met his former teammate in several tournaments in the past. As freshman this past season, Rustad played No. 1 singles at the University of North Dakota and Jury played No. 3 singles at the University of Minnesota-Duluth.

+Tom Zieman, a high school golfer at both Thief River Falls and International Falls and a familiar entry in local shortstop tournaments, was the top golfer as a junior this year on the Bemidji State University golf team, carrying a 75.7 average during the fall season and a 77.9 average during the spring. (Sandy) of Thief River Falls will be honored next week when he is inducted into the Minnesota state trapshooting Hall of Fame during the 1981 Minnesota state trapshooting tournament at the Del-Tone trap range in St. Cloud. Trapshooting Editor,
Sports Afield

Stan Wilson, Jr., 39-year-old Thief River Falls business executive and shotgun star, will be inducted in the Minnesota state trapshooting Hall of Fame at the Minnesota state shoot in St. Cloud, July 8-12.

"My father introduced me to shooting when I was 11, then Roy Long took me under his wing and taught me all I know about trapshooting," said Stan.

Wilson shot his first registered clays at the state shoot in 1956. Three years later he won the junior championship at Minneapolis.

Wilson came into his own in 1963 when he captured the state high overall (HOA) with 665 x 700, five targets over the field which included All-Americans Merle Stockdale, Vic Reinders, Bard Higgins, Henry Hein, Art Finney and his teacher, Roy Long.

The following year the then 21-year-old University of Texas shotgun star won four state championships, the singles, handicap, all-around and HOA. He won the state doubles in 1965 and 1973, the latter at St. Cloud with 99 x 100.

He is the only Minnesota shooter ever to win the junior and five state championships.

Wilson has been named on nine all-state teams, serving as captain in 1965. He won the high average in 1964 with .9762, placed second to Henry Hein in 1971 with .9780 and second to Bard Higgins in 1962 with a .9742 mark.

Stan and his father Stan, Sr., president of the Minnesota state association in 1971, have hunted and shot clay targets all across the country. Stan won numerous championships which included the zone champion of champions in 1971. He and his father shot in 12 Grand Americans where he won several minor championships.

In 1968 he was captain of the Minnesota team at the Manitoba one-box sharptail shoot at Ashern, winning the trapshotting championship against teams like Iowa, captained by All-American Bob Allen, and the Texas team, composed primarily of astronauts.

Stan has three children, Natalie, Scooter and Derek. His mother Mert, is also a fine shot.

TRF Merchants Lose Two Games Tues.

Division leaders bit the dust Tuesday in the Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball association as the TRF Merchants and Sound Level-Holthusen were handed setbacks.

TRF Merchants, in fact, lost twice, dropping an 8-4 doubleheader opener to last place Furuseth-Nelson, then losing a 17-12 decision to the Middle River Merchants in Division I play. The results moved the Middle River ball club into first place and dropped the TRF Merchants to .500.

Sound Level-Holthusen managed to hold onto its Division IV lead, but its lead was reduced to just one game following a 13-12 defeat at the hands of second place Berkner Agency.

13-Year-Olds Sweep Two Doubleheaders

David Onkka pitched a one-hitter in the opener and Al Erickson topped that with a no-hitter in the second game Monday as Thief River Falls swept Crookston 4-0 and 15-5 in a Babe Ruth baseball doubleheader for 13-year-olds on the fairgrounds diamond.

Onkka struck out nine in his one-hit shutout. Thief River Falls, after scoring once in the bottom of the first, pushed three runs across the plate in the fourth, highlighted by a two-run single by Eric Charlson, who was 2-for-2 in the six-hit Thief River Falls attack.

Erickson struck out seven in his no-hitter. He was baked by a 10-hit offense that included a 2-for-2 performance by Dan Iverson, who drove in three runs, and a 2-for-3 game by Billy LeTourneau, who drove in four runs.

Thief River Falls was also a double winner over Roseau Tuesday, winning the first game 9-6 and taking the second one 15-5. Jim Breiland was 2-for-2 and winning pitcher Kevin Nelson was 2-for-3 as Thief River Falls out-hit Roseau 9-5 in the opener. Erickson was 2-for-2 in Thief River Falls' eight-hit attack in the second game, while pitcher Jeff Anderson was limiting Roseau to just two base hits.

Coach Scott Bergland's Thief River Falls squad was scheduled to close out a busy week at home today (Wednesday) with a 1 p.m. twinbill vs. East Grand Forks.

TAKING A BIG lead off first base, Thief River Falls' Bob Geatz kept an eye on Crookston pitcher Mark Snyder while first baseman Kris Drechsel stayed on the bag for a possible pick-off throw during Monday's 13-year-old Babe Ruth baseball game played on the Thief River Falls fairgrounds diamond. Thief River Falls swept both ends of the doubleheader, winning the opener 4-0 and taking the second game 15-5. Thief River Falls added a 9-6, 15-5 doubleheader sweep over Roseau Tuesday.

TRF Wins 23-3 Babe Ruth Baseball Game . . .

Independents Rout Crookston

Scoring seven runs before a single out had been recorded in the top of the first inning, the Thief River Falls Independents went on to rout the Crookston A Gold 23-3 Tuesday in the first half of a split Babe Ruth baseball doubleheader for 14-15-year-olds.

Coach Charlie Cornell's Independents defeated the Crookston B. Merchants 8-3 in the second half of the twinbill, improving their record to 8-4 for the year.

Crookston A Gold, the same team that handed the Thief River Falls Elks their only loss of the year last week, 4-3, got out-hit 14-1 by the Independents yesterday. Craig Stahlecker, who struck out 18 Elks and had a hand in all 21 put-outs that afternoon, was roughed up for 15 runs in just two-and-two-thirds innings against the Independents.

The Thief River Falls offensive assault included Rick Spong, who was 3-for-5 with a single, double and triple, scored four runs and drove in three; Ryan Bakke, who was 2-for-3, scored five times and drove in two; and Dave Stimac, who was 3-for-3, including a triple, scored twice and drove in four runs. Brian Johnston and first time pitcher Brian Kemnitz combined on a one-hitter for the winners, who played errorless ball. Crookston committed five errors.

Kemnitz was 3-for-4 at the plate in the second game 8-3 victory over the stubborn Crookston B Merchants, a one-sided 24-3 loser to the Elks last week. Gary Cornell was 2-for-4 for the Independents, who out-hit Crookston 8-6. The Merchants had the game's only error. Tim Nyland went the distance for the pitching decision.

Crookston B Merchants are scheduled to appear in Thief River Falls tonight (Wednesday) playing the Independents at 5 p.m. and the Elks at 7 on the fairgrounds diamond. The Independents will host Red Lake Falls Thursday in an 11 a.m. doubleheader and will be involved in tournament play Saturday and Sunday at Bemidji.

TRF Elks One-Hit, No-Hit RLF In Babe Ruth Doubleheader

Pitchers Alan Ness and Todd Ortloff gave up just one hit in two games Tuesday as the Thief River Falls Elks swept an 11-1, 14-0 Babe Ruth baseball doubleheader from Red Lake Falls.

Ortloff tossed a five-inning no-hitter in the 14-0 second game victory, striking out four and walking four. He was backed by a 12-hit attack that included a 4-for-4 performance by Ryan Drees, who hit two triples and drove in five runs. Steve Wiskow and Steve Solheim both had a pair of hits while Brian Garceau had a triple and three RBI's.

Ness checked Red Lake Falls on one hit in the 11-1 first game victory. The visiting Elks scored eight times in the first two innings for the easy win. Ness struck out 11 and walked five. The Elks collected 12 hits, including a 4-for-5 game by Wiskow, who had a triple, and a 3-for-4 effort by Tim Bottem, who drove in three runs.

The 14-15-year-old Elks, coached by Bruce Williams, will carry a 12-1 record into a 7 o'clock game tonight (Wednesday) against the Crookston B Merchants on the fairgrounds diamond.

Both Thief River Falls teams — the Elks and the Independents — will compete in the 16th annual Horace May invitational tournament Saturday and Sunday in Bemidji.

First round games Saturday at the arena diamond will match the Bemidji Lions vs. Blackduck at 1 p.m. and Staples vs. the Thief River Falls Indepdents at 3:30. First round games Saturday at the Bemidji State University diamond will pit the Bemidji Braves vs. Bagley at 1 p.m. and the Thief River Falls Elks against an as-of-yet unnamed opponent at 3:30. Tournament director Jim Carrington ran into problems filling out the field when Park Rapids, a tournament entrant for the past seven years, turned down an invitation this time around.

Semifinals will be played at 1 p.m. Sunday at the same sites. Championship and third place games will be played at 3:30 Sunday afternoon, with the title game set for the BSU diamond.

Staples is the two-time defending tournament champion, but Carrington has labled the Thief River Falls Elks as the 1981 pre-tournament favorite.

Books

From 1949 to 1952 several children's books written about fish, authored by Dr. Rueben William Eschmeyer appeared across the nation but which are no longer in print, according to the Minneapolis public library. Some of the book titles are "Billy Bass", "Charley Cottontail", "Freddy Squirrel" and "Tommy Trout". If you are one of the lucky owners of this series, please write to us. Someone should try to get them back into print.

"Super Freshwater Fishing Systems," a book written by Dave Harbour can help you with a happier and more successful technic for fishing. Anglers across the nation helped to develop and to test the various super fishing systems described by Harbout. The book may be obtained by contacting the author or publishers at Stackpole Books, Cameron and Kelker Streets, Harrisburg, PA 17105. Any fisherman would be proud to own a copy.

"ALONG THE TROUT STREAM", written by world-noted sportsman and author George Mattis of Birchwood, WI. This book is widly acclaimed and was a book of the month selection twice. Mattis is remembered also for his "Whitetail, Fundamentals and Fine Points For The Hunter."

Baudette Report

"Many fish are being caught on Lake of the Woods despite the rainy weather. Lighthouse Gap, Morris Point and Pine Island have been producing fish, but the goings been somewhat slow — the fish seem to come in waves. Most people are going home with their limits and have plenty of fish to eat while here, reports Elmer's Sportsmen's Shop in Baudette.

"There was quite a stir the other day with a 50-pound sturgeon being caught and released in Morris Point Gap; it's illegal t keep sturgeon in June."

Survey Shows An Increase In Pheasants

With the May roadside census 80 per cent complete, the Department of Natural Resources said that pheasant numbers this spring are about one third higher than last year.

Wildlife managers cautioned, however, that the abundance of pheasants during the fall hunting season will be greatly influenced by success of the nesting season and the survival of chicks during the summer months.

Number of roosters seen during the census increased 21 per cent over 1980, while hens showed a 45 per cent increase from last year. More hens were observed than in any year since 1968.

The May pheasant census indicates the relative size of the breeding population. Another survey in August will measure the success of the hatch and give a clearer idea of the number of birds that will be available for hunting this fall.

All regions except the southeast showed an increase in pheasant numbers during the May census ranging from 13 per cent in the south central part of the state to 64 per cent in west central Minnesota.

Hungarian partridge were also censused during May and registered a 58 per cent increase over the spring of 1980. August roadside counts last year recorded an average of 47 birds per 100 miles, a new record.

Highest hen populations are found in south central and southwestern Minnesota with the largest numbers located in the counties of Rock, Pipestone, Lincoln, Nobles and Murray.

TIP Donations Begin, But More Funds Needed

Donations to finance the DNR's new Turn In Poachers (TIP) program are beginning to flow in but more will be needed to get the program off and running by the target date of September 1.

The program will offer cash rewards and a guarantee of anonymity to persons who tip off the DNR to the names of violators of state fish and wildlife laws — providing their information leads to an arrest.

Department enforcement officials said the program is primarily aimed at organized poaching rings and other particularly flagrant abuses and violations of the law.

Program is being sponsored by TIP INC., a private non-profit corporation which will use donated funds to pay rewards to tipsters following an investigation and arrest by DNR conservation officers. Rewards will range from $100 to $1,000 depending upon the nature of the violation.

TIP INC. is seeking memberships: associate membership $10; sustaining membership $50; sponsoring membership, $100.

To date, TIP INC. has received $1,000 contributions from the Minnesota waterfowl association and Parkers Prairie Sportsmen's club. Red Wing Shoe company has donated $500 and several local sportsmen's clubs have contributed $100 each.

TIP hopes to raise $75,000 by September 1. One of the major fund raising efforts will be a series of banquets that have been scheduled in various parts of the state. Tickets cost $25 and TIP is also seeking donations of suitable gifts that can be sold during the banquets to raise additional funds.

First banquet is scheduled for July 14 at the Rainbow Inn at Grand Rapids. Other banquets are scheduled July 24, Radisson Arrowwood Inn, Alexandria; July 31, Elks Lodge, Brainerd; August 5, Mayo Civic Arena, Rochester; August 12, Holiday Inn (downtown) Mankato; September 10, Prom Ballroom, St. Paul.

Individuals or organizations seeking to donate funds or gifts, or who wish additional information on the program may write TIP INC., Box Centennial Building, St. Pat MN., or call toll free 1-800-652-9747.

TRYING TO SCORE from third base on a wild pitch, Thief River Falls base runner Eric Charleson was tagged out by Crookston pitcher Mark Snyder, who was covering the plate on the play in the first game of Monday's Babe Ruth baseball doubleheader for 13-year-olds on the fairgrounds diamond. Thief River Falls took both games, 4-0 and 15-5.

Steel Shot Zone Is Proposed By FWS Officials

Steel shot zones for next fall's waterfowl hunting season were proposed June 12, in portions of 27 states by the Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. The proposal is part of a continuing effort to reduce lead poisoning in waterfowl.

Proposed zones were identified cooperatively with the states with the understanding they may request changes during the public comment period. It is estimated that about 20 per cent of the waterfowl harvest in the United States occurs within these proposed zones.

This year's regulations differ from those in previous years in that they will become "basic" rules when adopted in final form. Basic rules remain in effect from year to year, with only such specific changes — such as adding or deleting a particular zone — having to be proposed as needed. This procedural change was made to reduce uncertainty associated with the demand for either lead or steel shot ammunition.

Detailed descriptions of the zones will be listed in news releases to be issued by the service's regional offices. The states in which the zones occur are as follows:

Atlantic Flyway — Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Virginia.

Mississippi Flyway — Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Ohio, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Wisconsin.

Central Flyway — Kansas, Nebraska, New Mexico, Texas. (Steel shot zones in Colorado and South Dakota, concurred in by the service, will be described in state regulations rather than federal regulations.)

Pacific Flyway — Oregon, Washington.

The proposal was published in the June 12, 1981 Federal Register. Public comments are invited and will be accepted until July 12, 1981. Comments should be addressed to the Director (MBMO), U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240.

Regulations regarding non-toxic shot on units of the national wildlife refuge system will be published separately.

Steel shot zones in Minnesota include:

1. All state wildlife management areas and all federal waterfowl production areas.

2. On the waters on Swan and Middle Lakes in Nicollet county, North and South Heron Lakes in Jackson county, Pelican Lake in Wright county, Bear Lake in Freeborn county and Christina Lake in Douglas and Grant counties and with a 150-yard zone of land adjacent to the margins of the above lakes.

Tower Soudan State Park Is In Operation

Minnesota's Tower Soudan state park, where visitors are taken 2,400 feet below ground to view the inside of an iron ore mine, is in full operation after receiving major rehabilitation.

During the last two years, the passenger cages, the battery-powered narrow-gauge locomotive and phone system have been replaced, pipes repaired, new steel decking installed, the hoist cleaned and repainted and electrical wiring replaced.

This major rehabilitation was made at a cost of over $200,000.

Don Davison, DNR director of parks and recreation, said the work was needed to maintain the facilities in top condition for the safety of park visitors.

The park is located in northern St. Louis county on Lake Vermilion and is the site of Minnesota's first underground iron mine.

Minnesota Is Tops In U.S. Boat Numbers

Minnesota leads the nation in the percentage of its citizens who own boats, the Department of Natural Resources said.

Figures recently released by the U.S. Coast Guard also show that Minnesota is second among all states in the total number of boats licensed.

Coast Guard report says that in Minnesota there is one boat for every seven persons. This is the second year in a row that the state has been in second place in total boat registrations.

Top six states last year in the total number of boats registered were: Michigan, 617,723; Minnesota, 580,393; California, 553,608; Texas, 546,538; Florida, 497,891; Wisconsin, 422,325.

Clearbrook To Host July 12 Slow Pitch Meet

A men's slow pitch softball tournament for Class B and lower ASA-MRPA sanctioned teams will be held Sunday, July 12 in Clearbrook.

Entry fee is $50, plus one new red-stitch softball. Entries are due July 7. Send entries to the Clearbrook Jaycees, Box 46, Clearbrook, MN 56634.

Fish Kills, Weeds Plague State Lakes

It's a bad spring for columnaris disease and curly leaf pondweed, the Department of Natural Resources confirmed.

Colomnaris disease is responsible for many of the dead fish seen recently washed up on shorelines on lakes in the Twin Cities and elsewhere. Biologists say the disease commonly attacks sunfish, carppies and bullheads but sometimes affects other species as well.

It is brought on by a rapid warm up of water when fish are already under stress from the winter months. The rigors of spawning activity and overcrowding are contributing factors.

Symptoms include a red mouth, inflammed gills and a slime that often covers the gills and other portions of the fish.

The disease is present in the lake for a relatively short time and rarely reduces the fish population significantly, say DNR fisheries specialists.

Another headache this year for lakeshore property owners has been large quantities of curly leaf pondweed floating up on beaches. The plant is unusual since it begins growing in lakes during fall, grows all winter and dies in late spring and early summer.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Thief River Falls water utility announced today that the State maximum allowable limit for turbidity in drinking water is being exceeded.

Turbidity is caused by the presence of finely suspended particles such as clay, sand or organic matter in the water. Turbidity can be a problem if it interferes with chlorine disinfection. However, the high turbidity levels do not create any health hazard because the water utility is able to maintain effective levels of chlorine for disinfection.

The Thief River Falls water utility staff is working closely with State Health Department officials to reduce the turbidity to acceptable levels.

Any citizen seeking additional information should contact Allen Lemm at the Water Plant, phone number 681-3809.

Engineer Claims ICBM Inaccuracy Negates MX Need

by Jeanne Hanson
'U' M News Service

Intercontinental ballistic missiles are so inaccurate in finding their targets that a first strike by the Soviet Union might knock out only about half of the U.S. Minuteman missiles, according to a University of Minnesota expert on missile guidance systems.

This lack of accuracy would allow the United States ample time to retaliate, a fact that makes the $108 billion MX system unnecessary. So says J. Edward Anderson, a professor of mechanical engineering at the University of Minnesota institute of technology. A former missile expert for Honeywell, Anderson invented some of the guidance systems now used by the U.S. air force.

Anderson's calculations and arguments are presented in articles recently submitted to "Science" and "Foreign Affairs." He has been called to Washington next week to meet with congressional staff, the National Press club, and other gatherings sponsored by the Federation of American scientists. Support for Anderson's views has already come from IBM research consultant Richard Garwin and an August 1980 issue of "Defense Week."

The vision of a sleek, silver missile, guided unerringly toward its target by computerized controls and exploding in white heat upon successful impact, is a mental picture commonly held by most people.

But, Anderson says, intercontinental ballistic missiles are not all that accurate. In fact, anywhere from 0 to 900 of 1,000 U.S. missiles could survive a first strike, he said. The high "miss probabilities" would allow time for retaliation. "I don't think the Soveits are crazy enough to strike against such odds," he said.

Missile accuracy is affected by five factors, Anderson said. The first is bias error. Created mostly by the combined gravity of the earth and the moon, this tug on airborne missiles can create a target error of up to several miles, throwing a "systematic and devastating uncertainty" into any Soviet plans to destroy individual Minuteman silos, Anderson said.

Figuring the effect of gravity into a guidance system is too complicated because several unknown factors are involved, Anderson said. The effects of the moon's pull on different parts of our land and water surface, although generally known, change every day as the moon moves. The earth is a mosiac of its own "gravity anomalies," patches of stronger and weaker gravity created by the earth's rotation and motion within the earth's core.

The Soviets are well aware of the patterns in their own missile test areas, but they have naturally not tested their missiles over U.S. territory. Thus, the Soviets have no idea what U.S. gravitational patterns would do to the paths of their missiles. Nor have they launched the dozens of navigational satellites that would be necessary to learn these patterns and to correct for them ahead of time. Even if such Soviet satellites were launched, they could be "jammed" electronically and rendered ineffective.

In figuring gravity's effects, an error of even four parts per million can throw missile accuracy off by 300 feet, Anderson said. Once an ICBM has begun its descent, its path cannot be changed. Traveling at 16,000 mph, it becomes wrapped in an ionized shock layer that makes its computer guidance systems unreachable. The Pentagon is now beginning to concede the existence of bias error, Anderson said.

Circle of error probability (CEP) also affects missile accuracy. Created by random errors in missile alignment, velocity formulas, gyroscope guidance, rocket timing, computer instructions, and simple "glitches" in parts from ignition switches to bomb fuses, this type of inaccuracy can be considerable. A system that is initially fairly correct can quickly be thrown off substantially by vibrations and changes in temperature and humidity. Although the Soviets probably check their missiles frequently, during an attack there can be no dress rehearsal, Anderson said. A CEP of 300 feet is often claimed for ICBMs, but 600 to 900 feet is more likely, he said.

Bomb size can also throw off accuracy. Large bombs contribute to better accuracy, Anderson said, but even with warheads larger than those the Soveits currently use small bias errors and small CEPs can lead to a significant number of misses. Doubling the two types of error increases the miss probability by a factor of six.

A fourth problem is what is called fratricide. A follow-up missile cannot be sent directly behind its "brother" to cover for glitches and mis-aims because the missiles tend to destroy one another. If one explodes, even in mid-air or off target, the massive electromagnetic radiation and the shock wave would vaporize the other. They must be several minutes apart, which gives the attacked country time to strike back.

Finally human factors play a role in target accuracy. Any defense system that requires thousands of operations people is vulnerable to morale problems, common drunkenness, labor shortages, and problems caused by poor training. Soviet military brass is well enough acquainted with these problems alone to make them unlikely to authorize a first strike, Anderson said.

Soviet leaders are also aware of other factors likely to discourage them, he said. The risk of retaliation from the United States or its European allies during the 30 minutes it would take for an ICBM to hit is significant. The effect of the subsequently released radioactivity on the earth's ozone layer is an additional deterrent. Likewise, dust from the explosions would have a disastrous effect on worldwide agriculture, a fact the Soviets are unlikely to ignore.

U.S. volnerability to a first strike attack by the Soviets is a myth that has been perpetrated for too long, Anderson said. Money that would go toward building the MX missile, which he feels is unnecessary, should be spent on much more mundane projects, such as boosting military wages, improving NATO forces in Europe, rebuilding the U.S. navy, and upgrading the present Minuteman system. Recognizing that the United States is not truly vulnerable should shape our entire strategic policy, he said.

In 1948, General Motors Corp. and the United Automobile Workers (CIO) signed the first major contract with an "escalator" clause, providing for wage increases based on the Consumer Price Index, according to "Important Events in American Labor History, 1778-1978," a U.S. Department of Labor publication.

NEW TAX EXEMPT INSURANCE PLANS

Some encouraging news for those who are discouraged because of tax restrictions on life insurance premiums and moderate interest dividends; Hutton Life Insurance Company has 2 new plans that are flexible, tax-exempt and offer high interest rates.

The first is called COMPLETELIFE. This differs from traditional life insurance in that it accumulates cash value, not at the current low rates (under 5%), but at a high rate of 10% (comparable to savings investments). This accumulation is tax exempt from income or capital gains tax. You can also make partial withdrawals (up to the amount of premiums deposited) TAX FREE. With traditional plans you usually take out a loan on your policy and pay interest on your own money. With Completelife you can also change the face amount of the policy and schedule date for paying the premium—all this without paying an additional service charge. Lastly—if you just happen to miss a payment, or decide not to pay the premium for a year or two, the policy does not lapse.

The second plan is called VALUEPLAN. This works like Completelife, but in addition it automatically increases the face value of your policy by 8% each year (without increasing your premiums)—this provides a built-in hedge against inflation.

This brand new idea in life insurance, aside from the tax-exempt benefits, is an answer to the age-old question, "Which is better, term or whole life?" With their premium and pay-out flexibility, Completelife and Valueplan can be both. Yes, inexpensive insurance protection, and a cash value accumulation for use in emergencies. Hutton's new policies serve both needs, and can be shaped by the consumer who determines the proportions and mixes to his or her own taste.

Veterans And Survivors Get $172 Million

More than 57,000 Minnesota veterans and 23,690 survivors of veterans shared in $172.4 million paid during 1980 in the form of Veterans administration compensation and pension.

Morris Nooner, Jr., director of the VA regional office and insurance center at Fort Snelling, said that 41,131 state veterans received compensation payments for service-connected disabilities while 15,872 received agency pension payments for non-service-connected disabilities.

Nooner noted that over 500 female veterans in Minnesota were receiving compensation or pension. Sixty-five were disabled during the Vietnam Era and 203 during World War II.

Emphasizing the financial impact on Minnesota residents, Nooner said that, nationwide, these combined payments totaled $11 billion — nearly one-half of the Veterans Administration's annual budget of $24.2 billion.

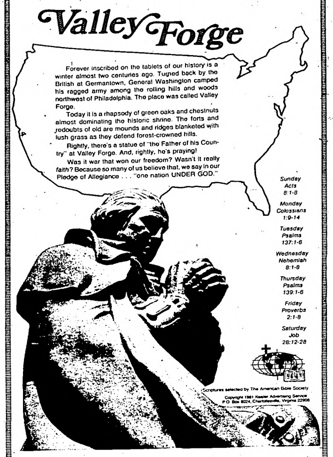
Valley Forge



Forever inscribed on the tablets of our history is a winter almost two centuries ago. Turned back by the British at Germantown, General Washington camped his ragged army among the rolling hills and woods northwest of Philadelphia. The place was called Valley Forge.

Today it is a rhapsody of green oaks and chestnuts almost dominating the historic shrine. The forts and redoubts of old are mounds and ridges blanketed with lush grass as they defend forest-crowned hills.

Rightly, there's a statue of "the Father of his Country" at Valley Forge. And, rightly, he's praying!

Was it war that won our freedom? Wasn't it really faith? Because so many of us believe that, we say in our Pledge of Allegiance . . . "one nation UNDER GOD."

Multiple Use — Is It Bad?

According to an editorial in last week's issue of the Kittson County Enterprise at Hallock, the new U.S. secretary of interior is totally willing to sell, give away or lease most of the nation's holdings to anyone who thinks he can exploit them for a dollar of profit. The assessment is undoubtedly a little harsh.

James Watt was strongly opposed for the appointment by a number of environmental and conservation groups who feared his capitalistic views. In contrast to past secretaries who may have been too rigid in upholding the sanctity of national resources, Watt undoubtedly sounds like a maverick when he proposes actually using some of those properties.

Yes, we would strongly object to the permanent damage or sale of lands which have been placed in trust for all of the people of our nation. No, we certainly don't object to the utilization of some of those lands for profit in keeping with sound principles of conservation. And we interpret conservation as "wise use" rather than "preservation".

We have long advocated multiple use and the utilization of renewable resources. Forested areas, for instance, should be used for picnicking, hiking, hunting, bird watching, education, timber harvesting and reforestation which repeats the cycle. It is total waste not to utilize the products of national forests on a sustained basis.

Grasslands should be available for limited grazing and valuable minerals should be responsibly mined. Water storage areas should help with flood control and, where suitable, with power generation as well as recreation such as boating and fishing. Shallow water areas should be managed for waterfowl and wildlife, but also maintain water tables and assist in flood prevention.

Fragile ecosystems in special circumstances, however, should be preserved and protected for the educational value and historical significance they provide. Actual sale of federally-held lands should take place only in very limited and extreme circumstances, and probably primarily in urban areas and in such facilities as abandoned military bases, etc.

For one person's viewpoint, however, here is what the editorial in the Kittson County Enterprise had to say:

Probably one of the strangest phenomena to come along in politics in recent years is the so-called "Sagebrush Rebellion", personified in the Reagan administration by Secretary of the Interior James Watt.

Hardly a day goes by without fantastic reports of the latest giveaway to special interests in the name of free enterprise, national security, and even, preposterously, religion.

Any excuse, no matter how lame, is trotted out to explain the eager appeasement of the land speculators and developers, the oil interests, or those simply intent on turning national parks into profitable hot dog stands.

The spirit of the rebellion, Watt is trying hard to make us believe, lies in the glorious virtues of states' rights, individual initiative, and capitalism.

The federal government is portrayed as the bad guys, grabbing land away from widows and ranchers and locking it up for the sole enjoyment of the eastern establishment idle rich, and members of the Sierra Club. A poor, hard-working sheep herder can't hardly make it no more.

Given the historical reluctance of the individual states to protect anything if the price is right, it should really come as no surprise that the federal government has taken on the role of protector of the environment.

The capacity of the federal government to preserve the public lands for the benefit of all citizens is vastly superior to that of the states, and the role of the Secretary of the Interior has always been to oversee the protection of those resources that belong to the nation.

Along comes Watt, out of the wild west to tell us that profit has priority in this administration.

Multiple use is the latest catchword. It's meant to imply that no harm will come to the environment as long as private enterprise is allowed to fully utilize the ingenuity and resourcefulness at its commnand to extract the most dollars from whatever is available like the coal companies in Appalachia and Reserve Mining in the Iron Range. Industry only has our best interests at heart and a few bucks on the side doesn't hurt.

Straight from his last role as attorney for the Mountain States Legal Defense Fund, Watt has emerged via corporate contribution to the position of generous keeper of the public trust. Ask and you shall receive; whether it's drilling rights off the California coast or motor boats in the Boundary Waters, your chances of success are greatly enhanced with the new Secretary and the administration as long as you can show a profit.

Watt's rationalization for this incredible attitude is that there probably won't be any future generations around to enjoy the scenery anyway, so might as well use it up while we can.

Lots Of Good News

Following editorial is from the "Publisher's Auxiliary":

Probably the oldest complaint known to journalism is the one about newspapers only printing "bad news."

If the critics read their newspapers as meticulously as they complained about them, they might realize that the average paper is actually crammed with good news.

Bad news actually makes the front page precisely because it is so unusual; no editor would have the nerve to run a headline proclaiming "Everything Went Well Today" for fear of boring even the critics into skipping that issue.

But only a cursory glance at the rest of the paper shows how false the "bad news" charge is, especially in a small newspaper that often serves as the community bulletin board.

It's also impossible to read a discouraging word or a glum thought in those relentlessly upbeat and omnipresent portions of the paper devoted to advertising. Even a "going out of business" sale is good news to the bargain-hunting consumer. If you can believe all the newspaper ads, the world is an ecstatic wonderland of super sales, quality products, lifetime guarantees and special offers.

Among the usual pet columns, business briefs and cheery local features, you find dozens of photos showing smiling people giving and receiving charity checks, accepting awards or winning at the garden club's annual show.

Although they are found at the back of most papers, classifieds are the best news of all, because everybody there wants somebody or something necessary.

The fact is that the average newspaper carries a lot more good news than bad, and even those front-page stories are perceived with mixed emotions by varied community interests. After all, the defeat of a sewer bond issue has to be a victory for some taxpayers, and a lurid scandal in one political party makes the opposition very happy, indeed.

About the only undiluted bad news in any paper is the obituary column.

In a complex community with many points of view, "good" and "bad" are only relative terms, defined more often by the reader than the newspaper. The saying usually goes: "No news is good news," but in any community, the truly bad news would be no news at all.

How To Be Happier

A century ago, Robert Louis Stevenson devised a number of rules to help people live happier, more productive lives. These rules may be a century old, but they are still excellent guidelines.

(1) Make up your mind to be happy — learn to find pleasure in simple things.

(2) Make the best of circumstances. No one has everything, and everyone has something of sorrow.

(3) Don't take yourself too seriously.

(4) Don't let criticism worry you, you can't please everyone.

(5) Don't let your neighbors set your standards, be yourself.

(6) Do things you enjoy doing, but stay out of debt.

(7) Don't borrow trouble. Imaginary things are harder to bear than actual ones.

(8) Since hate poisons the soul, do not cherish enmities and grudges.

(9) Have many interests. If you can't travel, read about places.

(10) Don't hold postmortems or spend time brooding over sorrows and mistakes.

(11) Don't be the one who never gets over things.

(12) Keep busy at something. A very busy person never has time to be unhappy.

Borrowed Nonsense:

"If your girlfriend told you to go out and get a job before she'd marry you, what would you look for?"
"Another girlfriend."

"Would you like a chance on a raffle for a poor widow?"
"Do you have any chances on a rich widow?"

NEWS Of Transportation

A GOOD WAY TO GET-THERE

The younger set will call these, "LRVs" (light rail vehicles); those with longer memories may say, "trolley" or "streetcars."

Trolley cars, once an important part of America's cityscapes, gradually clanged their way off the streets and into memory.

But even as America rushed along into a honeymoon with the automobile, European cities clung to their economical and energy-efficient urban transport systems, systematically improving and modernizing them.

Not surprisingly, as American cities have begun to require improved modes of urban transportation—systems more compatible with the challenges of the '80s—the concept of street/rail transportation appeared as a viable, practicable and effective option.

A new 16-mile mass transit line is, in fact, now under construction in San Diego, California, using vehicles that are modern, technologically advanced successors to the trolley cars of yesteryear.

These LRVs (light rail vehicles) run on tracks which may be installed at street level. Power is delivered by an overhead wire.

Passenger comfort and safety have received maximum consideration, according to the prime vehicle contractor for the San Diego System, Siemens Corporation, located in Iselin, New Jersey, the U.S. subsidiary of Siemens AG, the German-based international electrical and electronics giant.

Rubber cushioned, resilient wheels have an acoustic dampening feature to eliminate the screech and clatter generally associated with rail vehicles. The windows and roof fans are part of a ventilation system which allows for a complete change of air not less than once every three minutes.

The new light rail vehicle systems may make a heavy dent in urban congestion!

Teriyaki Chicken

It's so easy nowadays to order out for chicken. But, it doesn't have the loving touch that home baked chicken has. And, chicken is so versatile. How about going oriental? Teriyaki Chicken brings your family the delicious taste of this traditional Japanese dish.

The spicy sauce begins with maple flavored syrup. Mix it with soy sauce, sherry, seasonings, then cook on top of the range or in your microwave oven. As the chicken bakes, baste it generously with this flavorful sauce. Garnish with kumquats and serve. Don't forget to serve the extra sauce so you can continue to enjoy its delicate, spicy flavor.

Instead of ordering out, your family will request Teriyaki Chicken again and again. It's easy — and fun — to stay in and enjoy this savory Japanese style meal.

Teriyaki Chicken

1/2 cup maple flavored table syrup
1/3 cup soy sauce
2 tablespoons dry sherry or water
1/2 teaspoon ginger
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
One 2-1/2 to 3 lb. broiler-fryer, cut up

Heat oven to 375°F. In medium saucepan, combine all ingredients except chicken; mix well. Bring mixture to a full rolling boil over high heat. Reduce heat. Continue cooking over medium-high heat about 6 minutes. Remove from heat; cool.

Place chicken pieces skin side up in 11x7-inch baking dish. Bake for 55 to 60 minutes, brushing occasionally with sauce during last 40 minutes, or until chicken is tender. Combine remaining sauce and pan juices; serve as additional sauce with chicken. Garnish with watercress and kumquats, if desired. Makes 4 servings.

Microwave Oven Directions: Combine all ingredients except chicken in 1-1/2-qt. glass bowl; mix well. Cook at HIGH about 8 minutes, stirring after each 3 minutes of cooking; cool. Place chicken pieces skin side down in 11x7-inch baking dish, placing larger pieces in corners of dish and smaller pieces in center. Cook at HIGH about 8 minutes; drain well.

Turn chicken skin side up; brush with about 1/3 of sauce. Continue cooking at HIGH about 5 minutes; brush again with about 1/3 of sauce. Continue cooking at HIGH 5 to 8 minutes or until chicken is tender. Let stand about 5 minutes before serving. Serve as directed above.

Tradition Kept Alive With Folklife Festival

by Kathryn Lindeman
Smithsonian
News Service

Pied-Piper style, the line of dancing, clapping spectators trails behind the trombone and trumpet sounds of the Dixieland band as it wends its way along the crowded grounds. The smell of bread, fresh from the oven, is spreading through the air and, across the way, workmen raise the ridgepole of a tradiational Finnish-style sauna.

The scene is the Smithsonian's annual Festival of American Folklife, now in the 15th year. A highlight of summertime in Washington, D.C., the festival aims to help keep American customs and folkways alive, giving thousands of visitors a chance to learn who and what gave this country its great variety.

Conducted this year for 10 days, June 24-28 and July 1-5, the outdoor festival on the grounds of the Washington Monument will bring together hundreds of singers, dancers, craftsworkers and cooks from all over the country and, if the past is any guide, their activities will remind onlooking old-timers how things used to be and give the younger generations an idea of what "tradition" is all about.

Last year, an urban teenager watching a country women from the South put up preserves came to understand at last why her grandmother's peach jam always tasted so special, so different from the store-bought kind.

A man from the country learned that it was his father's building techniques which made his childhood home cooler in the summer than a neighbor's house. And he plunged back into the past as carpenters built a house on the National Mall much like the one of his childhood memories.

Producing such a festival each year, the achievement of the Smithsonian's office of folklife programs in cooperation with the National park service, is more than simply "putting on a show," Folklife programs director Ralph Rinzler says. Each festival presentation is researched thoroughly by staff folklorists and contract fieldworkers who bring back to Washington, from cities and towns across the land, taped interviews, recorded music performances, photographs and their own summary reports.

To Rinzler and others, the folklife festival is a way to "mediate between objects in museum cases and the contemporary use of the objects." Visitors can go into the Museum of American History and see a bowl of pitcher much like the one that a potter from North Carolina is forming on his revolving wheel just outside on the Mall. "It shows the living dynamics of culture, and the experience lives on and on."

Then, too, the Smithsonian is a conservation-oriented institution, and this interest extends to preservation of human cultural practices. Such a festival not only gives the audience an appreciation of traditions different from their own but also provides the performers with recognition and eridence of respect for their traditional arts.

Participants are chosen by a very careful process to assure that the best available examples of traditional methods are featured. Participants are not professional entertainers or trained actors. Many of them are modest country people, and they are often amazed that crowds watch attentively as they demonstrate how to do something they've done since childhood, something they did not learn in school but "grew up knowing how to do."

Although many of the people who take part in the festival may not realize it at first, they are being asked to share their skills because they are part of a particular kind of group.

Craftsworkers from the Southeast will make and sell pottery, baskets, quilts and other crafts items while musicians from the region will keep the audiences tapping their toes.

"We want visitors to be able to buy museum-quality objects to take home with them," Rinzler says. "Everything being sold will be made by traidtional craftsworkers — the methods are decumented, we know the background and traditions that lie behind them. And visitors can see demonstrations right there in which craftspeople show just how it's done."

"They'll be clappin' and tappin' at the featival's main stage, too, in time with New England fiddlers, black gospel and blues, Appalachian string band and native American drum music. South Slavic-American musicians and dancers will strum and whirl on the Mall, and visitors may even get a taste of grilled sausage or similar traditional South Slavic-American dishes.

"Folklife and Folklore of the Deaf" will provide the chance for rate insight into what it's like to grow up deaf in a world of hearing people. Interpreters will pave the way during workshops on signing, storytelling and interpreting. Native Americans of the Ojibwa culture from Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan will sing traditional songs, carve pipe stems, tan deerhide and build a canoe.

But no matter whose traditions are demonstrated, it's a way of sharing and learning. It's what the Folklife Festival is all about

NEWS OF YOUTH

SCHOLARSHIPS TO BE AWARDED

Eight $1,000 scholarships are available for young people who have a special skill.

Young people who are exceptionally adept at gardening will be awarded the college scholarships at the 1981 National 4-H Congress, to be held in Chicago from November 29th through December 3rd.

America's 4-H clubs have more than two million members, and they are guided by such objectives as "to develop leadership abilities, build character and assume citizenship responsibilities."

The 4-H National Gardening Awards Program, sponsored by the Ortho Consumer Products Division of Chevron Chemical Co. for the sixth consecutive year, is one way of recognizing the fulfillment of that objective. Noted Dan Hogan, Chevron Vice President, "It's amazing what these young people accomplish through 4-H programs. They learn not only about gardening, but about the free enterprise system as well. Many of our winners have put this knowledge to use with very impressive results."

Over 400,000 young people participate in the gardening award program. The eight national winners receive, in addition to the $1,000 scholarships, free trips to the annual Congress. Ten sectional winners are also awarded free trips. State winners receive a $75 Savings Bond. The top four winners at the county level receive medals of honor.

The gardening awards program, it appears, helps young people grow better plants—and grow better themselves.

Insurance May Not Pay Cost Of Rebuilding

Homeowner's insurance may not pay the full amount to replace of rebuild a home should it be destroyed. A recent study determined that 57 per cent of American homes are underinsured — insured for less than 80 per cent of the amount it would cost to replace or rebuild them in the event they are totally destroyed.

Value of insurance, like everything else, has been eroded by inflation. What may have been adequate coverage for a home a few years ago, now may not give enough protection against unexpected mishaps.

Most insurance companies want their policyholders to insure their home for at least 80 per cent of its total replacement cost. However, many companies require their policyholders to insure their home for 100 per cent of its replacement cost. The replacement cost can be totally different from the purchase price or market value of a home. The replacement cost is how much money it would take to rebuild the home today if it was totally destroyed.

Many insurance companies are trying to keep pace with inflation by putting an inflation caluse in the homeowner's insurance contract. This caluse annually boosts the homeowner's coverage and premium as the cost of living rises. However, even with this caluse, the home may be underinsured. This can happen if the costs of construction, building materials and labor rise faster then the overall cost of living.

To counter these effects of inflation on a homeowner's coverage, some insurance companies have developed optional endorsements that will completely replace or rebuild a home. Such riders help policyholders avoid a major economic loss during a time of rapid housing construction cost increases."

Volunteerism Offers Route To Relicensure

Teachers may be able to obtain renewal units for relicensure by doing volunteer work, according to a recommendation by a volunteer certification committee representing leading volunteer agencies and the state department of education. The committee, which was initiated by the American cancer society, Minnesota division, also has representatives from the governor's office of volunteer services and Metropolitan state university.

According to Dr. E. Raymond Peterson, associate commissioner of education and a committee member, many volunteer tasks result in direct benefits to the community as a whole or to specific school community populations. "These tasks seem uniquely qualified as activities for which renewal units might be granted," he said. "Skills acquired by volunteers clearly result in increased professionalism and proficiency in many areas, such as management, leadership, research, community organization, communication and public relations."

Examples of some of the activities which might qualify are developing and implementing current and new health agency programs; serving on the planning and-or advisory committees or education-related volunteer programs and involvement in volunteer programs for youth.

Examples of other volunteer experiences which should qualify for relicensure units are listed below. Criteria description is from "Continuing Education, A Decision for Involvement," a Minnesota state department of education publication. Relicensure unit experiences may differ from district to district. Teachers should check their local committees for appropriate experience descriptions.

(1) Supervision of clinical experiences — serving as a volunteer in a supervisory role in such settings as rehabilitation centers, state hospitals, detention centers, residential and drug treatment facilities, specialized camps (i.e. music, sports, language);

(2) Attendance at lectures by persons with expertise in areas for which licensure is required. — attending lectures on health education, preventive health (i.e. American Cancer Society, American Heart Association, etc.); participating in lectures designed to train school volunteers for such programs as Omnibus, Bucket Brigade and Jr. Great Books; attending lectures designed for volunteers in other types of volunteer programs with an emphasis on teaching (i.e. 4-H, scouting, community education);

(3) Volunteer work in professional organizations or situations related to areas for which licensure is requested — developing and implementing current and new health agency program for youth or adults (such as American Cancer Society or Minnesota Lung Association programs); working in day care associations, Minnesota Association for field experience learning, Minnesota Association for Continuing Adult Education, local boards of education, developmental disabilities organizations, PACER, etc.;

(4) Development of demonstrations or curriculum innovations for use with student teachers or in inservice programs — developing curriculum volunteer training programs for almost any type of organization (Junior League, Red Cross, scouting, religious organizations, health agencies);

(5) Creative endeavor (art, music, writing) related to the individual's relicensure — serving as a volunteer in such organizations as community theatres, museums and art galleries, historical societies, regional arts councils, etc., — volunteering skills in writing, graphics, art direction, tv and radio production;

(6) Maintenance and evaluation of an annotated log or record of activities with a class or group — participating in the long-range planning, objective-setting, implementation and evaluation of a volunteer organization program, and documenting these activities;

(7) Direct involvement individually or within a group, to research, plan and implement innovative educational practices — serving on the planning and-or advisory committees of education-related volunteer programs and other appropriate youth programs (i.e. American Cancer Society, Bucket Brigade, Omnibus, 4-H, Future Farmers-Homemakers, scouting, Jr. achievement, MS Read-A-Thon, etc.);

(8) Leadership experiences, which involve the exericse and-or development of new or broader skills and sensitivities to the school, community and profession — accepting responsibility involved in a volunteer program, whether it be an education effort, provide a needed service in the community or raise funds to support the program.

The volunteer certification committee has sent a letter explaining the proposal to local school district committees for continuing education-relicensure and has also distributed brochures to teachers, outlining the concept in more detail.

For more information about using volunteerism as an avenue to relicensure, contact the Volunteer Certification committee at the American Cancer Society, 2750 Park Ave., Minneapolis, MN 55047, or at the Governor's Office of Volunteer Services, 130 State Capitol, St. Paul, MN 55155.

NEWS OF THE ENVIRONMENT

We can have clean air — and still reach other important social goals.

Can we achieve clean air without sacrificing other pressing social needs? The answer to that question requires a respectful and realistic approach to air quality. The author of this article was the only industry representative on the National Commission on Air Quality, which studied the federal Clean Air Act and made recommendations for changes. He is Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Owens-Illinois, Inc., one of the world's leading and most diversified manufacturers of packaging products.

By Edwin D. Dodd

The Clean Air Act passed in 1970 started a massive national effort to cope with a national problem. Since its passage, social conditions have changed.

Dodd

Our economy has become more interdependent with that of other nations. Inflation has become chronic. Our productivity growth has sharply declined. Our energy problems and our dependence on foreign oil have been brought more clearly into focus.

Unquestionably, the Clean Air Act has improved air quality and must continue to do so. The Act's primary standards are set on the basis of protecting public health without consideration of economic factors.

This is proper. However, in developing the various clean air programs necessary to meet these health standards, other goals of our society and economic practicality must be considered.

We also must realize that in implementing these standards the public can be protected against unreasonable risks, but that it is impossible to protect everyone from all risks.

The Act requires a large commitment of the nation's resources. The air standards which are the basis of the Act must be founded on sound scientific documentation which should be subjected to rigorous peer review by an independent group. There is a real question as to whether such review is currently scientifically adequate or sufficiently independent.

One of the present programs necessitates lengthy and complicated regulatory activity resulting in little or no benefit to the air quality except for pristine areas. Therefore, it should apply only to activities affecting those pristine areas.

Acid rain has been discussed at length. However, a direct cause and effect relationship between specific emissions and acid deposition has not been determined.

In the near future, as the results of the massive research now underway become available, a consensus will develop on actions to eliminate this phenomenon. It would be unwise at this time to require expensive and premature action that might later prove to have been unnecessary.

Many experts have determined that the cost of our automobile emission program is not justified by commensurate benefits. At this time when it is crucial to conserve gasoline, to revitalize our depressed domestic automobile industry and to increase American productivity, it is an inappropriate use of national resources to require more stringent automotive emission standards than are necessary to achieve national air quality goals.

The industrial community doesn't want to sacrifice clean air goals. However, industry does believe that certain amendments to the Act can make the law work more efficiently in obtaining reasonable air quality goals consistent with other important national social, economic and energy goals.

"The role-playing was harder than anything I've done since."

Dan Maul, supervisor and ad salesman for Credit Publishing Co., Minneapolis, had this to say about the Annual Ad Skills Course:

"The course was a real confidence builder, because there was a lot of constructive criticism. I do some ad selling in my job, most of it on the phone, and I'm constantly using methods and techniques I learned in the course."

"The one-on-one interviews were difficult, as hard as anything else I've done, and the best thing is—the feedback is immediate. Then, you do it over again, and you really learn what advertising is about."

The 6th annual Advertising Skills Course will be offered in two separate sessions this year. The first takes place July 6-10 at the Anoka Area Vocational-Technical Institute. In addition, the course will be offered August 10 through 14 at the Alexandria Vocational-Technical Institute. Both sessions are limited to 25 students.

If you're interested, write the Minnesota Newspaper Association, 84 S. 6th Street, Minneapolis, for entrance qualifications. Cost of the Advertising Skills Course is $60.

Hill-Burton Plan Allows Help On Care

Just about everyone needs some kind of help paying for health care.

For some, that help may take the form of health insurance. Others may be able to take advantage of some government program, like Medicare, Medicaid or general assistance.

There is one source of help, however, that not many people seem to know about. If you're eligible, you may be able to get services from a hospital or some other health care facility for free, or for less than it costs to provide the services, under the federal Hill-Burton program.

Many hospitals, nursing homes and other health care facilities must offer this "uncompensated" Hill-Burton care, as a way of repaying federal grants or loans which they got through the Hill-Burton program. The program, which was in operation from 1946 to 1974, provided money for the building or remodeling of health care facilities.

Hill-Burton care is not "charity" care. Every Hill-Burton facility must provide a certain amount of free or below-cost care, every year, for a certain number of years after the last time it received any Hill-Burton money. The facility can decide what kinds of services it will offer under the program. Physicians' services, however, are not covered.

The facility must put up signs — in the admissions office, the business office and the emergency room — to alert patients about the program. Each patient must also get a written notice, explaining what's available under the program.

There are about 100 Hill-Burton facilities in Minnesota that still offer a certain amount of free or below-cost care, according to Jacquie Hossler of the state health department's health systems division. They could be providing up to $5½ million worth of uncompensated care this year, she said. She urged those who are eligible to take advantage of the program.

Eligibility for the program is based on income, Hossler said. If you make less than the federal government allows in its current community services administration (CSA) guidelines, you may qualify for free health care. But you may be able to make up to twice what the guidelines allow and still qualify for free or below-cost care. That's up to the facility.

The CSA guidelines are subject to change. The facility may be able to tell you what they are currently.

Everyone has a right to apply for Hill-Burton services, Hossler noted. Anyone who wants to receive free or below-cost care must apply at the business office of the facility providing the care. There will usually be someone there to help you with the necessary paperwork, Hossler said. You'll be told if you qualify within two working days.

You can apply for uncompensated care before you go into the facility, while you're there, or after you get out, Hossler said. But she urged people to apply as early as possible, since the facility might stop offering uncompensated care at some point.

If a facility has already provided its quota of uncompensated care for a given year, it can discontinue the program until the following year, Hossler explained. Once the facility has provided enough services to take care of its entire Hill-Burton obligation, it can drop the program permanently.

More information about Hill-Burton is available from the Health Systems Division at the Minnesota Department of Health, (612) 296-5444, or 717 Delaware St. S.E., Minneapolis 55440. The Department can provide the names of any Hill-Burton facilities in your area, Hossler said.

Among Hill-Burton facilities involved in this area are Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls, Riverview hospital in Crookston, Fosston municipal hospital, Kittson county memorial hospital at Hallock, Roseau area hospital and Warroad municipal nursing home.

accent on PANELING

WARM AND WONDERFUL

You can create a great new look — for little money — with just one, two or three sheets of paneling.

Framing a fireplace can enhance the warm appeal of your living or family room and set the tone of the entire area — rustic, elegant, cozy, casual, whatever your preference.

The stunning mantel treatment shown here combines walnut veneered paneling, chrome and mirrors to create an elegant, informal room for entertaining or relaxing. The paneling is applied vertically, using nails and panel adhesive for a bold but simple style.

An accent wall like this creates a focal point in your decorating scheme. Prefinished paneling puts the accent on beauty and economy, because its good looks will last and last.

Paneling is a good choice for the do-it-yourselfer. The 4'x8' panels can be cut in squares or strips, installed horizontally, vertically or diagonally, combined with mirrors or wallpaper. Use your imagination to create your own special look.

For a free booklet on decorating with paneling, write to "Accent on Paneling," Georgia-Pacific Corp., 900 S.W. Fifth Ave., Portland, Ore. 97204.

Three panels and a little imagination can go a long way in making a good-looking room even better.

These two fireplace treatments transform ordinary mantels into warm, rustic eye-pleasers.

'Scientific' Side Of T. Jefferson Is Unveiled

by Madeleine Jacobs
Smithsonian
News Service

The year was 1801. One of the world's most dreaded plagues, smallpox, having crossed the Atlantic with the early colonists, was again taking its tragic toll in the new American nation. The disease struck ruthlessly, nearly killing off entire tribes of American Indians and erupting in devastating outbreaks in the cities and towns.

A Harvard college physician, Dr. Benjamin Waterhouse, had a plan to stop the scourge by using the vaccination techniques discovered in England only five years earlier. But everywhere he turned, even when he appealed to President John Adams, his proposal met with indifference.

Finally in December, Waterhouse turned to another political figure, a man renowned for his role in establishing the fledgling country.

Within 24 hours, the physician received an enthusiastic response. Waterhouse proposed a nationwide vaccination program, and the statesman personally distributed the vaccine to physicians in Philadelphia, Virginia, Washington and elsewhere. Later, the political leader provided Lewis and Clark with vaccine to distribute among the Indians they were bound to encounter on their overland expedition.

That man was none other than Thomas Jefferson, who had succeeded Adams as president in March. His long-forgotten role in helping to eradicate smallpox in the former Colonies was one of several surprises uncovered by Smithsonian historian Silvio Bedini while tracking down information on Jefferson's scientific pursuits for an exhibition at the National Museum of American History.

The little-known scientific side of Jefferson's distinguished career has been studied by Bedini for many years. In the course of his research, the historian examined virtually all of the statesman's 35,000 letters and papers and located many of Jefferson's scientific instruments and collections, all of which had been sold at auction and dispursed after his death July 4, 1826.

The detective work turned up, among other things, a dusty "report on the Methods for Obtaining Fresh Water From Salt," prepared by Jefferson at the request of the House of Representatives in 1791. It may well be the U.S. government's first scientific publication.

"Jefferson was never a scientist," Bedini acknowledges, "but he was surely one of the most accomplished men of science. Many people know that our third president was an architect and an inventor. But this man was into everything. He was an agronomist, archaeologist, astronomer, botanist, meterorologist, naturalist, paleontologist, surveyer — to name a few of his endeavors.

"Above all, his greatest achievement was as a promoter of science in the United States. He used his public offices at every opportunity to urge the application of science as the most certain means of achieving 'the freedom and happiness of man.' "

This was a daring role for a statesman in an age in which there were no real American scientists by our modern definition and at a time when popular demand for science was lacking. "Science was an avocation for most of those who loved it," historian John C. Greene writes of the period, "and even those who taught... in the colleges were hard pressed with other duties."

Jefferson's "other duties" occupied more than 50 years of his life — as author of the Declaration of Independence, governor of Virginia, minister to France, secretary of state, vice president and president for two terms. But he always found time for his not-so-secret love.

"Science is my passion, politics my duty," Jefferson wrote to a friend in 1791 while serving as secretary of state.

It was a passion instilled in Jefferson as a child. His father, Peter, a land developer and surveyor, encouraged Tom's consuming curiosity about the world around him. As a young man, he developed a peculiar penchant for recording in pocket memo books the smallest details of daily life and nature. Nothing was too trivial: Jefferson once recorded how many shovels of dirt were needed to fill a grave.

While growing up on the Virginia frontier, the young Jefferson also developed a life-long affection for the Indians and their culture. His curiosity about their origins and customs led him around 1780 to excavate an ancient Indial mound near his home.

Like archaeologists today, the then-governor of Virginia was not merely interested in collecting artifact; he wanted to resolve speculations about the purpose and structure of Indian burial places.

Working slowly, he meticulously recorded his observation and examined every bit of evidence he unearthed. "With no precedent to guide him," Bedini says, "he anticipated the techniques of modern-day archaeology by almost a century."

Closely related to his interest in Indians were Jefferson's conjectures about the origins of the universe and the Earth and prehistoric forms of life. In Jefferson's day, fossil bones were just beginning to be discovered in Kentucky, New York, Virginia and elsewhere, and the lanky Virginian avidly collected whatever he could get hold of. Soon his home was carmmed with an odd assortment of mastodon jawbones, sharks' teeth, musk ox bones and remains of an extinct ground sloth, which he named the "Megalonyx."

The sheer weight of his reputation transformed the study of fossils from an oddity into a respectable pursuit, Bedinin notes, and for this reason, Jefferson today is often called "the father of American paleontology."

Always more than just a collector, Jefferson firmly believed in the practical value of science. A farmer at heart, he considered agriculture "a science of the very first order." In 1788, Jefferson applied mathematical principles to solve a design problem of wooden plows. "In the late 18th century, the shape of a plow was determined by the skill of the person who made it," Bedini explains, "and there was no way to reproduce a successful design."

While serving as minister of France, Jefferson designed a new mouldboard plow, which, he noted proudly, could be readily reproduced for the first time with nothing more than a saw and adze "by the coursest workman by a process so exact that its shape shall never be varied by a single hair's breadth." It was widely acclaimed though never widely used.

Jefferson liked to tinker with tools and furniture, modifying them for his own requirements. An inveterate gadgeteer, he freely adapted the devices of others and developed several new inventions, including a forerunner of today's swivel chair, a portable writing desk on which he drafted the Delcaration of the Independence, a walking stick which converted into a folding chair and a musical stand for a quintet.

His inventiveness even took him into the realm of national security. As secretary of state, Jefferson designed a wheel cipher to protect the confidentiality of American diplomatic correspondence. His device was never adopted — he was advised that it was not secure — and was soon forgotten. But between 1917 and 1922, it was independently re-invented and used successfully by American military forces through World War II. Shortly after the "new" U.S. Army Cipher Device M-94 was issued in 1922, scholars discovered Jefferson's specifications for it among his papers. Incidentially, the so-called "secure" cipher used in place of Jefferson's in the late 1790s was quickly decoded by foreign governments.

Jefferson's passion for science often aroused the ire of his political opponents. His revolving chair, invented in 1776, was satirically described by the Federalist press as "Mr. Jefferson's whirl-i-gigs."

But this was tame compared to the scathing epistle President Jefferson received from a youthful William Cullen Bryant, who later became a well-known poet and editor of the New York Evening Post: "Go, wretch, resign thy presidential chair, Disclose thy secret measures, foul or fair, Go, search with curious eyes for horned frogs, 'Mid the wild wastes of Louisiana bogs; Or where the Ohio rolls his turbid stream Dig for huge bones, thy glory and thy theme."

By all accounts, Jefferson was unfazed by his critics. "I was bold in the pursuit of knowledge," Jefferson wrote in 1814, "never fearing to follow truth and reason to whatever results they led, and bearding every authority which stood in their way."

"Whatever his contemporaries may have thought, the fact remains that few individuals and no other chief executive have matched the accomplishments of our third president," Bedini says. "He was an American Leonardo."

Thomas Jefferson was an extraordinarily learned man and the range of his knowledge and inquiry is scarcely believable in the modern age of specialization. Among his many accomplishments:

In Agriculture:

"Agriculture is the first in utility and ought to be the first in respect," Jefferson wrote to a friend in 1803. He devised ingenious solutions for improving the efficiency of his plantations including a machine for shelling corn, an apple press, a mill for making cider and a device for raising water to a roof-top reservoir. He was among the first to undertake contour plowing to prevent soil erosion, and his design of a new wooden plow based on mathematical principles was awarded a gold medal for invention by the French agricultural society.

In Botany:

Jefferson delighted in bringing new plants into this country from his travels abroad. When the Italians tried to prevent the new American nation from cultivating rice by prohibiting the exportation of it, Jefferson arranged for samples to be smuggled out of the country. Late, he introduced rice and olives into South Carolina. Though neither crop took hold, he was particularly proud of his initiative. He introduced the caper into cultivation in this country and was the first person to describe the pecan, calling it the "paccan or Illinois nut."

In Meteorology:

From the time he was a boy, Jefferson faithfully recorded daily notes of rain, temperature and wind. With the help of friends throughout the country, he established a kind of "weather service," the forerunner of the U.S. Weather Bureau established in 1842.

In The Public Service:

"Science is important to the preservation of our republican government and it is also essential to its protection against foreign power," Jefferson wrote in 1821. One of his major achievements was as a promoter of science in the newfound nation. He was involved in or responsible for the establishment of the first scientific agencies of the government and the inspiration for many that came later. On July 4, 1790, he presented to Congress his plan for establishing a system of uniform weights and measures as well as a system of coinage, a plan which eventually led to the National Bureau of Standards and the U.S. Mint. In 1802, he established the U.S. Military Academy, bringing to reality a vision cherished by George Washington. In 1806, he recommended the establishment of a Coast Survey to chart the nation's coasts, shoals and islands, an idea brought to realization in 1807.

Man Killed When Struck On Highway

AMONG CANDIDATES for Miss Thief River Falls honors at the Jaycee Aquacade August 1 will be Elaine Piche of Red Lake Falls. Elaine enjoys a number of sports with bowling high on the list of sports activity. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Piche of Red Lake Falls and a 1981 graduate of Lafayette high school.

Thursday at 9:35 p.m. a bizarre traffic accident on highway 32 about four miles south of Thief River Falls resulted in the death of a Strathcona man and critical injury of another man from Badger.

Killed in the mishap was David Linder, 32, who was pronounced dead at the scene. Hospitalized in critical condition at Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls was David Bushie, 38. Driver of the car involved in the accident, 26-year-old Craig Kruse of St. Hilaire, was not injured.

The Kruse car, southbound on highway 32, struck the two men who were reportedly sitting in the west lane of the highway. Witnesses to the accident, who had driven past the two victims seconds before, said they saw a whiskey bottle in the hand of one of the men as they passed.

According to the state patrol officer who investigated the accident, Bushie was apparently driving his car on highway 32 when it went into the ditch on the west side of the highway, facing north. Bushie and Linder, a passenger in the Bushie car, then apparently abandoned the vehicle and sat down on the highway. The Bushie car itself was not directly involved in the fatal accident.

Witnesses said they saw two cars prior to their own turn out on the shoulder of the road to avoid the men, and that they stopped their vehicle to ask if the men needed help. Receiving no understandable reply, they continued on and reported seeing the next car hit the men.

The state patrol noted that the Bushie car had been reported a few minutes earlier to the law enforcement center as being driven in a careless and dangerous manner on highway 32 south. A description of the car and the occupants matched the Bushie car and the accident victims, the patrol said.

Elaine Piche In Queen Pageant

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of interviews with candidates for the Miss Thief River Falls title at the Jaycee Aquacade pageant Saturday, August 1. Winner of the pageant will represent Thief River Falls at the Miss Minnesota pageant next spring.)

Reigning as Miss Red Lake Falls following her selection at the Red Lake Falls Sno-Fest last winter, Elaine Piche (pronounced pea-shay) is seeking additional royalty roles through competition in the Miss Thief River Falls pageant.

A 1981 graduate of Lafayette high school in Red Lake Falls, she is five feet six inches tall, weighs 135 pounds, has red hair and green eyes. Elaine is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Piche of Red Lake Falls and her pageant talent number will be a skit.

During high school she was a member of the high school band for six years. An "A" honor student throughout her high school years she graduated this spring among the top 10 scholastic students in her class. She plans to attend the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks, studying banking and finance and earning a bacheler of science degree in business administration.

Among her hobbies are crocheting and sewing, as well as such sports as bowling, softball, boating, canoeing and downhill skiing. This summer she is working in Grand Forks, employed by Braun's Fashion, Inc., and Hardee's restaurant.

Asked about her ambition for the future, she said, "I plan to live each day as it comes to its fullest. I want to be happy and reach the goals I have set for myself."

Airplane Crash Kills Newfolden Young Men Sat.

Airplane crash which killed two Newfolden area young men Saturday afternoon is being investigated today by the Federal Aviation administration, according to the Marshall county sheriff's department, which is also conducting an investigation.

Killed in the crash were Donn Harstad, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Harstad, and James Sorenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Sorenson. Both were 24 years of age. Funeral arrangements are pending at the Green Funeral home in Thief River Falls.

According to the Marshall county sheriff's department, the crash happened about 3:45 p.m. Saturday and was witnessed by several family members in a nearby farmyard.

Witnesses reported that the Cessna 150 piloted by Harstad had made a farm field take-off heading south, climbed sharply and then apparently stalled. The plane reportedly leveled off, began to wobble, crashed and exploded. The Newfolden fire department and Warren ambulance service were called to the scene.

The accident happened on the Fred Knitter property in section 30 of Marsh Grove township, about nine miles northwest of Viking. The plane was reportedly owned by Earl Voytilla of Viking.

Investigators from the FAA arrived in the area Sunday to begin their investigation into cause of the crash and are continuing the investigation today.

SENIOR KING AND QUEEN selected for the Goodridge Frontier Days celebration on the Fourth of July weekend were Mr. and Mrs. Oldrich Hoffman of Goodridge. Both are active in the senior citizen group at Goodridge and have been involved community citizens during the pre-retirement years as well.

Sheri Swanson was crowned Miss Goodridge and Mr. and Mrs. Oldrich Hoffman were crowned senior king and queen at the Goodridge dinner theatre Friday evening. The event, which included the melodrama "The Farmer's Daughter", was the kick-off for the "Frontier Days" Fourth of July celebration sponsored by the Goodridge area historical society.

Miss Swanson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Swanson, presented an original reading entitled "Reflections of the Past" as her talent number. Judges based their decision on talent, appearance and public appeal. Contestants for the title were between 16 and 19 years of age and the new Miss Goodridge will represent the community at area events.

Other contestants included Jennifer Langan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Langan, who presented a flute solo; Lisa Kriel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Kriel, who sang a vocal solo; and Bernice Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Anderson, who presented a reading.

Each of the contestants was presented with a gift from the historical society and Miss Swanson received a bouquet of roses and crown. The candidates were also guests of the society at the dinner Friday evening. More than 125 people attended the event.

Mr. and Mrs. Oldrich Hoffman have been active in senior citizen efforts just as they have been active in community affairs throughout their younger years. Oldrich was able to obtain a grant to remodel the old liquor store building in Goodridge into a senior citizen center and also has been named as supervisor of the job and chief carpenter. His wife, Hilda, is vice president of the senior citizen group.

Oldrich served on the Production Credit association board from 1958 to 1977 and received a plaque for his service from the Credit Bank of St. Paul. He and Hilda were Pennington county valley farmer and homemaker in 1973 and received an award from the Red River Valley winter shows at Crookston.

For 15 years Hoffman served on the Goodridge school board and for six prior years was a member of the board of the "Old Glory" school in the Highlanding area of eastern Pennington county. For many years he was a member of the Farmers Union and in recent years has been active in the National Farmers organization (NFO), serving two terms as county treasurer. He also served for more than 20 years on the Faith Lutheran church council at Goodridge.

Oldrich farmed in Pennington county from 1935 until his retirement from farming in 1975. He now enjoys hobbies of fishing and repairing appliances for neighbors as well as his senior citizen activities.

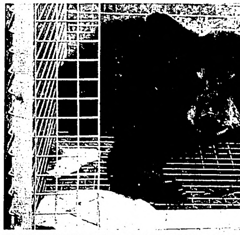
From Oklee Area To Mayo Farm . . .

Bear Cub To Aid In Research



SUBJECT OF STUDY on how bears can "shift gears" from autumn activity to winter lethargy will be this youngster captured recently in a bee yard near Oklee. The cub has been sent to the Institute Hills farm, the animal research farm of the Mayo clinic at Rochester.

Bears don't hibernate.

Sure; and fish can't swim and birds don't fly, right?

Wrong. And if you insist on thinking that bears do hibernate, you're still wrong, according to Dr. Paul Zollman, veterinarian in charge of the Institute Hills farm of the Mayo clinic at Rochester.

"A bear isn't a true hibernator," Dr. Zollman says. "He remains warm during his winter lethargy or winter sleep. His body temperature never drops below 92 degrees (99 to 100 degrees is normal). He burns up from one-third to three-fourths of a pound of fat a day for energy and water and can be awakened in a matter of several minutes."

What does this have to do with the Thief River Falls area? Just that a bear cub from this area will be one of Dr. Zollman's research animals at the Institute Hills farm where research on "how the bear shifts gears" has been underway for the past 10 years. A young cub captured when its mother was killed while raiding a bee yard in the Oklee area was sent to the Mayo research farm recently.

Craig Backus, conservation officer for the Minnesota department of natural resources in Thief River Falls, had the cub for a short time before it was transferred to the Thief Lake wildlife management area. Backus then brought it back to Thief River Falls and it was transferred from here to Rochester by Jack Heather, a DNR employee passing through this area from a conference in Canada.

Heather's trip was not totally uneventful. The odor of a confined bear cub not being too pleasant, Heather had rolled down the windows of his station wagon. In passing through Pelican Rapids, where a sidewalk sale was in progress, the bear began moaning in near-human sounds. As Heather stopped for traffic lights the sound drew considerable attention from sidewalk crowds, but Heather said he merely smiled, waved and drove on.

Dr. Zollman said that the farm has had from two to four

2 Participate In Cosmetology Europe Tour

Two students from the Thief River Falls cosmetology program at the area vocational-technical institute will be participating in a European Tour for Cosmetologists July 10 through August 1.

Tour, conducted every year, is sponsored by the Hennepin Technical Centers and the Cosmetology Advisory Committee.

The 1981 cosmetology program will involve three weeks of studies during which students will attend Morris Masterclass International and Alan International School of Hairdressing in London. Educational experience will include lectures, demonstrations, and "hands-on" experience.

Goals of the program, according to information supplied by Dolores Bakke, program head in Thief River Falls, are to acquire European techniques and knowledge that increase students' earning power; develop human relations skills and attitudes important for success as a cosmetologist; and develop an awareness of cosmetology culture in the world community.

School day consists of approximately three to four hours of lecture and four to five hours of practical experience. Cultural activities within the program include a weekend tour to Edinburgh, Scotland, a visit to Westminster Abbey and the Tower of London, and viewing the royal palace guards and English theatre performance.

Students receive a certificate from the Hennepin Technical Centers upon completion of the program.

Red Tape Hurts Road Programs Says MGRI

Transportation Subcommittee of the U.S. Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works was recently warned that unless improvements are made in the relationship between federal, state and local governments, the Midwest's road system will fall into irreparable decay.

In addressing the committee, which conducted hearings in Fargo, July 1, Robert M. Johnson, executive director of Minnesota Good Roads, Inc., (MGRI), provided a historical glimpse of road use during the past 30 years. His conclusion was that while our road system could accommodate the traffic of the '40s, it is woefully deficient for today's farm-to-market travel.

"The trucks are getting bigger, the school buses are getting larger, the number of miles driven on these roads with heavy vehicles is increasing and the ability to finance road improvements is being reduced," Johnson said. "While there has been an excellent partnership between federal, state and local governments through the federal highway program, this partnership has begun to break down because of red tape, environmental restrictions and bureaucratic bungling over the past few years."

On behalf of MGRI, Johnson recommended to the committee that federal aid for the secondary road system be continued and that the bridge funding program be continued and expanded. He also requested that the approval procedure for obtaining federal funding be simplified and accelerated.

Minnesota Good Roads is an association of concerned citizens working together to ensure acequate financing to maintain the quality of Minnesota's road system. The group actively supported Minnesota Gov. Quie's proposed 4-cent-per-gallon increase in the state's gasoline tax and an increase and adjustment of license fees.

Interest Noted In Financial Health Program

State Auditor Arne Carlson has announced that as a result of an article in the May 12 issue of the "Wall Street Journal" on the Minnesota financial health program, his office has been besieged with requests from other cities and state requesting information on how to implement a similar program in their communities.

Minnesota financial health program (MFHP) is designed to take 35 spending and revenue indicators and analyze them over a five-year period with the goal of identifying governmental systems that may be entering financial stress.

Carlson, who announced the program last August in a tour of the state, indicated that this response is due "to the fact that a vast number of governmental systems are awakening to the realities of declining governmental revenue and the need to avoid serious financial problems such as are currently plaguing Cleveland, Chicago, Boston, etc."

"What we want to do," Carlson said, " is make absolutely certain that all local governmental systems are protected from bankruptcy, bond forfeiture of serious financial problems. The truth of the matter is that we can get through the problems of declining revenues provided we thoroughly plan our financial future. Good accounting systems can be a tremendous asset to local policy makers and we want to make certain that the Financial Health Program is used as a tool for improved financial planning."

Carlson stated that he and Beth Sullivan, director of the program, will be presenting the first study in Mankato, Rochester, Moorhead and St. Cloud along with the profiles of several other communities in the latter part of July. In the fall the office anticipates having the 181 Minnesota municipalities that have populations exceeding 2,500 involved in the program.

Durenberger's '81 Energy Act Is Applauded

Members of Minnesota's hospitality industry have applauded Sen. David Durenberger for his efforts to make tax credits for the purchase of energy saving equipment available to the commercial sector of the economy.

Durenberger, who has introduced the commercial business energy act of 1981, said the potential for energy savings is great because the means for improving energy efficiency in commercial operations and buildings are available.

The bill is divided into two portions. The first expands the list of items available for credit and includes commercial businesses among the groups to which a credit is available. The second part makes both industry and commercial businesses eligible for energy tax credits for insulation. Presently, only the homeowner is allowed to take such a tax credit.

Commercial sector of the economy accounts for about 14.8 per cent of energy use in the U.S. Durenberger's bill would increase from 10 to 20 per cent the percentage of energy saving investment available for the credit.

"The energy tax credit can be powerful incentive to reduce the amount of energy used in the U.S.," Durenberger said. "Energy saved in commercial buildings is an achievement that is worthy of national attention and encouragement."

Commercial business energy tax act of 1981 has been supported by the Minnesota restaurant, hotel and resort associations.

Index of prices received by Minnesota farmers remained constant at 146 during the month ended June 15, according to the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service. However, it was up 16 per cent from the previous year.

Stability of the price index from the previous month was due to higher prices for dry edible beans, all hay, hogs, slaughter cows, steers and heifers, lambs, eggs and wool which offset price declines for all wheat, corn, oats, barley, soybeans, flaxseed, potatoes, sunflowers, calves, sheep and milk. All hay and dry edible beans reached a record high whereas sheep prices were the lowest since August of 1977.

All hay was up $9 per ton to $86.50; alfalfa hay at $90.50 was up $9 while other hay at $63 was up 50 cents; All sunflowers at $11.90 were down 20 cents from revised May price. Dry edible beans were up $1.30 to $31.50 per hundredweight.

Jobless Pay Benefit Raised $15 July 5

Minnesota's maximum weekly unemployment insurance benefit was raised $15, from $162 to $177 effective Sunday, the Minnesota department of economic security announced.

Barbara Beerhalter, assistant commissioner for unemployment insurance, said the increase will apply to workers who file claims after July 5 and whose average weekly wage is $325 or more. Current $162 maximum weekly benefit will continue to apply for all claims established prior to July 5.

Under state law, the maximum benefit amount is recalculated every July based on the average weekly wage during the previous year. The $177 maximum as of July 5 is 66 and two-thirds per cent of the average weekly wage in 1980, $265.50. The current $162 maximum is 66 and two-thirds of the average wage in 1979, $243.19.

As of June 6, about $153 million in unemployment benefits have been paid compared with nearly $145 million for the same period last year. Total for 1980 was $282 million. Money to pay unemployment insurance comes from taxes paid by employers.

Bear Cub To Aid Research In Rochester

bears a year in the research project, some on loan from the Rochester county park zoo and one which had been kept at the farm until it was 13 years old. That particular animal, named Bruno, weighed up to 600 pounds prior to going into the winter sleep. It developed a spinal condition and had to be destroyed this spring.

The veterinarian contrasted the bear's winter sleep with true hibernators such as the 13-lined ground squirrel (more commonly known as the striped gopher), which drops its body temperature to about 38 degrees and slows its heartbeat from 360 beats a minute all the way down to three beats a minute.

Living of stored fat in the winter means that bears have to put on the fat in the summer and fall. Dr. Zollman said that one cub at the research farm had gone from 53 to 102 pounds in 30 days while being fed only on dog food. He noted that bears on the farm are kept in as near natural conditions as possible, being outdoors most of the time but having a cave available for winter denning.

Blood samples taken from the bears reveal much of the chemical changes of the animals, and they are also monitored for heartbeat, temperature and respiration, including amount of carbon dioxide produced. Female bears give birth and nurse cubs for a couple of months during the winter lethargy without requiring either food or water, and it is believed that urinary function ceases during the denning period as well.

Application of what can be learned in the animal research to be of assistance to humans is at the base of the program. Particularly studied in the research with bears is how the animals can be inactive for long periods of time without muscle atrophy or bone loss.

Dr. Zollman said that animal research at the farm has contributed to findings on low protein diets being helpful in dialysis when there is human kidney dysfunction. Animal studies have also led to other human health improvements.

"We're looking forward to having this little female with us for a long time," Dr. Zollman said about the cub delivered to his care a week ago. "Maybe it will provide us with some of the answers which have eluded us in prior study."

Red Lake And Marshall Share 5-County Grant

Red Lake and Marshall counties have been awarded a community support program grant from the Minnesota department of public welfare to provide services to individuals who are experiencing disabling effects of long-term emotional problems, according to Richard Ramey of the Northwestern mental health center at Crookston.

The $108,000 award, a cooperative grant for six counties in northwestern Minnesota, will provide special services which will include outreach counseling, crisis intervention and assistance and training in daily living skills necessary for independent functioning in the community. Services of the grant will be provided through the center at Crookston.

The grant will provide for the continuation of services in Polk, Norman and Mahnomen counties, as well as for new services in Kittson in addition to Red Lake and Marshall counties.

Objectives of the program are to increase the level of coping skills for individuals living independently in the community, to assist individuals in securing necessary financial resources for independent living and to help secure adequate housing, as well as to increase the level of work skills. The long term goal of the program is to reduce the current level of hospitalization in psychiatric facilities far from family, friends and employment.

In addition, special vocation services are provided through the occupational development center in Crookston for individuals working toward increasing their employment skills, with the ultimate goal for some being the re-entry into the work force.

Available evaluation information from the first year of the operation of the program at Northwestern mental health center indicates that progress has been made in achieving the program goals.

Community support program staff report that the program is part of an overall effort to provide a supportive network to individuals who experience chronic emotional problems. Staff also note that northwestern Minnesota has experienced an increase in the level of services available to this target population, as well as increase in the effort of existing services to help this group of people to more effectively survive in their home community.

Additional information about the program may be obtained by writing program staff at the Northwestern Mental Health Center, Box 603, Crookston, MN 56716, or by phone at 281-3940.

Gem Show Set At Fairgrounds In St. Paul

Upper midwest gem and mineral show will be opening on the Minnesota state fairgrounds at 10 a.m. July 10. For tht fifth consecutive year, the biggest gem and mineral show in the upper midwest, will open its doors to the rockhound, hobbyist, and general public.

As in previous years, the sponsors will be adding another new feature to the show. This year, the public will have an opportunity to attend a live auction of lapidary equipment, handmade jewelry, and even rocks from which jewelry can be made. The auction, being held on the second day of the show, (July 11), will start at 5 p.m. The items that will be up for bid are provided by the 40 dealers.

In addition to the auction, the sponsors are providing hourly films and lectures on rock collecting, geological phenomenon, techniques on cutting, polishing and setting gems, as well as a special feature on gold fever. Throughout the 30,000-square-foot education building, there will be continuous live demonstrations on faceting precious stones, cabachon cutting, silversmithing, making spheres from solid stone, slabbing stones, electroplating semi-precious stones with solid gold and polishing flat surfaces of rocks (known as lapping).

For the first time ever, the famous Kashan Created Rubys will be introduced to the upper midwest. These simulated rubys are so near perfect that 98 per cent of them cannot be identified without special sophisticated equipment. Not only will the creators of this ruby introduce the material, but they will be continually demonstrating the techniques for differentiating between the created rubys and nature's rubys.

A New York designer will be creating a gold crown inlaid with precious stones. The crown will be displayed later in the year at a national show in Washington D.C. Lectures, demonstrators and dealers will come from 15 different states just to participate in this show.

The show opens daily at 10 a.m. and closes at 9 p.m. except for the 12th when the annual event wraps up at 5 p.m. For further information about the show call the sponsors, Norman or Louise McCarthy of Coon Rapids, at 612-755-4125.

Student Loan Program Gets 3-Month Stay

Congressman Arlan Stangeland said today that "students will continue to have the option to take out students loans if they are needed" under the Gramm-Latta budget and that changes in the program will not take effect until Oct. 1, 1981.

"The office of management and budget had originally proposed changes in the guaranteed student loan program that would have gone into effect on July 1, 1981. This date was not realistic and did not allow lending institutions enough time to meet new requirements. As a result, banks and lending institutions began to slow down the processing of guaranteed student loans which could have prevented students from receiving needed funds.

"In order to effectively fight the July 1 date, I sponsored a bill to change it to October 1, 1981. The office of management and budget responded to this bill by changing language in the Gramm-Latta budget so as to allow for changes to start on Oct. 1, 1981. This action nullified the need for my legislation," Stangeland said.

The Seventh District Congressman also explained that the Gramm-Latta budget will allow for continued benefits for students who need assistance even though some changes have been made. For example, applications will be reviewed in the future on the basis of need which will save taxpayers about $1.2 billion over the next three years. This would be accomplished by only lending funds to make up the difference between what a person is able to pay and the amount of their tuition.

The Gramm-Latta budget will also save taxpayer dollars by requiring that individuals who can afford to pay tuition without governments loans do so, thus making funds available for those strictly in need.

"One of the keys to our future is education and we must continue to provide methods for students to receive college educations. Each year it is becoming increasingly difficult for parents to send their children to college due to increases in tuition and other related expenses. This program allows students to continue their education by providing loans for the amount their parents are unable to pay.

"By providing loans, students who would otherwise not have the opportunity to attend college will be able to pursue higher education," Stangeland said.

Weekend After Holiday Most Dangerous

False sense of security many motorists feel after a busy holiday weekend may cause them to drive with less caution, says Minnesota AAA.

According to the Minnesota state highway patrol, the greatest number of accidents and fatalities occur on the weekend after a holiday.

"People are more careful on holiday weekends because they have been made aware of the extra number of troopers who have been assigned to the highways," the highway patrol explains.

When the weekend is over, people's attitudes toward driving with caution are relaxed. Defensive driving and concern for safety should be emphasized each time a driver climbs into his automobile. Drivers should remember this concern every weekend.

Minnesota AAA reminds travelers to remember these safety tips every time they drive: Use seat belts properly and secure each child in an approved child restraint; take time to observe the 55 mile per hour speed limit to conserve gasoline and increase safety. To share the road safely, be on the lookout for motorcyclists all summer; and don't drink when you drive. Drunk drivers are responsible for 25,000 fatalities every year, according to Minnesota AAA.

U.S. Selective Service Trains Draft Boards

Selective service has begun a program to recruit and train civilian volunteers to possible future local boards throughout the nation. This is a part of the Congressionally approved and funded total revitalization of selective service. The boards themselves would not be established unless Congress directed a return to the draft. However, pre-selection and training of board members in peacetime is considered to be beneficial in several ways:

(1) It will assure that people selected will be representative of the communities they serve.

(2) It will give selective service time, in the relative calm of peacetime, to train the board members in selective service policies and procedures. This will assure uniform treatment, should the draft ever be resumed, if individuals requesting postponements, deferments and exemptions.

By law, local board members are nominated by each state governor and appointed by the President. To be eligible for consideration, an individual must:

—Be a citizen of the United States between the ages of 18 and 60;

—Not be a member of the armed forces (including reserve or retired status, but not excluding veterans of military service);

—Not already have served as a local board member for a total of 15 or more years;

—Be willing to participate in a national training program; and, if the draft is ever resumed, be willing to serve without pay in making difficult but important decisions concerning applications from local residents for deferment or exemption from the draft.

The law also contemplates that the make-up of each local board be representative of the racial and ethnic backgrounds of the registrant population under its jurisdiction. A major goal of this selection program is to generate sufficient citizen participation to ensure such balance. The full national program to be undertaken over the next few months will bring total appointments to approximately 10,000. Volunteers for Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam and Trust Territories are included in this figure.

Interested residents may obtain additional information from Robert P. Knight, P.O. Box 30484, St. Paul, MN 55175 or calling him at (612-725-7780

USDA Releases Report On Saccharin Use

U.S. department of agriculture (USDA) has released a court-ordered study about the effects of saccharin consumption: "A Study of Saccharin Use as it Relates to the Competitive Foods Rule."

On the basis of the study, G. William Hoagland, administrator of USDA's food and nutrition service, has determined that USDA should not regulate the availability of saccharin-containing foods sold in competition with the school nutrition programs at this time.

The U.S. district court for the District of Columbia ordered USDA's food and nutrition service to do the study in deciding the consolidated cases of Community Nutrition Institute vs. Bergland, CA No. 80-0243, and National Soft Drink Association vs. Bergland, VA No. 80-1093.

Copies of the study are available from: Office of Policy, Planning and Evaluation, FNS, USDA, Washington, D.C., 20250, phone (202) 447-6993.

Patriotism Not A Spectator Sport

"We as Americans have the capacity now, as we have had in the past, to do whatever needs to be done to preserve this last and greatest bastion of freedom," stated President Ronald Reagan in his inaugural speech.

With an Independence Day observance just behind us, we should bear in mind that the significance of the observance is the fact that we are a free nation. American help has reduced misery in many countries and contributed to reviving the economies of some industrialized nations which have since challenged us for commercial leadership in world markets.

But this nation still stands as a beacon of freedom and liberty, an unquestionable land of opportunity and a place where dreams can be made to come true. We have a country of astonishing strength, generosity and idealism.

But patriotism isn't a spectator sport. "You don't score any points," reminds Leonard H. Marks, president of Honor America, "while standing on the sidelines." And then he points out the following:

There have been, and will continue to be, unhappy moments in our history. The whole world learns about them. It is such candor in the American open society that wins the admiration even of our critics.

In your everyday routine, Mr. and Mrs. America, you are in the world spotlight, whether you realize it or not. How you react in coping with your country's needs can influence this nation's fate, for years to come.

This is one of the key purposes of the Honor America program — to try to persuade each and every American adult to examine his or her attitude toward today's problems. Do you withhold judgment on national issues — some of which are very complex — until you are adequately informed on all aspects?

To paraphrase an old saying, Do you walk a mile in your adversary's shoes before you decide he's right or wrong?

Are you willing to suffer small inconveniences to attend a meeting or discussion on community affairs? The practice of draft or neglect of small problems can lead to larger troubles later.

Antics Prove Need For Commission

Following editorial appeared several weeks ago in the Bemidji Pioneer:

Need for a bipartisan commission to reapportion the state's legislative districts could not have been proved better than by the antics of the 1981 Legislature.

Voters had a chance last fall to change the way the state handles reapportioning, but blew it. A constitutional amendment to provide a bipartisan commission to draw new lines failed at the polls — not because of negative votes but because "Yes" votes were not a majority of all who voted in the general election.

The amendment was Gov. Al Quie's top project in the campaign. He said, "It effectively establishes a bipartisan group, outside the Legislature, to handle this very sensitive, sometimes volatile, matter."

The Legislature started the session with honest intentions of tackling congressional reapportionment without bickering. But the issue quickly developed into a "very sensitive, sometimes volatile, matter."

Early plans had a House IR proposal putting Beltrami county into a traditionally DFL 8th District. Beltrami, one may recall, supported DFLer Gene Wenstrom by almost 800 votes over winner Arlan Stangeland. The early DFL plan kept the 7th District about the same but did strange things with the southern part of the state, creating three instead of two Twin Cities districts and creating a new 2nd District covering all to the south. That district, now represented by IR Tom Hagedorn, would take large chunks out of the 1st and 6th Districts, represented by Arlen Erdahl and Vin Weber — both IR.

The plan progressing the furthest came in the last days of the session. DFL Rep. Paul McCarron's plan won approval from the House Reapportionment and Elections committee along straight party lines — 12 DFL for and nine IR against. That plan was expected to pass the House before the end of the session but budget and tax debates curtailed reapportioning in the Legislature this session.

The McCarron plan advocated four districts in the metropolitan area and four outstate. Beltrami would remain in the 7th District but the population center would shift to the metro area with the inclusion of the St. Cloud area in the 7th.

Charting the 7th District on a state map under the McCarron plan is reminiscent of the district drawn in 1812 in Massachusetts which looked like a salamander and from where the term gerrymandering was first applied.

No formal hearings were held in the Senate, but there is DFL approval for the McCarron plan. And IR opposition against it.

The next step is for House and Senate committees to meet over the summer and fall. Action may be taken when the Legislature starts Jan. 12, 1982, but then again don't count on it.

A wide rift has occurred between the governor, the DFL and the IR over the budget and taxes — a rift that probably won't be closed or even narrowed when earnest reapportioning talks resume.

It's gerrymandering pure and simple.

A bipartisan commission would have been instructed by law to complete a plan by September 1 of this year and would have equal population, population as a controlling factor and districts composed of compact and contiguous territory as basic criteria. Another important standard would have been that no apportionment plan be drawn for the purpose of favoring any political party or person.

Perhaps reapportioning will finally be settled by the 1982 elections, just in time for a new vote on establishing a bipartisan commission.

Epitome Of Extravagance

A letter received by the Times recently from Robin Ficker, member of the Maryland House of Delegates, points out what the representative calls "... the epitome of government extravagance."

"The U.S. Post office department, which recently increased stamp prices from 15 cents to 18 cents," Ficker writes, "is about to start building what amounts to a resort training site in my state legislative district in Potomac, MD. There, the post office department spent six and one-half million dollars for eighty acres of land in a residential area next to homes selling for $300,000 to $700,000.

"The department has said at one time or another that it will provide there a cocktail lounge, swimming pool, gymnasium, jogging trails, eight tennis courts and a par three golf course to 500 postal employees from around the country for six-week periods. No public transportation will be available to the panoramic vistas of this 'Taj Mahal' postal training resort," Ficker adds. "It is a premier example of government waste."

"While the 'cash on the barrelhead' price for construction is $28.3 million, the department will finance it over a period of years, bringing construction costs to well over $50 million, including interest. Our recent stamp increase will pay the bill. The land for this purchase, which puts 'Tara' to shame, was purchased by the department on Oct. 2, 1980, just before the election. To me, this project is the epitome of government extravagance — and it is within 10 miles of the White House.

I was one of a handful of Maryland elected Republicans who supported President Reagan in last year's primaries. I still strongly support him. Nevertheless, this postal training resort violates his pledge to cut government waste."

And that assessment, House member Ficker, is right on.

Borrowed Nonsense:

While driving through a rural area, the salesman's car broke down. As he was puttering under the hood, he heard a voice say, "It's the carburetor." He looked around but could see nothing but an old horse by a nearby fence."

"What did you say?" the salesman gasped.

"I said your trouble is in the carburetor," the horse repeated.

In a state of panic, the man fled down the road until he came to the first place with people — a local watering hole. He ordered and drank a couple of stiff drinks before summoning up the courage to pour out his tale to a couple of regulars at the bar. They listened politely.

"Was this about a mile north of here on the east side of the road?" one finally asked knowingly. "A bony old white horse with a sway back, Roman nose and short tail?"

"Yes, yes, that's him!" the salesman exclaimed.

"Well, don't pay no attention to him," the other local advised. "If there's one thing that old nag don't know nothing about its carburetors."

MELISSA JOHNSON (left), daughter of Randy Johnson, Karla Froschheiser (center), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Froschheiser, and June Nelson, daughter of Mary Kaye Nelson, prepared for their Fourth of July parade which was conducted last week near Discovery Place on East Nora in Thief River Falls. Parade began with the youngsters singing Happy Birthday to America, and was concluded with a special treat to all parade participants.

Legislative Review

Marv Hanson

District 1 State Senator

The following report highlights legislation enacted in the 1981 session of the legislature that should be of interest.

Highway Funding

A $225 million dollar funding package was enacted through a two cent gas tax increase, increased vehicle and drivers' license fees and increased highway bonding. Keeping up our highways and roads is essential if we are going to have a strong state economy. And this is especially so in rural Minnesota. But costs are escalating to unheard of levels. It now costs almost $40,000 a mile just to overlay with asphalt. The measure passed doesn't solve all the highway and road funding problems, but it does meet many of the State's needs in this area.

Farm Real Estate Valuations

The tax bill passed this year contained a provision of mine that I've been working for since I was first elected. And that is to shift ag land valuations from a sales price basis to an income or productivity basis. We all know that only a small amount of farmland sells each year and why there is tremendous competition for this land which results in the high prices. Those prices don't reflect what that land can produce itself, but are spread over all the rest of the farmland the purchaser has. I do not believe those sales prices are a fair basis on which to value all farmland for real estate tax purposes. The new method enacted uses rentals as the basis to make farm valuations and will commence with the January 2, 1983 valuations. This gives a year to work to refine this new process. I would encourage township officers to look at this new approach and become active this summer and full so any further amendments needed can be passed in the 1982 session of the Legislature.

Consumer Protections

Homeowners having improvements made will have the following warranties on that work after January 1, 1982: a one year warranty against defects in workmanship and materials, a 10 year warranty against major construction defects and a two year warranty on plumbing, electrical and cooling system installments.

Consumer contracts, like those for retail sales, rental agreements, small loans and residential leases, are to be written in plain and understandable language. Over 30,000 complaints have been made to the consumers division of the commerce department mainly from consumers unable to understand difficult and complex contract language.

Detailed invoices are to be provided on warranty repair work and work which exceeds $50.00 cost. A description is to be given of the work done and which replacement parts were used or rebuilt.

Worker's Compensation

A reform measure was enacted this year which saved Minnesota businesses over $100 million dollars. This legislation resulted in about a five per cent cut in present premium rates. The Commissioner of Insurance is developing further proposals for the 1982 session with the aim to further reduce premiums yet continue to provide protection for injured workers.

Alien Farm Ownership

Under the U.S. Constitution a person who receives the resident alien status from the Immigration & Naturalization Service is given the same rights and privileges as a citizen. However that U.S. agency does not require any residency in the U.S. even though the term in and of itself certainly implies that. A bill enacted this session authored by me requires a six month residency if an alien owns farmland in Minnesota. This is the same residency as is required to receive citizenship. This legislation also requires than an alien divest any farmland owned if the resident alien does not meet that qualification. This should close a loophole in our Minnesota law restricting alien farm ownership which was enacted in 1977.

Home, Business And Farm Real Estate Taxes

All homeowners who realize a property tax hike of more than 20 per cent will qualify for tax relief in addition to the homestead credit. This will equal 75 per cent of the increase over that 20 per cent to a maximum additional credit of $200.00.

Business property will be helped with a lower assessment ratio on the first $50,000 of business property value from 43 per cent to 40 per cent in determining assessed values for real estate tax purposes. Apartment building ratios were cut from 38 to 36 per cent.

Farm homesteads will be expanded to 320 acres and the state paid ag mill credit on those 320 acres will increase from 17 mills to 18 mills.

Crime Control

Penalties levied against persons using firearms in the commission of a crime were toughened. There will now be a mandatory three year sentence if a crime is committed using a dangerous weapon.

The criminal law was changed to make it first-degree murder when someone is killed when a burglary, robbery, kidnapping or arson is committed. Present law considered that second-degree murder.

Penalties were doubled against adults found guilty of possessing narcotics on school grounds to crack down on adult drug pushers who prey on students. The laws were also tightened against the sale of drug paraphenalia.

Gov. Quie's Column

No one likes to borrow money. Yet most everyone needs to do so at one time or another.

The state of Minnesota is no different. We will have to borrow to meet a temporary cash shortage in the next six months. Such borrowing is an accepted practice which has been used in the past by state government to cover short-term cash flow problems.

On Wednesday, July 1, I will call the Legislature into special session and urge the passage of a bill raising Minnesota's short-term borrowing authority to solve our cash flow problem.

Short-term borrowing is exactly that — short term.

During the 1981 session, the legislature enacted a balanced budget. Part of that budget requires the state to make certain payments to local governments and school districts from July to December each year. However, the state collects most of its revenue in the spring when income taxes are due. For example, by November 1981, the state would have received 36.5 per cent of its annual revenues for fiscal year 1982 (which began July 1, 1981).

However, by the end of November the state has paid out almost half (49 per cent) of all the fiscal year expenditures. The state will have enough money to pay all its bills this biennium; it just will not have enough cash on hand in the fall to meet those obligations to local governments. Hence, the state will need to borrow money in the fall which will be paid back in the spring.

However, to meet these obligations, we need to change our borrowing law. A state law passed in 1969 permits the state to borrow up to $100 million — five per cent of that year's $2 billion budget.

Since 1969, the state budget has grown considerably, while the borrowing limit has remained constant. The proposed change in the borrowing limit would replace the finite dollar amount with a more economically sensitive percentage limit. The five per cent limit, as proposed in the bill, will permit the state to borrow up to $440 million — or five per cent of our $8.8 billion biennium budget.

If the legislature fails to increase the state's borrowing authority, we face two serious consequences: (1) The state's Triple A credit rating for the sale of long-term bonds may be endangered, and (2) aid payments to local governments may be differred. Let me explain the implications of these possibilities.

The state is tentatively planning to sell $63 million in 20-year general obligation bonds July 28. Projects already underway or which have already received commitments make up $30 million of that amount. Another $13 million is for highway purposes, with the balance going to priority projects authorized by lawmakers this year.

Without additional borrowing authority, we stand to lose our superior credit rating on those long-term bonds. This means the state would have to pay substantially higher interest rates on its bonds to attract investors.

The other consequence of failing to raise the borrowing authority is that local government aid payments will have to be deferred, starting July 15. Total local government aid payments for the first year of the biennium amount to $203 million and are scheduled to be paid monthly from July through December 1981. According to commissioner of finance Wayne Burggraaff, it would be necessary to defer all of the local payments in order to cover peak cash flow requirements in November. Consequently, local governments themselves would have to engage in short-term borrowing to compensate for the deferral of aid payments which will be paid in the spring.

It is, therefore, essential to increase Minnesota's short-term borrowing authority in order to protect our excellent bond rating and fulfill our financial obligations to local governments on schedule.

Moreover, because the bond sale is scheduled for late July and the first local aid payments are due July 15, it is critical that the Legislature act by July 2. Thus, I hope that the Legislature will focus its attention on this one important issue and complete its work during a one-day special session next week.

Legislation Sponsored to Improve the Economy

The U.S. has entered into an economic period which requires examining alternatives to previous economic practices. In other words, things have changed and our economic system and its rules and regulations must be updated to effectively take these changes into account. Our current tax laws, in many cases, penalize taxpayers with greater taxation, instead of reducing suffering and stimulating productivity. I am supporting reductions in Federal spending and taxation, but I am also sponsoring legislation designed to deal directly with many economic problems currently impacting hard working Americans.

H.R. 247 — INDEXING FEDERAL INCOME TAXES. One of the problems with our current tax code is that when individuals receive wage increases to offset the effects of inflation, or to compensate for work well-done, they are automatically pushed into a higher tax bracker. Inflation is the cruelest tax of all. The net result is they are earning more in terms of dollars, but the fact of the matter is their buying power at the grocery store or in other markets is not increased.

"Taxflation" is the term government officials and economists use to describe this unfortunate economic injustice. H.R. 247, however, is designed to eliminate "taxflation" by adjusting personal income tax for inflation annually.

The only beneficiary of "taxflation" is the Federal government which reaps billions of dollars in tax revenues that otherwise would be left in the hands of well-deserving citizens. Furthermore, when "taxflation" is allowed to occur, inflation is actually stimulated. For example, members of a union receive an increase to offset inflation, but because of "taxflation" they are not any better off. As a result, the next year they request a similar increase with no true relief in sight.

H.R. 247 will provide the most benefit for the poor and the middle class wage earners whose standard income tax brackets are closer together than those of higher income wage earners.

Reducing budgets and taxes are essential if we are to regain control of our economic destiny, but it will also be essential to pass legislation such as H.R. 247 to reduce to eliminate the burden of non-legislated tax increases.

H.R. 1005 — TAX INCENTIVES FOR SAVERS. This will would exclude from taxation interest earned on deposits in financial institutions which are used for residential mortgage purposes.

The U.S. cannot have a strong economy as long as two vital segments of the economy face critical problems due to a lack of capital and the current high cost of capital. The housing and savings industries are currently facing many problems which are related. The housing industry is having difficulties due to a decreasing supply of construction financing and the inability of buyers to be able to afford high prices coupled with high mortgage interest rates. The savings industry is plagued by high withdrawal rates as savers seek higher returns in other investments, which acts to reduce significantly the funds available to finance mortgages on home construction.

By passing this legislation, institutions will be able to compete for deposits and the funds available for home construction. The National American for Home Builders has estimated that this bill could create a domestic economic impact of $72.1 billion with increased tax revenues in excess of $8 billion.

H.R. 1541 — INCREASE THE TAX EXCLUSION FOR DIVIDEND AND INTEREST INCOME. Our money is taxed twice — once when you earn it and once again when you earn interest on it. It is not too difficult to understand why Americans are saving so little. This bill is designed to increase the exclusion for dividend and interest income to $1,000 ($2,000 on a joint return), and make that exclusion a permanent part of the tax code. It will also increase the exclusion for individuals 65 or older to $5,000 ($10,000 for a joint return).

Saving has become a losing proposition. Our nation's low savings rate has caused the standard of living for workers in our country to rise at a much lower pace compared to workers in other industrialized nations with higher savings rates. Savings from after taxes have fallen from an annual rate of 5.8 per cent in 1976 to 3.4 per cent in the first quarter of 1980 — a period in which productivity fell, interest rates increased, inflation skyrocketed, and unemployment soared. Federal tax policies are discouraging savings. Increased savings would lead to economic growth by providing the capital necessary for increased investment in plants and equipment and homebuilding. This economic growth would create jobs and raise the living standards for all Americans. H.R. 1541 represents a significant step to encouraging savings and stimulating the economy.

The elderly, who have been hit especially hard by inflation, would be helped greatly by providing the necessary tax break.

Outdoor Grill Use Pointers Are Offered

Planning to entertain this weekend with sizzling hamburgers or mouthwater steaks straight from an outdoor drill? If so, the Minnesota safety council has some pointers for cooking out over a barbeque fire without injury or damage to you or your property.

Use a commercially prepared special liquid, solid fire starter, wood shavings or an Underwriters Laboratories listed electric starter. Don't substitute gasoline or cigarette lighter fluid for commercial products designed for the job.

If you use a liquid starter, let it soak into the coals for a couple of minutes before igniting it. Avoid pouring more fluid on the coals once they're lighted — a vapor explosion is the possible result.

Use your outdoor grill away from flammable materials such as that stack of wood for next winter's fuel or the can of gasoline for your power mower.

If the weather threatens to dampen your cook-out, don't be tempted to use the outdoor grill inside. Coals give off deadly carbon monoxide. It's best to postpone your barbeque to a sunny day.

ORDER FOR HEARING AND NOTICE THEREOF
STATE OF MINNESOTA
DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION

D — 5129
R — 3829

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, and notice is hereby given that a contested case hearing concerning the above-entitled matter will be held on August 13, 1981 at 9:00 A.M. in the Northwest Regional Correction Center, 600 Bruce Street, Crookston, Minnesota.

The hearing will be held before Mr. George Deretich, 1745 University Avenue, Saint Paul, Minnesota 55104 (Telephone: 612-296-8116) a Hearing Examiner appointed by the Chief Hearing Examiner of the State of Minnesota. All parties have the right to be represented by legal counsel or any other representative of their choice throughout the contested case proceeding. The hearing will be conducted pursuant to the contested case procedures set out in Minn. Stat. S 15.052 and 9 MCAR S 2.201 through S 2.222. Questions concerning the issues raised in this Order or concerning informal disposition or discovery may be directed to Mr. Gordon W. Boldt, Director, Office of Railroad Administration, 419 Transportation Building, Saint Paul, Minnesota 55155 (Telephone: 612-296-2452).

The purpose of the hearing is to ensure that under the provisions of Minn. Stat. S 219.85 all parties and potential parties of interest are given an opportunity to be heard on the petition of Burlington Northern Railroad Company to establish a centralized freight agency at Crookston, Minnesota.

The petition recites among others matters that:

"Petitioner presently maintains a freight depot with base agency service at Crookston to serve shippers at Crookston and at the blind sidings of Red Lake Falls, St. Hilaire, Tilden Junction, Benoit, Burwell, Fischer, Euclid, Shirley and Wilds. In addition, three direct services agents (mobile) are headquartered at Crookston and serve rail patrons at the locations as indicated below:

In the Matter of the Petition of Burlington Northern Rail Company to Establish a Centralized Freight Agency at Crookston, Minnesota.

DSA No. 1 — Halstad, Eldred, Climax, Nielsville, Shelly, Hendrum, Perley, Georgetown, Kragness, Girard.

DSA No. 2 — Fertile, Harold, Melvin, Hitterdahl, Ulen, Syre, Twin Valley, Gary.

DSA No 3 — Ada, Beltrami, Borup, Felton, Averill, Hadler, Greenview, Lockhard.

Presently, other affected stations are as follows:

(a) Triplized agency for Fosston, McIntosh and Erskine, handling the blind sidings of Mentor and Lengby.

(b) Triplized agency for Hallock, Donaldson, and Kennedy, handling the blind sidings of Hillsiding, Northcote and Humboldt.

(c) Triplized agency for Roseau, Badger and Greenbush, handling the blind sidings of Fox and Salol.

(d) Agency for Stephen.

(e) Agency for Thief River Falls, handling the blind sidings of Strathcona, Middle River and Holt.

(f) Triplized agency for Warren, Angus and Argyle, handling the blind sidings of Roan and Luna.

(g) Agency for Warroad.

Petitioner proposed to terminate base agency service at all of the above agency stations, except Crookston, and to centralize agency service for all the above locations at and from Crookston. The base agency staff at Crookston will be enlarged and will include a mobile agent assignment to handle extraordinary customer service inquiries requiring in-person representation. The centralized Crookston agency will encompass the following locations: Crookston, Burwell, Benoit, Tilden Junction, Dugdale, Mentor, Erskine, McIntosh, Fosston, Lengby, St. Hilaire, Red Lake Falls, Thief River Falls, Holt, Salol, Warroad, Harold, Melvin, Fertile, Gary, Twin Valley, Syre, Ulen, Hitterdal, Euclid, Angus, Roan, Warren, Fisher, Northcotte, Humboldt, Greenview, Beltrami, Lockhard, Hadler, Ada, Borup, Felton, Averill, Glyndon, Wilds, Girard. In the Matter of the Petition of Burlington Northern Rail Company to Establish a Centralized Freight Agency at Crookston, Minnesota.

Middle River, Strathcona, Greenbush, Badger, Fox, Roseau, Luna, Argyle, Stephen, Donaldson, Kennedy, Hallock, Eldred, Climax, Nielsville, Shelly, Haldstad, Hendrum, Perley, Georgetown, Kragnes.

In justification for the agency changes sought, Petitioner alleges that the present and prospective volumes of rail freight traffic at the enumerated locations no longer warrant or justify the current structure of base and direct service agencies.

The following freight depots will no longer be required for agency service and Petitioner proposes to close and remove them: Fertile, Hitterdahl, Ada, Haldstad, Erskine, Thief River Falls, Roseau, Warren, Hallock, Donaldson, Stephen, Argyle, Warroad, Red Lake Falls (vacant), Fosston, Mentor (vacant), Beltrami (vacant).

There is no rail passenger service or parcel service at any kind of the affected locations, including Crookston, and there is no likelihood that such services will be resumed in the foreseeable future."

Any person who desires to become a PARTY to this matter must submit a timely PETITION TO INTERVENE to the Hearing Examiner pursuant to 9 MCAR S 2.210, showing how the person's legal rights, duties and privileges may be determined or affected by the decision in this case. The petition must also set forth the grounds and purposes for which intervention is sought.

ALL PARTIES ARE ADVISED that if a party intends to appear at the hearing scheduled for August 13, 1981, the Notice of Appearance form enclosed with his order must be completed and returned to the Hearing Examiner at least 10 days before the hearing date. SHOULD A PARTY FAIL TO APPEAR AT THE HEARING, THE ALLEGATIONS MADE IN THE PETITION MAY BE TAKEN AS TRUE.

In the Matter of the Petition of Burlington Northern Rail Company to Establish a Centralized Freight Agency at Crookston, Minnesota.

The above cited procedural rules are available at the Office of Administrative Hearings or may be purchased from the Documents Section of the Department of Administration, Ford Building, 117 University Avenue, Saint Paul, Minnesota 55155 (Telephone: 612-297-3000). They provide generally for the procedural rights of the parties including: rights to advance notice of witnesses and evidence, right to a prehearing conference, rights to present evidence and cross-examine witnesses, and right to purchase a record or transcript. Parties are entitled to issuance of subpoenas to compel witnesses to attend and produce documents and other evidence.

Persons attending the hearing should bring all evidence bearing on the case including any records or other documents. If persons have good reason for requesting a delay of the hearing, the request must be made in writing to the Hearing Examiner at least 5 days prior to the hearing. A copy of the request must be served on the agency and any other parties.

Grand Forks Royals, one of the classier teams on the 1981 Thief River Falls American Legion baseball schedule, swept a muggy, mosquito-infested doubleheader on the fairgrounds diamond Thursday, winning the first one in a breeze, 9-1, and struggling through a 7-6 decision in the nightcap over a Thief River Falls team that had managed to split with the Royals just four days earlier in Grand Forks.

There were three reasons why the Royals' second game victory was harder to come by than their first: Greg LaDouceur, Bob Rynestad and Brent Zimmerman. Those three players dominated the opener. The snappy LaDouceur pitched a three-hitter that included a pair of scratch infield hits. He should have had himself a one-hit shutout. Meanwhile, Rynestad and Zimmerman were devastating at the plate as the No. 3 and No. 4 hitters, respectively, in the Royals' line-up, combining on a perfect 7-for-7 performance that included six runs-batted in and four runs they scored themselves. Zimmerman, the catcher, was 4-for-4 with a home run and four RBI's. Rynestad, the shortstop, was 3-for-3 with a double and two RBI's.

With those three out of the line-up in the second game the Royals weren't the same ball club; although LaDouceur did come off the mound and play a strong shortstop and Rynestad did appear as a pinch runner — scoring what proved to be the winning run in a three-run Grand Forks sixth inning.

Thief River Falls did not play well in either game. Even in the second contest in which the host club should have won, they committed six errors. Grand Forks left 22 base runners stranded in the two games while Thief River Falls' total was 12.

The two losses dropped Thief River Falls to 10-5-1 for the year. Grand Forks climbed to 13-5. Thief River Falls faces a key test Tuesday when rival Crookston visits the fairgrounds diamond for a 7 p.m. match-up of unbeaten Northwest American Legion League opponents. First place in the Northwest League and an edge on the No. 1 post-season sub district tournament seed will be at stake. Both teams have earned one-run wins over top rival East Grand Forks while breezing past the other two league members, Newfolden and Warroad. Thief River Falls, currently 3-0 in the Northwest League, plays Warroad at home Thursday at 7 p.m.

In high school baseball this spring, Thief River Falls lost 6-2 and 4-3 games against Class AA rival Crookston Central while beating Mount St. Benedict, the Region 8A champion, 5-0. The Crookston American Legion squad, directed by Central coach Jim Simon, includes players from both high school teams.

Thief River Falls will take part in an invitational tournament at New York Mills Saturday, facing Brainerd, the 1981 Region 8AA high school tournament champion, in a first round game Saturday at 11:30 a.m. The Warriors took a 20-0 record into the 1981 Class AA state tournament before losing a first round 11-4 game to perennial Region 7AA entry Grand Rapids.

Salmela Selects Northern Arizona

Bruce Salmela, one of the top Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) hockey players as a freshman at Northland community college last winter, will attend Northern Arizona University this fall.

A Warroad high school graduate, Salmela played one year of hockey with the Warroad Lakers before deciding to attend Michigan Tech where he ran into a leg injury early in the season and eventually left school. He elected to play at Northland in 1980-81, scoring 11 goals and collecting 28 assists for 39 points in 21 games as Northland went from a winless 1979-80 campaign to 8-13-1.

An excellent puck handler, Salmela had several options for the 1981-82 season, including another season at Northland, an invitation to play at St. Cloud State University and the chance to join the budding Northern Arizona program.

The University of North Dakota Sioux will open their 1981-82 hockey season Friday and Saturday, Oct. 23-24, in Grand Forks against Northern Arizona.

Miscellaneous

+Ground has been broken for East Grand Forks' second indoor ice rink at O'Leary Park, culminating a fund-raising drive by the city Blue Line club that raised more than $275,000 for the project. Most of the money came from the East Grand Forks VFW club which gave $100,000. The Blue Line club contributed $60,000 and the American Legion, Eagles and city of East Grand Forks each kicked in $25,000. Another $30,000 was given by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gunderson. The rink is expected to be ready for use this fall.

DIVING BACK TO first base head first, Brent Zimmerman of the Grand Forks Royals beat the tag of Thief River Falls first baseman Dave Kays on a third inning pick-off attempt by pitcher Kevin Sanders in the first game of Thursday's American Legion baseball doubleheader played on the fairgrounds diamond. Umpire Mike Drury watched the play. The Royals swept the twinbill, winning the first game 9-1 and taking the second game 7-6. Thief River Falls, 10-5-1 for the year, will host Crookston Tuesday in a 7 p.m. game matching unbeaten Northwest League co-leaders on the fairgrounds diamond.

Grand Forks Sweeps TRF In Legion Doubleheader, 9-1, 7-6

An easy 9-1 winner in the first game, the Grand Forks Royals struggled in the second half of Thursday's American Legion baseball doubleheader on the fairgrounds diamond before collecting a come-from-behind 7-6 victory over Thief River Falls.

The sweep gave the Royals three wins in four tries over Thief River Falls in a four-day span. The two teams met the previous Monday in Grand Forks, with the Royals winning the opener 7-0 but losing the nightcap 7-2.

Northwest League action awaits Thief River Falls this week, with Crookston visiting the fairgrounds diamond Tuesday in a match-up of unbeaten league leaders and Warroad arriving Thursday. Both games have 7 p.m. starting times.

It was a 9-1 Grand Forks triumph in the first half of the doubleheader, but it seemed a lot more one-sided. While the Royals were putting 21 runners on base against lefthanders Kevin Sanders and Greg Harder, Thief River Falls produced just six base runners off Greg LaDoucheur, a good-looking righthander who had the opposition off balance with a darting fast ball and an effective curve.

The Royals waited until the third inning to score when they sent nine batters to the plate, banging out five base hits and scoring four runs. A double by lead-off batter Tom Montgomery started it, with Jamie Kuntz then drawing a walk. Bob Rynestad laced a single to left field that Rod Harder misplayed into a two-base, two-run error. Brent Zimmerman singled home Rynestad, went to third on a double to the center field fence by LaDouceur and scored on a double to left by Dave Knutz.

Zimmerman, who was 4-for-4 and drove in four runs, got one of those RBI's in the fourth on a single to left to score Jamie Knutz, who had walked, for a 5-0 game. Zimmerman then drilled a solo home run down the left field line in the sixth, making it 6-0. A two-run double by Rynestad, who was 3-for-3, highlighted a three-run Grand Forks seventh inning that also included an RBI single by Zimmerman.

Thief River Falls, held to a pair of infield singles through six innings, spoiled LaDouceur's shutout bid in the seventh when Greg Harder led off with a double to center field, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on a two-out error by Rynestad at shortstop.

Thief River Falls could have been a winner in the second game, owning a 3-1 lead after one inning and ahead 5-4 going into the sixth before surrendering three Grand Forks runs and losing a 7-6 decision when a promoising seventh inning rally came up short.

A two-out double by Dave Wheeler, who wound up 4-for-4 in the game, and a throwing error gave Grand Forks a run in the top of the first.

Thief River Falls answered with three runs in the bottom of the inning on back-to-back walks issued to No. 1 and No. 2 hitters Jeff Milender and Scott McKeever, an error on a pick-off throw by pitcher Tom Montgomery that scored a run and a two-run single to left by Jim Hallamek.

Grand Forks climbed back into the lead by scoring single runs over the next three innings. A two-out single to center by Jeff Bye scored Montgomery, who had reached base on an error in the second inning; a sacrifice fly by Bryan Gray scored Mark Brangham, who had walked to lead off the third; and an error on a delayed double steal with men on first and third scored Jamie Knutz, who had beaten out an infield single in the fourth, making it 4-3.

Thief River Falls regained the lead, 5-4, with a two-run fifth inning. Milender led off with a single to left, stealing second and moving to third when McKeever got on via a bad-hop infield single. A delayed double steal scored Milender and moved McKeever to second. A single by Kevin Sanders scored the go-ahead run.

But Bye beat out an infield hit to keep shortstop to start the Royals' sixth inning. Wheeler followed with a single to center that scored Bye when the ball was misplayed in the outfield. A walk moved Wheeler to third and he scored on a squeeze bunt by LaCouceuer. A single to right by John Fossum scored Bob Rynestad, a pinch runner for Brangham, who had walked and moved to second on the bunt play.

Trailing 7-5, Thief River Falls threatened to pull it out in the bottom of the seventh whem McKeever drew a lead-off walk, Sanders singled to right and Greg Harder followed with an RBI single that made it 7-6 and still left runners on first and second with nobody out. But that's where they stayed as Montgomery, who had struggled through most of the game, induced Jeff Cwikla, Dave Kays and Mark Lundin to all pop-up.

In Division II, the St. Hilaire Bears snapped a first place tie with Coca-Cola with a Thursday night doubleheader sweep over slumping Consumer's Co-op 4-3 and 11-3 while Coca-Cola was splitting with last place Falls Clinic, winning 11-9 but losing 15-7.

The Barbers posted wins Wednesday over E.T.'s Bees 11-5 and Thursday over First Federal 6-4 to vault into the Division III lead. E.T.'s Bees, the season-long leader, also lost to Popplers 6-3 Wednesday and tumbled into a third place tie.

Teamsters snapped a season-opening 14-game losing streak with an 18-16 decision over 1-11 Miller Fur Farm in a Thursday night Division IV match-up.

Division I results featured a Thursday night doubleheader sweep by the TRF Merchants, who outlasted Swenson Plumbing 5-4 in 10 innings, then checked McDonald's-Dallmann 8-3.

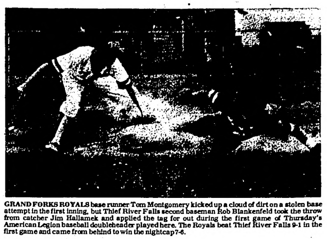
Elks Defeat Crookston By 12-2 Margin

Steve Wiskow was 3-for-4, hitting an inside-the-park home run and driving in three runs Wednesday to lead the Thief River Falls Elks to a 12-2 win over the Crookston B Merchants in a 14-15-year-old Babe Ruth baseball game played on the fairgrounds diamond.

Tim Bottem also had three hits for the Elks, who out-hit the Merchants 12-3. Crookston also collected six of the game's eight errors.

The Elks took a 4-1 lead into the fourth and broke the game open with a six-run inning. Winning pitcher Brian Garceau, who helped himself with a two-run double, struck out eight and walked three as the Elks pushed their record to 13-1.



GRAND FORKS ROYALS base runner Tom Montgomery kicked up a cloud of dirt on a stolen base attempt in the first inning, but Thief River Falls second baseman Rob Blankenfeld took the throw from catcher Jim Hallamek and applied the tag for out during the first game of Thursday's American Legion baseball doubleheader played here. The Royals beat Thief River Falls 9-1 in the first game and came from behind to win the nightcap 7-6.

North Star Transport pulled off three double plays in the game, or Schmidts may have won it in a regulation seven innings.

North Star Transport took a 3-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning, mixing walks to Darrell Stromlund and Ron Ostby around a single to center by Larry Coltom, followed by a two-run single by Mike Kvarnlov.

Schmidts cut the margin to 3-2 in the second inning as Dave Kays laced a two-run double to left to score Vern Lindquist and Mark Haats.

Mark DuChamp pitched a four-hit shutout as Action Realty pounded Melvies 10-0 in the second half of Wednesday's doubleheader.

A pair of walks and a throwing error gave Action Realty a 2-0 lead in the bottom of the first without the benefit of a base hit. In fact, Action Realty went without a hit until the fifth when Tim Engelstad beat out a bunt single. That opened the foodgates. Before the inning was over Action Realty scored seven runs on four walks, two hit batters, three hits and a couple of wild pitches.

Duane Gonsorowski's two-out triple in the top of the second inning was the only base hit off Hendrickson, who proved to be a one-man show.

Dean Lawrenz was holding Popplers hitless until Hendrickson led off the bottom of the fifth by hitting a 1-0 pitch over the left field fence for the only run he needed. However, Popplers struck for three more runs on three more hits, a walk and a wild pitch before the inning was over.

Popplers scored again in the sixth on a two-run double by Mark Schmitke and an error.

MS Sno Rally Switched To Quadna Resort

Multiple Sclerosis society has announced that the MS Sno Rally 500 snowmobiling weekend will be moved to Quadna Mountain resort in Hill City on January 28 and 29, 1982.

Last winter, Minnesota snowmobilers raised over $100,000 for research and patient services to people with multiple sclerosis. The balmy winter did not affect enthusiasm.

Sno Rally 500 is a two-day, 250-mile pledged snowmobile marathon. Participants are required to have a minimum of $500 in sponsorship for the ride.

MS sno rally is sponsored by Quadna Mountain resort and is approved by the Minnesota United Snowmobilers association and the Minnesota Broadcasters association.

Due to the popularity of the MS Sno Rally, registrations are being accepted now.

Loon Needs Help, Reports State DNR

Your help is needed to protect the loon, Minnesota's beautiful state bird, says the Department of Natural Resources.

Carrol Henderson, DNR non-game specialist, said loons are very sensitive to human disturbance during the nesting season and no one should approach a loon nest for any reason — not even just to look at it or to take a picture.

When a loon is frightened from its next, the eggs can be destroyed by ravens, gulls or raccoons. The eggs can also become chilled, causing the embryos to die.

Henderson also said anglers should not discard monofilament fishing line in lakes since loons and other birds often become entagled in them and drown.

He said watercraft operators should be aware that loons can also die of exhaustion if pursued by a motorboat, and chicks can drown in the boat's wake.

"Sometimes when a loon is approached, said Henderson, "it will stand up on the water with its wings folded like a penguin. The 'penguin dance' is a sign of extreme distress, and is usually accompanied by frantic calls. It is a desperate effort by the loons to protect their nests or families. If you cause such a response, you should leave the area immediately."

Loons need solitude, he cautioned. "Respect them and their need for privacy during the nesting season."

Harassment or killing of loons should be reported to the local conservation officer since the birds are completely protected under state law.

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources is conducting a volunteer "loon observation program" this summer. If you have a pair of loons nesting on your lake this year and you would like to report on the success of the loons' nesting effort, write to Carrol Henderson, Nongame Wildlife Supervisor, DNR, Box 7, Centennial Building, 658 Cedar Street, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Ask for a loon observation card for each loon family you will be reporting on. The program is funded by the nongame wildlife tax checkoff.

Great Blue Whale, which grows to a length of more than 100 feet, is the largest animal in the world.

DNR Planning Outdoor School Camp This Fall

Environmental education section of the DNR will again offer its Outdoor Leadership School at Camp Miller, Sturgeon Lake, October 9-12, it was announced this week.

A second weekend (a new feature added this year) will be offered Oct. 15-18 as a follow-up field experience somewhere in the Minnesota northwoods for those attending the first session.

Approximately 150 Minnesota schools, numerous summer camps, Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts, naturalists and other groups offer outdoor education programs to their students. The outdoor skills learned and practiced in these programs provide students with an adventure, the chance to explore the natural environment and the opportunity to learn about the principles of resource management safety and with minimum environmental impact.

Outdoor Leadership School is for people who want to improve their skills and develop their leadership potential.

First four day session, Oct. 9-12, consists of 4-hour and 8-hour skill-leadership classes. Those taking part in this program can elect which courses they want to participate in and they may choose to attend any combination of days. Cost is $25 each day (one day minimum).

Evenings are a part of the school program and will emphasize the skills of leadership and expedition planning.

Second four-day, October 15-18 session will consist of small expeditions which will be planned during the evenings of the first weekend. Participation in these outings requires attendance at the first session.

Those electing the hunter education options will have their hunting experience on the weekend of October 30-November 1. Cost is $95.

Each expedition will place emphasis on minimum-impact recreation, understanding of natural history and skill development. All costs include meals, lodging, training and materials.

A qualified staff of instructors present classes in how to teach or lead a group in the following areas: wilderness canoeing, backpacking, climbing, orienteering, hunting, survival, wilderness first aid and other outdoor skills.

The conference is co-hosted with the Northwoods Audubon Center and supported by the Minnesota environmental education board (MEEB), Minnesota department of education and the Minnesota association of outdoor and environmental education (MAEOE).

Those interested in participating in the next DNR Outdoor Leadership School to be held during Oct. 1981, should write to DNR Outdoor Leadership School, Education Section, Bureau of I & E, Box 46, Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155, telephone (612) 296-3336.

Nothing Fishy About Safety Precautions

Minnesota safety council says there's nothing fishy about taking basic safety precautions before dropping a line in a favorite fishing hole. Council offers a guide for the novice and a reminder for the experienced one as well to give the next fish story a safe and happy ending.

Know how to swim and know basic first aid. Tell someone where you plan to fish, mentioning also when you plan to return. Take a friend along for company and for assistance in the event of emergencies.

Listen to weather forecasts and prepare accordingly.

Stow needle-nose pliers, wire cutters and a pocket knife in your tackle box. Remember to pack a simple first aid kit as well.

Avoid fishing in waters where there are swimmers or scuba divers. If you fish from a boat, carry a personal flotation device for every person aboard. Don't anchor your boat in channels or tie it up to a buoy — these are traffic lanes and must be kept clear.

If wading, watch for drop-offs into deep water and for unsteady rocks in fastrunning streams.

Should a hook snag you, cut it from the line, put a dressing on the injured area and get to a doctor.

Avoid drinking alcoholic beverages before driving your boat, especially on hot summer days.

Wetland Areas Must Be Added Soon Says Watt

Secretary of the Interior James Watt, commenting at a recent meeting of the migratory bird conservation commission, said he supports continued land acquisition to preserve wetland and wildlife habitat, on a "willing seller" basis. "In contrast to other land purchases the Interior Department is authorized to make, we must move aggressively on wetland areas. They may not be available if we wait," Watt said, referring to the physically fragile nature of wetland areas.

As Secretary of the Interior, Watt is chairman of the migratory bird conservation commission which approves areas to be purchased by the Interior Department from the migratory bird conservation fund. Proceeds from the sale of federal duck stamps (migratory bird hunting and conservation stamp) to waterfowl hunters 16 years of age or older provide about $16.5 million in revenues to the fund each year.

On June 2, the commission met and approved the expenditure of funds for 14 tracts of land which were inholdings on national wildlife refuges. The refuges include Barnegat national wildlife refuge in Ocean county, New Jersey; Humboldt Bay national wildlife refuge in California; and Rachel Carson national Wildlife refuge in Maine.

The inholdings totalled 725 acres and were purchased for $1,163,000. More than 123,000 acres of other migratory bird wetland habitat have been approved for purchase by the Commission as funds become available.

"These properties are being acquired from willing sellers and are lands of high priority due to their resource value. They will be managed by the government as feeding and resting areas for the continent's ducks and geese. But the areas will also be available to the public for a variety of other uses such as birdwatching, fishing, hunting and just enjoying the outdoors," Watt said.

Tournament Pairings Set

Library Games On Bookmobile

Northwest regional library is offering special activities on the bookmobile for children this summer. First, there is a reading game designed like "Monopoly" which involves the use of a game board. Each player simply throws dice, moves over the number of squares indicated by the count on the dice, and then follows the instructions on the square.

The game offers a summer of fun in reading and prizes, according to librarian Barbara Jauquet. In addition, the bookmobile librarians are showing films, conducting storytimes and introducing crafts to children. One such craft is paper-folded airplanes that really fly. Children may enjoy these activities at the following stops:

Tuesday, July 7, 21; August 4, 18 — Plummer municipal auditorium, 10:30 to 11:30 a.m.; Oklee auditorium, 1 to 2 p.m.;

Tuesday, July 14, 28; August 11, 25 — Wannaska school, 9 to 10 a.m.; Malung hall, 10:45 to 11:45 a.m.;

Wednesday, July 8, 22; August 5, 19 — Badger community center, 9 to 9:45 a.m.; Middle River community center, 10:45 to 11:45 a.m.; and Grygla civic building, 2:15 to 3:15 p.m.;

Wednesday, July 15, 29; August 12, 25 — Lancaster city hall community center, 9:15 to 10:15 a.m.; Lake Bronson Kittson county museum, 11 a.m. to 12 noon; and Karlstad city hall, 1:30 to 2:30 p.m.;

Thursday, July 9, 23; August 6, 20 — Goodridge hall, 9:15 to 10:15 a.m.; Viking community center, 11 a.m. to 12 noon; Newfolden community center, 12:45 to 1:45 p.m.; and Strandquist school, 2 to 2:45 p.m.

Thursday, July 16, 30; August 13, 27 — Humboldt school, 10:15 to 11:15 a.m.; Kennedy community center, 12:15 to 1:15 p.m.; and Stephen filtration plant, 2 to 3 p.m.

Friday, July 10, 24; August 7, 21 — Oslo, Home 20 cafe, 9 to 10 a.m.; Alvarado fire hall, 10:45 to 11:45 a.m.; and Argyle community center, 1:15 to 2:15 p.m.

In 1980 Northwest regional library's bookmobile circulated 43,680 items to citizens throughout the region. That's more than an 18 per cent increase over the previous year. More and more people are using the resources in the bookmobile, Jauquet said.

Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Peres

Q. Pastor Don, is it right for a person to say that he is saved and going to heaven when he dies? How can he be sure until he gets there?

A. I have really been amazed during the last few years to find several people who feel it is presumptuous to say they have the assurance of going to heaven before they die.

Yet I feel that the Bible is full of scriptures that promise us this assurance in Christ.

I believe the scriptures teach, whosoever puts their complete trust in Jesus Christ and His shed blood to forgive them of their sins, has every right Biblically to make such claims.

I John 5:13 says, "These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life."

II Timothy 1:12 says, "For I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day."

John 3:36 says, "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life."

Romans 8:38-39 teaches, "For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the Love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

John 3:16 says, "For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

These are just a few of the many, many promises that God has made in the scriptures.

We can have the assurance about where we are going to spend eternity, if we truly know Christ as our personal Saviour. John 14:6

If you have any questions that you would like to have answered from the Bible, please write Pastor Don Peres, Box 129, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

Commedia Co. To Perform At Art In The Park

Thief River Falls community arts council's Art in The Park Renaissance festival on Friday, July 17, in Thief River Falls will feature a performance by the Commedia theater company. From 10 a.m. until 5 p.m., artwork and handwork will be on display in L.B. Hartz park beside the national guard armory.

In a Renaissance atmosphere, food will be available, musical performances given, and children's activities provided. At 6 p.m. a pork dinner will be served in the park, and at 7 p.m. the Commedia theater company will present a hilarious, rollicking comedy "Love in Naples".

The play is set in Renaissance Italy and is the age-old story about parents imposing their wills on others, the ensuing chaos, and the inevitable happy ending resulting from undeniable love and an undying sense of humor.

Tickets for the pork dinner and the Commedia theater company are $4 and must be purchased in advance. Tickets are available from Community arts council members, and Larson music company.

Audience members are reminded to bring blankets or folding chairs for the outdoor production.

MISCHIEF AHEAD is seen by Arlechino (Jae Hansen) and his spry friend Columbia (Carolyn Goelzer) in this scene from Commedia Theatre company's "Love in Naples". The play will be presented during Art in the Park in Thief River Falls Friday, July 17. Tickets for the play and a pork barbecue prior to the outdoor production are $4 each and available from members of the Thief River Falls arts council or at Larson Music company.

Five Nominated For Hospital Trusteeship

Five candidates, including one incumbent, have been placed in nomination for election to the board of trustees of Northwestern hospital services by the nominating committee. Election will be held at the annual meeting of the association September 14.

Placed in nomination by the committee are Evadell Tangquist, incumbent, Fran Stromberg, Silas Hanson, Ken Murphy and Arve Moser. Mrs. Tangquist is completing her first three-year term. Three trustees are to be elected at the annual meeting.

Two other incumbents have terms expiring this year. Marvin Lundin is completing three terms on the board and is ineligible for reelection under by-laws of the organization. Andrew Skaar, who has served in excess of five years by filling an unexpired term and one full three-year term, has decided not to seek reelection. Gene Beito was chairman of the nominating committee with Henrietta Ness and James Engelstad as members.

According to the by-laws of the corporation, the nominating committee is to submit a written list of one or more nominees for each trustee position open, together with a written consent of each nominee, on or before July 1. The list is open for inspection by any members of the association at the hospital office.

In addition, any member of the association may submit in writing additional nominees for membership on the board of trustees. Nominees must be members of the association and provide written consent to serve if elected. Such nominations from among the membership must be submitted to the secretary of the association at the hospital office by noon on the first Monday in August (August 3).

Marcy Reierson Enters Pageant

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of interviews with candidates for the Miss Thief River Falls title at the Jaycee Aquacade pageant to be held August 1 in the Lincoln high school auditorium. The pageant is an official Miss America preliminary event.)

While the school year has kept Marcy Reierson close to the books through high school and college, summertime will often find her riding bicycle, swimming, playing softball or jogging.

Marcy, 22, is a 1977 graduate of Marshall county central high school at Newfolden, 1979 graduate of Northland community college and 1981 graduate of Bemidji state university (cum laude) with a BS degree in elementary education. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Reierson of Newfolden, she is five feet seven inches tall, weighs 120 pounds, has light brown hair and blue yes. Her pageant talent number will be a reading.

While in high school she as a member of the National Honor soceity for three years, performed in the danceline for four years and served as captain, was president of the Future Homemakers of America chapter and vice president of FHA District I and president of the office education association. She played in the band for four years and participated in speech activities for three years. She was also in the track team and in the pep club.

Also active in 4-H club work, she served as club president, song leader, reporter, member of the Marshall county 4-H executive council and secretary of the county 4-H federation. She won several trips to the state fair in child care, conservation and poultry projects.

BICYCLE RIDING is a favorite summer activity for Marcy Reierson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Reierson of Newfolden. The 22-year-old cum laude graduate of Bemidji state university is among candidates for the Miss Thief River Falls title at the Jaycee Aquacade pageant August 1.

Reelect Wiebolt As Board Chairman

Kenneth Wiebolt was reelected to a second term as chairman of the Thief River Falls board of education at the reorganizational meeting conducted Monday evening at the school district service center.

Larry McDowell was reelected vice chairman and Harry Sjulson was elected clerk to succeed Kenneth Murphy who is no longer a board member. Myrle Carlson was elected treasurer to succeed Sjulson. Annual salaries will remain the same at $3,000 for chairman, $2,400 for vice chairman, $2,800 for clerk, $2,600 for treasurer and $2,400 for directors.

At a public hearing conducted at 8 p.m. to hear comment on a proposed discretionary mill levy, no one appeared to participate in the discussion. The levy of 3.4[illegible] mills in local taxation would produce $193,140 in local funds for general operations of the district, but qualify the district for an additional $246,460 in state aids.

Supt. Robert Block, who assumed the superintendency July 1, presided at the reorganizational meeting until the board chairman was elected. Block welcomed Arnt Aune as a new member of the board. In addition to electing officers, the board designated First Northwestern state bank as the district's bank for accounts payable and Northern state bank as the district's bank for the payroll account. The Times was again named the district's official newspaper.

Board meeting dates were once again scheduled for the second and fourth Mondays of each month with special meetings subject to call. Assignments made by chairman Wiebolt include: Myrle Carlson, Minnesota state high school league representative; Wally Grovum, city planning commission; Harry Sjulson, city-county-school coordinating committee; Greg Pribula, K-12 and AVTI program growth committees; and Arnt Aune, PER committee. Wiebolt will serve on the center school governing board and as the school board's representative on the chamber of commerce board.

Ken Wiebolt

The board reaffirmed its involvement in interviewing candidates for head coaching positions and favored having athletes stay in hotels rather than homes on out-of-town trips.

The board decided to substitute a second new house project for the AVTI carpentry class for the remodeling project normally conducted each year. A ceiling of $48,000 was put on the project with a subcommittee including Larry McDowell and Greg Pribula from the board to review the carpentry projects for the 1982-83 year. Administration was authorized to advertise for a lot for building the second new house project and bids for materials, plumbing, heating and electrical work for the first new house project for 1981-82.

Alan Swanson was hired as data processing occupations instructor at the AVTI. Membership in the Minnesota school boards association was approved at an annual fee of $2,315.76, and an AVTI service fee of $436 was approved as well.

Board members were reminded of an orientation meeting to be held July 14 in Minneapolis under sponsorship of the Minnesota school boards association.

Planning Commission Tables Rezoning Issue

Bringing approximately 30 concerned citizens to the planning commission meeting conducted Monday evening in the city auditorium in Thief River Falls was an item concerning rezoning.

Request by Julian Gunderson, landowner and developer, was for a change in zoning from agriculture to R3 high density residential for approximately 3.5 acres of property located west of State avenue at Ninth street. Gunderson presently has 24 units available for elderly persons north of the Red Carpet apartments on Eighth street and State avenue. His request would involve the construction of 32 similar units west of State avenue at Ninth street for low income senior citizen housing.

Gunderson commented Monday evening that he did not feel there was a traffic problem in the area of the present units — a major concern of those opposed to the rezoning of the property.

Opponents outnumbered proponents to the request as persons were given time to state their feelings either for or against the zoning change.

Loan application for construction of the units, made through Farmer's Home administration (FmHA), is available to cities with populations fewer than 10,000.

Question arose by Les Sabo, planning commissioner, following statements by Gunderson, of surveys taken indicating a direct need for such facilities within the city.

Survey taken in May of this year, as indicated by Jan Thorstad, administrative assistant, was that there are presently 90 people on waiting lists for elderly housing in this city at the four major senior citizen housing units including Skylite apartments, Riverview Terrace apartments, Northland village, and Gunderson's apartments.

"Persons on these lists have not been determined yet as income eligible, however," Thorstad indicated.

"There are 24 on the waiting list now for our units," Gunderson said, adding that approximately 60 per cent of these included persons from the surrounding farming area.

Majority of those speaking against the rezoning for such development structures were concerned, not with housing for the elderly, but for the traffic problems created by such a development, and the drainage problem existing in that area (indicated by Jack Quinlivan, city planner). It

Scholin And Teske Vows Said At Black River Church

Jocy Carol Scholin and Gregory T. Teske exchanged marriage vows recently at the Black River Lutheran church, rural St. Hilaire.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arlo Scholin of Thief River Falls. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Theophil Teske of Beulah, N.D.

Rev. Keith Prekker and Rev. James Bernauer officiated at the double ring ecumenical ceremony that began with selections by a recorder quartet composed of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Ricci, Cindy Mosbeck and Pat Larson. Pianist Mrs. Donald Mosbeck played "Ode to Joy," as the wedding party entered the church. Following the invocation, the assembled guests read Psalm 138 and sang "O Perfect Love." Scripture readings were from Genesis and I Corinthians, and the homily was given by Rev. Bernauer. The ceremony concluded with the solo "The Gift of Love," by Diane Mosbeck, a friend of the couple, and the recessional, "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring."

The bride, escorted to the altar by her parents, wore a white wedding gown and her mother's wedding headpiece featuring orange blossoms and seed pearls. She carried a long-stemmed red rose tied with a white ribbon.

The groom, also escorted by his parents, was attired in a white vested tuxedo with a red rose boutonniere.

Carolyn Armstrong, a friend of the couple, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Charlene Teske, sister of the groom; Roseann Johnson, a friend of the couple; and Rose Ann Teske, a sister of the groom. They wore bright blue dresses and carried long-stemmed red roses tied with red ribbon.

Joseph Teske attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Garry Teske, another brother of the groom; Jeff Kottenbrock, a cousin of the groom, and Tom Scholin, a brother of the bride. They, like the couple's fathers, wore grey tuxedos with red rose boutonnieres.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Scholin chose a light blue dress. The groom's mother was attired in aqua.

The bride's personal attendant was Laural Sylvester, a friend of the couple.

Serving as ushers were Mark Sorvig, friend of the couple; James Teske, brother of the groom; and Marvin Bauer, a brother-in-law of the groom. Mary Teske, a sister of the groom, attended the guest book.

Host and hostess at the reception that followed were Mr. and Mrs. Einar Scholin, uncle and aunt of the bride. Carol Sorvig, Pam Swanson and Lynn Mosbeck poured punch and carried the gifts.

The three-tiered wedding cake, decorated with fresh roses and a gold cross, was cut and served by Linda Hunter, cousin of the bride, and Joyce Bauer, sister of the groom. Coffee was poured by the bride's aunts, Elna Lindblom and Irene Scholin. Waitresses were Lynn and Jeri Dyrdal, Tina Kruse, Joni Mosbeck, Pam Srnsky and Wanda Sylvester.

Commission Tables Issue On Rezoning

was noted that there are presently 18 acres of R3 property now vacant within the city. "Why not use space that is already zoned R3 rather than change an area from agriculture to R3?" was a question posed by one citizen to planning commissioners.

"I'm not against housing for the elderly," stated Kenneth Berg, property owner. "I would just like to see the space kept for elderly folks and the needy (if the development were to occur following rezoning approval).

Following Berg's comments was the idea of the need for such construction in view of the total economic picture at this time.

It was also indicated Monday evening that the denial of the R3 request for multifamily dwellings could be followed by a special use R2 request which would place restrictions on the multifamily units, according to Quinlivan.

Several stated during the meeting that until recently, occupancy at present enderly housing units was 100 per cent.

After both sides of the issue had been presented to planning commissioners, Don Barron introduced the resolution to deny the rezoning request until further studies are done on (1) soil characteristics in the area; (2) surface water problem evident in the area; and (3) street access. The motion failed in the absence of a second.

Barron then introduced the resolution to table the issue until further studies of the three major areas explained above were done. Resolution was based also on a potential resolution developed between Gunderson and the neighborhood. Motion to table was seconded by commissioner Glenn Peterson and the motion carried. Planning commissioners now have 45 days to bring the issue off the table.

Majority of those in attendance at the meeting departed following the tabling decision reached by the commission.

Short discussion was presented by Dave Alberts, director of community development services of the National Association of Housing and Redevelopment Officials, Washington, D.C., following the regular planning commission meeting.

Discussion centered around the status of current block grant programs on the national and local levels, and the use of such grants for future projects.

"We all know that something needs to happen in this country," Alberts commented, in his examination of the national perspective of the block grant program. He explained further the changes that must be made in the future as a result of fewer dollars at the federal level for such programs. Result will be changes in the formula for the distribution of block grants to smaller communities, he said.

Major emphasis stressed by Alberts was the "need to look ahead at the changes that will be occurring."

It was approved last winter that the city of Thief River Falls would receive one-third of the funds requested for a rental rehabilitation program outlined in the block grant program through the Housing and Redevelopment Authority. Planning commission had asked for an amount of $450,000 for a three-phase project. Of the three phases, the rental rehabilitation program was accepted for funding in an amount of $98,000.

HISTORICAL MATERIALS were presented to the Pennington county historical society recently by the Black River Lutheran church which observed its 100th anniversary during the July 4 and 5 weekend. Clifton Johnson, chairman of the church council, presented a souvenir plate and copy of the church's historical book to Inga Geving, president of the historical society. The plate and book will be placed in the county's historical museum at Pennington Pioneer Village.

Leaders Named For Extension Area Program

Agricultural extension service of the University of Minnesota has announced the three persons who will lead the extension efforts in agriculture, 4-H and home economics-family living in the 15 counties of northwestern Minnesota. The appointments were effective July 1.

District program leaders will be Harry Burcalow, agriculture; Barbara Jessen-Klixbull, home economics-family living; and Richard Byrne, 4-H.

Burcalow was formerly acting district extension director and earlier assistant district extension director for the 12-county northwest extension service district. Prior to that, he was Winona county extension director and Aitkin county extension director. He will be district extension director, chairing the team of three program leaders.

Jessen-Klixbull, district program leader for home economics-family living, has been serving as an administrative assistant in the office of the director of the Minnesota agricultural extension service. Prior to that, she was county extension agent in East Polk county, Clearwater county, Stearns county and Steele county for a total of about 12 years.

Richard Byrne, district program leader for 4-H, has been coordinator of the action learning program, a community-based alternative educational effort operating out of a Minneapolis Junior high school. At the same, he was a social studies teacher in that school. Most recently, he was a 4-H agent in Ramsey County.

Pamphlet Gives Truck Weight Limit Changes

Detailed information on revised highway weight limits for trucks is now available from the state patrol, the Minnesota departments of transportation and public safety announced. A state patrol pamphlet provides information on the weight limit changes which will become effective August 1.

The law passed by the 1981 Minnesota legislature allows 80,000 pound gross weight loads for trucks having six axles on all roads designated at nine-tons per axle (73,280 pounds gross weight) ratings in Minnesota. The law also allows all trucks to carry loads 10 per cent above posted limits during certain winter months and increases allowable loads for some tandem and triple-axle truck configurations.

"Increasing allowable gross weights will benefit truckers by enabling them to carry heavier loads and help shippers and their respective communities by improving access to grain elevators, shipping terminals, factories and other facilities," said Transportation Commissioner Richard P. Braun.

Braun said there are about 150 cities and some 200 elevators which, until the law was changed, could be reached only by highways permitting nine-ton axle loads and 73,280 pounds of gross weight.

The addition of a sixth axle to standard five-axle, tractor-trailer combinations, Braun said, will distribute the trucks' weight more evenly and thereby reduce damage to Minnesota's highway system.

Other provisions of the law set minimum widths for truck tires, specify spacing for multiple axles, direct use of variable-load axles and change penalties for exceeding legal truck weight limits.

Col. Roger Ledding of the state patrol said the pamphlets are available without charge by calling or visiting district patrol offices or by writing to the Minnesota State Patrol, 107 Transportation Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Oklee To Have Red Lake Co. Fair In 1982

Because installation of equipment for artificial ice has eliminated use of the Red Lake Falls arena for the Red Lake county fair, the county fair board has decided to move the 1982 fair to facilities at Oklee.

This year's event will be held under restricted conditions at Red Lake Falls, according to DeeAnn Lienes, county extension agent at Red Lake Falls. The fair is scheduled for July 20, 21-22 (Monday through Wednesday) with Tuesday being 4-H night.

Whereas the fair was able to use the arena for exhibit area in prior years and two bus garages for livestock and other exhibits, this year all of the 4-H and open class exhibits (except livestock) will be crowded into one bus garage. Livestock entered by 4-H club members will be housed in the other garage. A tent will be rented for use as a food stand.

Tuesday night's 4-H style revue has been scheduled outdoors with a platform built on the baseball diamond. Program will open with a county King Agassiz cornation at 7:30 p.m., followed by presentation of two share-the-fun acts and then the style revue. In case of rain the school or community hall will be used for the program.

Lienes said that the Oklee community hall and school would be available for the 1982 fair and thar privately-owned buildings are also under consideration. The carnival would be located on the main street and all activities would be within walking distance of one another. Consideration is also being given to adding open class livestock to the premium list.

The Oklee community club and Oklee city council have been working with the fair board and county extension office to make arrangements for moving the fair to Oklee next year.

Winter Shows Board Holds Annual Meet

Red River Valley winter shows board of managers held its annual meeting at the agricultural research center recently to complete routine business of reports from several committees and reorganization of the board for the coming year.

A new bylaw was adopted a year ago which requires that a first and second vice president be elected annually. These two offices are training positions for the presidency. A president is elected annually and can serve two terms commencing in 1982. This means hat in 1982, for the first time in the 70-year history of the Red River Valley winter shows, the show will have a president other than the superintendent of the agricultural experiment station.

This change has been in the planning stages during recent years so that a smooth transition of the menagement functions, which have been provided as a public service by B.E. Youngquist, can be properly transferred to other members of the board and to personnel in the winter shows office.

The officers elected for the immediate year ahead are: B.E. Youngquist, president; James Lofgren, first vice president and secretary-treasurer and George Nornes, second vice president.

Lofgren reported on the completion of the refinancing in which industrial revenue bonds were engaged to establish an appropriate long-time financing package. This arrangement resulted in a lower rate of interest. Refinancing consolidates the capital debt service at less cost and also provides additional monies for needed capital improvements.

An ad hoc committee headed by Don Sargent reported and recommended a list of priority items for capital improvement to include the kitchen, winter shows offices, lighting system and completion of outside parking lots with gravel and drainage. Some discussion also suggested that the 20-year-old livestock show pens must be replaced soon. Some ventilation in the attics in both of the arenas is needed under heavy crowd conditions.

Directors who were reelected were Lester Amundson, Red River Valley Potato Growers association; George Nornes, Minnesota Vo-Ag Instructors; Roger Odegaard, Red River Valley Dairymen's association; James Olslund, Red River Valley Livestock association; and Sam Bigger, agricultural extension service. New directors elected were Herb Mauritson, Red River Valley Horse Breeders association; and John Thomforde, Northern Minnesota Poultry association.

The meeting adjourned about noon for a special luncheon at which time the board honored former members for their service and who have retired in recent years. Honored were Allan Dragseth, Eldred; Harold Thomforde, Crookston; Bob McDonald, Fisher; Mrs. Verle Peterson, Crookston; and Mrs. Marilyn Hagen, Mentor.

The fall meeting was set for Monday, November 2.

To The Editor:

Yesterday I received the "Times" and was appalled at your "coverage" of the pig wrestle. If you call that newsworthy, or even journalism, I'm canceling my subscription.

Pigs are intelligent animals, far more so than the humans that they had to contend with. If someone had been bitten, I'm sure the animal would have been killed outright. But who started the fight?! Really poor!

Surely the "Pork Producers" can find another way to promote their product. As of now, I don't care if I ever buy pork again!

Medicare Now Covers Exams After Surgery

Improvement to medicare benefits for persons who have had cataract surgery went into effect on July 1.

According to the Minnesota Optometric association, medicare now pays for most of the services provided by a doctor of optometry following cataract surgery. Such services, primarily eye examination procedures, were not reimbursable in the past.

In addition, Medicare will continue to pay for the cost of eyeglasses or contact lenses prescribed following cataract surgery.

Dr. Alan Paymar, president of the Minnesota Optometric Association said the new Medicare coverage "enables persons who have had cataract surgery to continue to receive eye care from their regular doctor of optometry and be reimbursed by Medicare".

He added that persons who have had cataract surgery or plan to have it should talk to their optometrist or contact the Minnesota Optometric Association, 207-S Griggs-Midway Bldg., St. Paul, MN 55104 for specific details on Medicare coverage.

The legislation granting this and other Medicare improvements was adipted by the U.S. Congress and signed into law by the President in December, 1980.

Arthritis Of Knee Explained By Foundation

What's the largest joint in the body? It's the knee. And what's a joint that moves — bending and straightening — over a hundred times a minute when we walk? The knee again. Yet the normal knee is, such a perfect joint that most of us are unaware of its movement.

The arthritic knee is something else again. Here the cartilage is worn away or pitted from disease, leaving uneven surfaces to grate painfully together.

Treatment of arthritic knees will vary according to each case, an Arthritis foundation spokesman reported. Sometimes medication is the best answer. Other times realignment of the knee is called for. And, in recent years, total joint replacement has become highly successful, especially for less active patients.

During July the Arthritis foundation has a special message on arthritis of the knee that may be heard by calling the foundation's toll-free number, 1-800-552-1278. A leaflet on arthritis of the knee is available free to callers. Answers to other questions about arthritis will be sought as well.

Information and referral is one of the free services of the Arthritis foundation made possible in most Minnesota communities by support of the United Fund.

World Of Art, Music Is Fascinating Journey

A PERFECTIONIST at his work, Dan Jahr, formerly of Thief River Falls, has combined his love for art and music into a lifetime profession in Oshkosh, WI. In his art studio, Jahr restores string instruments, primarily the violin, and constructs harps. He has built 12 harps this year and intends to build 12 harps per month at the same time next year, he stated in a recent story appearing in an Oshkosh newspaper. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Jahr of this city.

Dan Jahr, 31, has attained the goal he has strived for a great deal of his lifetime.

Jahr, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Jahr of Thief River Falls, is an important asset to the folks of Oshkosh, WI, especially to those summoning the craftsman's skill at constructing harps and restoring string instruments, primarily the violin. His 20 years as a musician have helped him in his work, as he plays all the instruments he works on. In addition to playing violin and harp, he also plays guitar, banjo, mandolin, string bass and tin whistle.

Jahr's story recently appeared in "The Weekend Northwestern," an Oshkosh newspaper and "The Milwaukee Journal."

The perfectionist can be seen almost any time of the day in his art studio, striving to shape wood into perfect "lines," according to the Oshkosh paper ("lines" being scrollwork on the part of the violin having the tuning pegs).

"Line is everything," he commented. "A nice line is going to be noticed by someone who knows what he's doing."

Jahr has worked with string instruments for over seven years, and has recently become involved with what he calls a "fascinating journey," in which his love and dedication to the world of art and music have been combined.

Jahr has built 12 harps this year, and intends to build 12 harps per month at the same time next year. His work involves designing the instrument on paper, building it, then taking the parts and using them to make templates so all following instuments are the same.

Jahr produces only folk harps — not the larger concert harps which bear little resemblance to the folk variety. Folk harps have shorter strings and are easier to pluck than concert harps, which also include a foot pedal mechanism.

Jahr gained knowledge on instrument repair while attending a Minnesota technical school, and then traveled to Chicago where he worked and studied for a short time at Bein-Fushi Fine Violins. Experience Jahr received at the violin shop was helpful but the pay was poor, and the artist moved on. His love for the work carried him to a commercial music store where he worked for Vincent Skoronski, a violin broker and virtuoso, and Antal Paztor, the Hungarian-born instrument repairman.

Jahr has restored many old German and Italian instruments, including one which he considers the nicest cello in the world, made by A & H Amati in 1583. Since his shop is large and he is exposed to a variety of instruments from different eras he has learned to identify the classic instruments.

"People bring me a violin and I say, 'German, 17th century.' They want to know how I knew that. I say, 'Look at that car out there — what kind is it?' When they say, 'a Chevy,' I ask them, 'How did you know that?' Well, I've seen a lot of 17th century German Violins," he said.

Jahr has spent the last four years, 12 hours daily, with no vacation, working on violin repair and instrument-making but he says he still has a lot to learn.

"It's been a long process, and I'm nowhere what you'd call a master. I'm just finishing what you might call an apprenticeship," he said. And although he loves the harp, he prefers working with violins.

Jahr feels there is so little line to harps, while violins are nothing but lines. To Jahr, the violin is a finely-crafted instrument, while the harp, much like a cabinet, is more like furniture. Harps have a lacquer finish, he said, but the finish in violins is made up of different compounds.

Jahr feels he knows more about violins than he does about harps, because there's little technical information available on harps. "Violins have been dissected by scientists, mathematicians, physicists and musicians but nobody has paid much attention to harps," he said. "There are lots of technical problems with harp-building, but no way to solve them other than by trial-and-error."

No one taught Jahr anything about harps, he said, although work at his studio has enabled him to learn much about them. With violins, time has to be spent in the library studying chemistry and doing research to learn about them.

Jahr uses power tools in part of his harp-building work but his violin repairs are done entirely by hand. He said that harp-building is easy compared to violin repair, but that harp-building is still a difficult task.

When Jahr first began in the musical instrument business, he knew woodworking techniques, but he didn't understand the mathematics required for instrument making and repairing.

"The physics are very involved," he explained. "The violin was developed through mathematics — no magic, but a lot of thought."

Mathematics involved in harp-making is by no means simple, according to Jahr. Every harp is different. "I can't determine before hand where the notes are going to be," he said. "A sixteenth of an inch will dramatically affect the pitch, so it's hard to determine what the pitch will be. I have a slide rule specifically designaed to tell me what string to put where, but it's still hard to know what gauge of string to use."

Jahr enjoys his work and is pleased with the results he has produced during the past few years, both in the harp-making and instrument repair business. He's always had an interest in art and music, he said, and considers himself lucky for becoming involved with a combination of them both.

"This is a combination of everything I like," he said, describing his work.

"It's been a real struggle financially and mentally, just getting my skills to where I want them to be," he commented.

Jahr, a perfectionist, builds his harps to last — a couple of centuries. "I want them to be around a lot longer than I am, and I don't intend to die young," he concluded.

"HARPS ARE SO easy to play, and so lovely to look at," stated Dan Jahr, Oshkosh, WI harp-builder and string instrument repairman in a recent issue of an Oshkosh newspaper. Jahr, 31, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Jahr of Thief River Falls. Jahr's love and dedication to the world of art and music have combined to form a lifetime business which he calls a "fascinating journey."

Partial Lunar Eclipse To Be Visible July 16

A partial lunar eclipse will darken the night skies of the Upper Midwest on July 16.

An eclipse of the moon happens when the earth passes precisely between the sun and the full moon. Earth blocks the sun's light, preventing it from reaching the moon, and cases its own shadow into the moon. If the moon's orbit weren't tilted, a total lunar eclipse would occur every month on the day of the full moon. But, since the moon orbits us at a five degree angle, it often misses the shadow or is shadowed only partly by the earth.

The only lunar eclipse visible the rest of this year from the Upper Midwest, this month's event is only a half-eclipse. Beginning at 10:25 p.m., Earth's shadow will seem to bite at the bottom of the moon, as the moon enters Earth's shadow, or "umbra." By 11:47 p.m., the entire lower half of the moon will have darkened. By 1:09 a.m., the partial eclipse will be over.

Eclipse watchers will notice a reddish glow to the shadow on the moon. The reddish tinge is created by a bit of sunlight coming from behind us, shining through the edge of Earth's atmosphere, and falling on the moon's surface. When light passes through a thick layer of atmosphere, it is scattered by air particles which deflect the bluer colors and leave the redder ones. The same phenomenon creates red sunsets near the horizon, where the sun must also shine through a thick layer of air.

An eclipse of the sun also will be visible later this month but only from sections of the Caucasus mountains, Siberia and the Pacific ocean.

The center of our galaxy, the Milky Way, also will be quite visible this month. Look for the blurred path of stars across the sky. The brightest part of the path is the center of the Milky Way, 30,000 light years away.

Here, stars, gas and dust and clouds are much more concentrated than they are in our "neighborhood" two-thirds of the way between the center of the Galaxy and its outer rim. In this center, Carbon monoxide and other molecules swirl in cold clouds, eventually to give birth to stars. Astronomers theorize that the center of the galaxy may contain a black hole, swallowing existing stars.

Tracing the cabon monoxide in the galactic center will tell us how the center rotates, said Butler Burton, astronomy professor at the University of Minnesota. An expert on the galactic center, Burton is also studying the cauldron of other molecules seething there — bits of formaldehyde, ethyl alcohol, sulphur dioxide (the chemical that creates the smell of rotten eggs), formic acid (contained in the sting of ants), acetylene, and mercaptin (the chemical that gives a skunk it's distinctive aroma).

Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Peres

Q. Pastor Don, what does Ephesians 5:25 mean: husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and gave Himself for it.

A. Loving our wives as Christ loves the church includes more than just providing financially for our wife, and in return expecting intimate gratification.

A wife has seven basic needs in her life. If I truly love my wife as Christ loves His church, I will do my best with the strength and guidance of the Lord to meet those needs.

Here is a list of those Seven Basic Needs:

1. She needs the stability and direction of a spiritual leader.
   Every woman has certain needs which will only be met by the strong spiritual leadership of her husband. Ephesians 5:23
2. She needs to know that she is meeting the vital needs in her husband's life and work that no other woman can meet.
   A wife must feel special to her husband. He must do his best to let her know that she is special. Proverbs 18:22
3. She needs to see and hear that you cherish her as a person.
   To cherish your wife is to see great value in her as a person that you want to protect, provide for, and praise her to others. Ephesians 5:28-29
4. She needs to know that you are taking the time to understand her.
   Every wife has a deep need to be understood. She wants her husband to be aware of her spiritual, mental, emotional, and physical strengths and weaknesses. You need to know your wife so well that you can meet her needs. I Peter 3:7
5. She needs to know that you are setting aside quality time for intimate conversation with her.
   Perhaps the most basic need of your wife is intimate communication. The key to intimate conversation is having a regular time planned for it. Half of her enjoyment is anticipating these times. Genesis 2:18
6. She needs to know when she is with you, you are aware of it.
   Helping her on and off with her coat, seating her at the table, opening doors for her, lifting heavy objects, telling her your daily schedule, personal cleanliness, neatness, and grooming.
   These good manners show that you are aware of your wife's presence and is her assurance of your love and protection. Ephesians 5:33
7. She needs to know that you are allowing her to expand and be all that God intended for her to be.
   As your wife sees you establishing God's standards, she will be motivated to submit to your leadership and set similar standards in her own life, so that her whole being is able to achieve its highest and best purposes that God has for her.

Going Up: Your Chance of Surviving an Emergency

Computers are coming to the rescue of blood centers.

A computer is helping make life-saving blood easier to get. Ordinarily, processing blood from donors requires highly specialized equipment and procedures, and blood has a limited shelf life—only 72 hours for some cells.

Fortunately, computers, like the system in California's, Los Angeles-Orange County area, keep the blood flowing for more than 1,000 people a day who need transfusions.

A computer system, originally developed at Southeast Michigan Red Cross Blood Center in Detroit, has cut vital information processing time from five days—under a manual system—to one hour.

Says Don Twyman, director of management information services, Los Angeles-Orange County Red Cross Blood Center: "The computer system is enabling us to balance our blood inventory, which ensures our having the right blood at the right time."

The rapid tracking system helps the California center to use collected blood before its shelf life expires. Through a telephone link-up with Detroit's center, they can also share their computer resources.

After checking out various computers, Twyman says, Hewlett-Packard's HP 3000 was chosen "because the cost of the equipment was reasonable and the system was found to be powerful, yet easy to use."

Computers also help the blood center to facilitate donor solicitation. Mailgram-style messages are automatically printed out by the computer.

Prior to holiday seasons, when more blood is needed, former donors are contacted in this manner. In the future, Twyman says, computer tie-ins with local hospitals may even further facilitate the collection of blood and the balancing of inventories. Important when lives are in the balance.

Reduced Tillage Cuts Fuel Costs, Needs Herbicides

Conservation tillage reduces soil erosion, cuts production costs and with effective herbicide application and maintenance of high soil fertility can produce yields equal to conventional tillage systems.

These are the preliminary findings of a planned five-year research project currently being conducted by Land O'Lakes near Fort Dodge, Iowa.

Now in its third year, the study indicates that conventional tillage, including stalk chopping, chisel plowing, double discing and field cultivation, requires an average of 3.6 gallons of diesel fuel per acre, according to John Eveland, agronomy technical specialist for the cooperative's agricultural services division. By double discing in the spring and eliminating fall chisel plowing, fuel consumption is cut to 2.4 gallons per acre, for a 33 per cent fuel savings. And under no-till systems, fuel usage averages only 1.65 gallons per acre for stalk chopping planting, herbicide spraying and cultivation, reducing fuel costs by 55 per cent.

On 400 acres, switching from conventional tillage to no-till methods could save a farmer approximately $850 annually in fuel costs," Eveland said. "On the same acreage, minimum tillage could cut fuel costs by more than $500 a year."

Besides reducing fuel requirements, conservation tillage is also the farmer's number one weapon in minimizing wind and water erosion, Eveland noted. According to Land O' Lakes' study, conventional tillage removes crop residue from about 50 per cent of the topsoil, leaving half the soil surface subject to erosion. Under minimum tillage, soil coverage jumps significantly, with 73 per cent to 89 per cent coverage. While no-tillage provides the greatest erosion control with 84 per cent to 93 per cent surface coverage.

"Systems that leave more than half of the soil surface covered will reduce erosion by 50 per cent," Eveland commented, "but, to effectively control wind and water erosion, 80 per cent to 90 per cent coverage is essential."

Eveland noted that many farmers have contended that heavy crop residue left by reduced tillage systems can lead to insect infestation, perennial weed problems and crop diseases, namely stalk rot.

Land O' Lakes' research indicates that these problems do occur. "Hoever, we have noted no unusual incidence of crop disease nor insects at the Answer Farm," Eveland said.

As part of the study, the cooperative is evaluating five herbicide recommendations under each of seven tillage and crop rotation systems. The rotations include corn following corn, corn following soybeans and soybeans following corn, under conventional, minimum tillage and no-till systems.

"Preplant incorporated herbicides applied with a disc, followed by cultivation, have produced the best overall weed control in the study," Eveland said. "Although good weed control was achieved with spring double discing included in the tillage system."

Drought conditions reduced the effectiveness of residual herbicides and grass broke through late in the season. Cultivation helped, but didn't totally eliminate the infestation.

"Even though weed pressure was heavy, corn no-tillage plots yielded favorably as compared with conventional tillage; while soybean yields were significantly reduced," Eveland said.

"With normal moisture conditions, weed control in no-till plots would be equal to that under conventional tillage. Nevertheless, with heavy crop residues left on soil surfaces, herbicides should be applied at the maximum labeled rate for soil type."

Fertility is also a key concern in managing reduced tillage systems. "Under no-till systems, the major concentration of applied fertilizer remains in the top inch of the soil," Eveland explained.

"Increased levels of nitrogen can raise the acidity level at the soil surface, reducing root development, nutrient availability and herbicide activity, particularly among triazine herbicides. And phosphorous, being insoluable, remains almost totally concentrated at one to two-inch depths, making it difficult for roots to gain needed nutrients. Although more soluable than phosphorous, potassium is characterized by similar plant utilization problems."

In light of these potential problems, Land O' Lakes recommends five management practices to consider before switching to any minimum tillage option, Eveland commented.

(1) Build soil phosphorous and potassium levels.

(2) Distribute nutrients throughout the plow zone. "Several years ago, it was recommended that farmers using reduced tillage systems moldboard plow every four or five years to avoid positional availability problems," Eveland said. "But data and studies conducted at Midwestern universities indicate that if a field is well tilled before beginning a minimum tillage program, occasional moldboard plowing is not necessary."

(3) During the first three years, apply greater amounts of nitrogen to compensate for lower levels being released from crop residue on the soil surface.

(4) Use starter fertilizers so that phosphorous will be available to the plant early in the growing season.

(5) Soil test for lime and maintain a near normal pH level.

"As with any tillage system, conservation tillage requires well-planned management in order to be effective," Eveland summarized. "Land O'Lakes recommends that farmers experiment with a few acres of minimum tillage and no-till to see for themselves which system works best under their conditions."

HOLD YOUR OWN TASTE TEST

Recently, a major brewery asked beer drinkers, live on national television, to taste-test its beer against leading competitors.

Dr. Phil A. Himmelfarb, director of Quality Assurance for that company, says: "Tasting is the ultimate test of our beers."

He suggests beer drinkers make their own taste tests, pitting his company's beer—Schlitz—against their favorites. He'll rest his case on their taste.

Himmelfarb, with a Ph.D. in biology, heads a staff of 200-plus that tests thousands of cans and bottles of Schlitz beers. The beers—nearly 20,000 six packs a year—are purchased off the counters in stores across the country.

To hold your own test, have someone pour two different beers, out of your sight, into identical mugs or glasses, which preferably should be opaque. The beers should have been stored together so they're at the same temperature. Taste back and forth for a couple of minutes and decide which beer you like best. Did the results surprise you?

"We know our beer is as good or better than any other," says Frank J. Sellinger, Schlitz's chief executive officer. "We also know there are lots of beer drinkers who have never tried it. Our live taste-tests got a lot of them to try it."

When it comes to beer, the ultimate test is taste. That's what one brewer showed in a unique televised taste-test that you can duplicate at home.

Live network TV is restricted mostly to news and major sports events. Live TV commercials, especially those that put products in head-to-head competition, are virtually unheard of.

Gov. Quie's Column

A spotlight has focused lately on the temporary one-cent increase in the state sales tax which went into effect July 1. This tax increase is easy to see — as it should be.

Tax cuts, however, are sometimes less visible. One example is the type of tax relief Minnesotans have experienced since I took office in 1979 — indexing of Minnesota's income taxes.

But before I explain the tax cuts, two points should be stressed about the sales tax increase.

First, the increase is temporary. There is a sunset provision written into the statute, which means the increase will expire on June 30, 1983.

Second, the sales tax increase was necessary. Minnesota, like many other states in the nation, suffered reduced income due to the downturn in the national economy. In order to balance our budget, increased revenues were required.

When I ran for governor in 1978, my campaign literature said: "If this man can't improve state government and cut taxes at the same time, he won't make excuses. He simply won't run again." After the sales tax increase, some of my critics suggested that I retire my track shoes. I suggest that they examine Minnesota's tax picture more carefully.

Minnesotans have received significant tax cuts through indexing of our income taxes and increases in personal credit allowances that will continue to benefit us in the coming years. These tax cuts, amounting to $1.4 billion, more than off-set the temporary sales tax increase.

But the problem is that these tax cuts are difficult to picture. It is not as if a taxpayer paid $1,000 one year and $800 the next year. The tax relief measures we have instituted are of a different nature. Our measures have reduced the tax that Minnesotans would have paid if the cuts had not been adopted.

The biggest boon to taxpayers results from the system of indexing state income tax brackets which the Legislature adopted at my urging. Indexing keeps taxpayers from being pushed into higher tax brackets by inflation.

In other words, if a person's income goes up one year by 10 per cent to match the rate of inflation he stays in the tax bracket he started in. He is not pushed into a higher bracket, as is the case without indexing. Thus, he ends up paying less taxes. Before indexing, for example, a person receiving a 10 per cent cost-of-living raise wound up in a higher tax bracket paying more in state income taxes.

In addition, one of indexing's great strengths is that it puts public officials on the spot — just where they belong — the reasoning being that government, with indexing, is not assured of increased revenues through inflation pushing people into higher tax brackets.

In the past it's been too easy for recent generations of public officials to commit government to new and additional programs; they were confident that enough money would turn up. Indexing short circuits this. Because of indexing, any commitments we now make with Minnesotans' tax dollars will be scrutinized like they've never been before. Hence, not only have we cut taxes, but now will also use them more wisely.

Since it became law in 1979, Minnesota taxpayers have saved more than $310 million because of indexing. They can expect to save an additional $640 million because of indexing before the end of my first term. This totals more than $950 million saved just through indexing.

The increases in personal credit allowances and the savings from indexing amount to more than $1.4 billion of taxes not paid by Minnesotans, taxes that would have been paid if the 1979 cuts had not been enacted.

These are not, unfortunately, the kinds of tax cuts that make headlines. It is easier to point to a refund check than to a vague idea of what one would have paid.

Appearances can be deceiving. Sometimes what we don't see is more significant that what we do see. On net, the recent tax increase included, we have been able to reduce taxes substantially, even if it is not always easy to visualize that reduction.

Our "Family Healthcare" is a major medical policy that provides high maximum benefit amounts for medical care and contains deductible and co-insurance features.

Briefly, here is how this plan works once you have paid a selected deductible for any one covered illness or injury, you pay only 20% of the next $500 of expenses. American Family pays the remaining 80% of that $500 PLUS 100% of the expense up to the benefit limit you choose — $10,000, $20,000, $50,000, $100,000, or $250,000. The maximum amount payable and the premium payment depend on the plan you select.

THE ROUNDHOUSE BRIDGE

The roundhouse is one of the most difficult esthetic procedures in dentistry. All of the teeth in one jaw are joined into a fixed bridge. It is generally suggested when the remaining teeth are weak and the best hope for maintaining them (and the replacements for the missing teeth) is to encompass them into one solid unit. "United we stand. Divided we fall."

Like most fixed bridges, the roundhouse is done in either porcelain fused to metal or acrylic veneers. The acrylic veneer is lighter and more flexible, but will abrade and discolor. The procelain fused to metal will retain its color and texture, but is heavier.

The teeth must be ground parallel to one another so that the fit is passive and true. This is particularly important with porcelain fused to gold, because if the birdge does not fit smoothly, pressure from within the crowns could cause the porcelain to fracture.

A roundhouse can be done in sections, with the individual bridges interlocked, but the greatest support for loose teeth occurs when the bridge is one solid unit.

Babe Ruth Baseball

Now in its 13th year, the annual Elks Babe Ruth invitational baseball tournament has become a major event for the Thief River Falls youth baseball program. The event, scheduled to be played here Saturday and Sunday, is a showcase for the two 14-15-year-old Thief River Falls Babe Ruth teams — the Elks, coached by Bruce Williams, and the Independents, directed by Charlie Cornell.

It's entertaining baseball, and it's free.

Bemidji Braves, a 6-4 winner over the Thief River Falls Independents in the 16th annual Horace May invitational tournament championship game Sunday, is the defending Thief River Falls tournament champion. However, no team has been able to successfully defend its title here since the host Elks took back-to-back crowns in 1974 and 1975. Only other team to win consecutive Elks tournament trophies was the Thief River Falls Twins in 1970 and 1971.

All-Star Football Game

Eighth annual Minnesota high school all-star football game matching last year's graduating seniors in an 8 p.m. contest Saturday, July 25, at Parade Stadium in Minneapolis will have a definite northwestern Minnesota flair.

Crookston's Les Drechsel will serve as the head coach of the Outstate team which will oppose the Metro team, coached by Dick Hanson of Burnsville. Drechsel, whose Pirates won the Minnesota Class A state football title last fall, is a veteran of 24 years of coaching, the last 10 at Crookston where his teams have gone 68-27-1. He was an assistant coach in the first all-star game in 1974 and is only the second man to ever coach twice in the all-star affair.

The 36-man Outstate roster includes three northwestern Minnesota products: runningback Steve Johnson of Crookston, defensive back Bob Lubarski of Wareren and offensive lineman Greg Lavoy of Mahnomen.

In addition to Drechsel, Johnson, Lubarski and Lavoy, the area will also be featured in the trophy presentation when the winning team will be the first recipient of the all-star memorial trophy, a tribute to former Bemidji high school football player Mike Johnson, who played in the all-star game in 1979. An outstanding defensive end for the Lumberjacks, Johnson was named to the Associated Press, Minneapolis Tribune and Minnesota Sportscasters all-state teams in 1978. He lost his life in a car accident in March, 1980. The trophy is from his family and friends.

Proceeds from the all-star game, which is sponsored by the Minnesota high school football coaches association and the high school all-star bowl of Minnesota, will go to the Human Growth Foundation, a non-profit organization in Minneapolis which is concerned with the physical growth process in children and funds medical research and information programs to help short-statured children and their families.

Miscellaneous

+Jim Strandemo of Mahnomen, a former Northland community college golf standout, tied the non-competitive record at the Detroit Lakes Country Club's 18-hole Pine to Palm championship golf course recently when he fired an eight-under-par 63. He had eight birdies, parred the other 10 holes and hit 17 greens in regulation during the round. He also had one three-putt green, three-putting the relatively easy par five fifth hole from about 20 feet, reported Ralph Anderson of the Becker County Record. "It sure was a lot of fun," Strandemo told Anderson. The competitive course record was set in 1958 when Jack Rule, Jr. fired a 32-32-64 in the second round of qualifying for the Pine to Palm golf tournament. Strandemo, who is working at the Mahnomen golf course this summer, is a student and an assistant golf coach at Bemidji State University and hopes to complete a degree in social studies and education during the winter quarter of the 1981-82 school year. He plans to compete in both the Birchmont International tournament at Bemidji and the Pine to Palm tournament at Detroit Lakes.

+Detroit Lakes, after beating Dilworth 12-2 in the first half of a Norman-Becker-Clay (NBC) American Legion baseball doubleheader, had to settle for a 2-2 tie in an unusual second game. The nightcap was called in the top of the 11th inning when Detroit Lakes pitcher Jon Grabow threw his first pitch. Dilworth officials, believing that a pitcher could only work 10 innings, protested the game. The umpires upheld the protest, but it was subsequently learned that a pitcher can work 12 innings and the game was ruled to be a 2-2 tie.

KICKING UP DIRT as he completed his slide, Thief River Falls' Scott McKeever came up with a stolen base as Crookston shortstop Mark Melby waited for the throw from catcher Kent Shafer, which was wide of the mark, in the first inning of Tuesday's American Legion baseball game played on the fairgrounds diamond. Crookston won the match-up of unbeaten Northwest League co-leaders 8-2, hitting three home runs in the wind-swept game.

Match-Up Of Unbeaten Northwest League Leaders . . .

Home Runs Spark Crookston Past TRF 8-2 In Legion Baseball

It was a match-up of unbeaten Northwest League co-leaders, but Crookston came out an easy winner with a convincing 8-2 victory over Thief River Falls Tuesday in an American Legion baseball game played on the wind-swept fairgrounds diamond here.

Three home runs got the visitors going as Brent Weiss and Kent Shafer hit back-to-back solo blasts in the fourth inning, and Brian Laliberte connected on a two-run shot to ignite a six-run sixth inning.

Unbeaten through its first round of four Northwest League games, Crookston awaits a rematch with contender East Grand Forks next week to gain firm control in the regular season pennant race that is used for post-season sub district pairings. Crookston, charged with six errors the night before in a 4-1 non-league loss to Bemidji, is 9-2-1 for the year. Thief River Falls fell to 10-6-1, including a 3-1 Northwest League record that will be on the line Thursday in a 7 p.m. game against Warroad on the fairgrounds diamond.

Tuesday's match-up of long-time athletic rivals was a scoreless duel through three innings, although both teams let numerous scoring opportunities slip away. That changed suddenly in the fourth, though, when Weiss drilled a first-pitch home run over the left-center field fence to open the inning. Shafer, the next batter, took one pitch before matching Weiss's high fly ball that picked up a strong tail wind and cleared the left field fence.

Thief River Falls, after hitting line-drive outs for three innings, got a break in the bottom of the fourth when the Crookston outfielders never caught sight of Mark Lundin's fly ball until it bounced into the right-center field gap and rolled to the fence for a two-out triple. Jim Hallamek then followed with a bloop single into left field for the run.

Another break made it 2-2 in the fifth when Jeff Milender bounced a single through the right side of the infield, reached third on Kevin Sanders' short pop fly single into center field and scored on a strike-out. Greg Harder was the strike-out victim, but when Shafer, the catcher, dropped the third strike he was forced to throw the ball to first to get Harder. Milender seized the opportunity to sprint home ahead of the relay back to the plate.

The tie was short-lived, however, as Crookston sent 11 men to the plate in the sixth, scoring six times. An error started it, with Laliberte then lefting a fly ball into the wind that sailed over the left field fence. Before it was done Brian Bachmeier added an RBI single, Shafer drew a bases-loaded walk and Tony Sprague bounced a two-run single into left field to put the game out of reach.

Bachmeier scattered five Thief River Falls hits to get the pitching decision. He struck out 11, including eight-in-a-row at the end before Sanders was thrown out catcher-to-first to end the game.

Thief River Falls will follow its Warroad game with a weekend tournament appearance at New York Mills. The eight-team event starts Friday when Parkers Prairie plays Fergus Falls at 6:30 p.m. and Bemidji faces New York Mills at 8:30. First round will be completed Saturday morning when Wadena plays Frazee at 9:30 and Thief River Falls tackles pre-tournament favorite Brainerd at 11:30.

First round losers play in the 1:30 and 3:30 p.m. consolation games Saturday, with the first round winners meeting in the 6:30 and 8:30 semifinals that night.

Sunday's games will include the consolation championship at 11:30 a.m.; third place contest at 1:30 p.m.; and championship game at 3:30.

Ekeren Drug routed Brodin 32-4 as Doreen Larson and Laura Larson homered while Paula Myers and Kim Olson tripled.

Ridge Runners won a pair of games, drubbing the Honeybees 27-3 and handling Hydra-Mac 11-2. Marilyn Burda and Diane Clemetson both hit two home runs in the first inning of the opener, with Clemetson and Dawn Nelson homering in the nightcap.

Roseau Transport was also a double winner, taking Hydra-Mac 13-6 as Cindy Bruggeman homered and beating Walseth Construction 13-3 after scoring seven times in the first inning.

Mush-a-rettes shut out the American Legion 9-0 but lost to Dwight's Hartz 5-1.

Thief River Falls swept Crookston Monday, overcoming a 4-0 deficit to win the opener 8-4 and rolling to a one-sided 34-0 victory in the second game.

Bob Geatz' bases-loaded double highlighted a three-run seventh inning that completed the come-from-behind first game triumph. David Onkka got the win and Al Erickson earned a save.

Thief River Falls combined 14 base hits with 18 walks in the nightcap that featured a no-hit pitching performance by Mike Anderson. Lee Hamre and Steve Fellman were both 3-for-3 at the plate.

Playing at Warroad Tuesday, Thief River Falls took the first game 15-1. The winners had a 9-2 base hit edge with Eric Charlson going 3-for-3 and driving in five runs while Al Sorum was 2-for-2 with three RBI's. The win went to Kevin Nelson.

Forest Plan Is Prepared

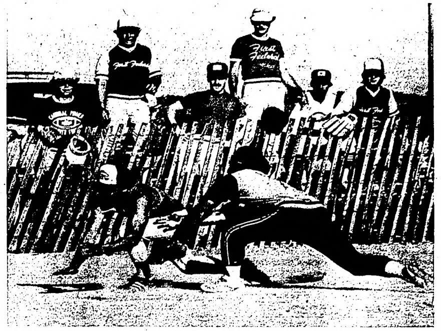
A Minnesota forest resources plan (MFRP) that will provide direction for the future management of the state's forest resources is being prepared by the Department of Natural Resources.

Funding for the project has been provided by the Legislative commission on Minnesota resources (LCMR) with assistance from the U.S. Forest Service.

The plan is necessary, said officials, because of the changes in both use and management of the state's forest lands resulting from a growing population, an expanding forest products industry and increases in recreational use.

The plan is expected to be completed by 1983 at which time the policies it spells out will be applied to management plans for all of Minnesota's forest management units.

Additional information on MFRP can be obtained by contacting the Minnesota DNR, Division of Forestry, MFRP Coordinator, Box 44, Centennial Office Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.



AS FIRST FEDERAL teammates looked on, Jim Rogalla avoided the tag by E.T.'s Bees catches John Dillon to score in the third inning of Monday's Division III game in the Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball association. Rogalla circled the bases when the Bees failed to come up with a shoestring catch in center field with the bases loaded. First Federal won the game 16-6, then added an 8-7 victory over Tony Dorn in the second half of the split doubleheader.

Schmidts Upsets Popplers 5-4

A three-way first place tie in the Thief River Falls fast pitch softball league involving North Star Transport, Popplers and Action Realty was shaken up a bit Tuesday when North Star Transport broke out of the log jam by combining a 4-0 victory over Melvies with a 5-4 Popplers loss to Schmidts. Idle Action Realty remains tied with North Star Transport in the all-important loss column while popplers fell one game off the pace.

Schmidts can try to stage another upset tonight (Wednesday) in a 9 p.m. test against Action Realty. North Star Transport and Popplers are matched Friday at 9.

North Star Transport scored a pair of runs in the top of the first inning when Roger Cota was hit by a pitch and Ron Ostby walked. Dennis Bakke laced a single to center to score Cota, with Ostby scoring on an error on the same play.

Tom Neibauer beat out an infield hit and scored on a wild pitch in the sixth, while Cota singled to left and eventually scored on a passed ball in the seventh.

Karl Chromy's two-out triple to right in the bottom of the fourth broke up Erickson's bid for a no-hitter.

TRF Babe Ruth Teams Split

A three-way first place tie developed in the South Half Lake Agassiz Babe Ruth baseball league standings Tuesday when the Crookston A Gold split a doubleheader against Thief River Falls oponents on the fairgrounds diamond.

Crookston drilled the Thief River Falls Elks 18-6 but lost to the Thief River Falls Independents 5-4, leaving those three sharing first place and necessitating a coin flip to determine the pairings for next week's five-team double-elimination sub district playoffs at Red Lake Falls involving the Elks, Independents, Crookston Gold, Crookston B Merchants and Red Lake Falls.

Independents — Crookston

Tied 4-4 going into the bottom of the seventh, the Thief River Falls Independents produced a 5-4 victory over the Crookston A Gold Tuesday to create the first place deadlock in the league for 14-15-year-olds.

A lead-off double by Scott Johnston that hit the fence in right-center field fence on the fly opened the seventh for the winners. Jon Stimac followed with a wind-blown double that brought in the winning run.

Crookston had tied it 4-4 in the top of the sixth on an RBI triple by Mike Madigan, who had two of the seven hits by the visitors.

Johnston, the winning pitcher, was 3-for-3, hitting two doubles and driving in two runs. Rick Spong was 2-for-3, including a triple, in the eight-hit attack by the winners who committed just one error.

A lead-off double by Johnston, a passed ball and a single by Joe Blankenfeld scored the first Thief River Falls run in the first inning. A lead-off triple by Spong was later followed by a two-run double by Johnston in the third, while a double by Ryan Bakke scored Spong, who had singled and stole second, in the fifth.

Coach Charlie Cornell's Independents, 14-5 for the year, will close out their regular season schedule Thursday by hosting the Bemidji VFW at 3 p.m.

Elks — Crookston

Crookston pitcher Craig Stahlecker did another number on the Thief River Falls Elks, following an 18 strike-out performance against them in their last meeting with 17 strike-outs yesterday, but this time it was the Crookston offense that beat the Elks 18-6.

The winners had a 13-6 base hit attack in a long game that featured 20 walks — 11 of them issued by Elks pitchers Tim Bottem, the starter and loser, and Brian Garceau. Thief River Falls also committed five of the game's seven errors.

Still, it was a close 2-1 game until the fourth when Crookston scored nine times after the first two batters had been retired.

The Elks dropped to 15-3 with the loss. They finish their 1981 regular season schedule Thursday at home against the Bemidji VFW at 1 p.m.

Notes

According to a nationwide study conducted for the national shooting sports foundation, many of the non-hunting public believe that today's hunter is generally not very skilled.

By sharpening their shooting skills and properly sighting-in before the season, hunters can help improve their public image.

Braves Beat Independents 6-4 For Bemidji Tourney Title

Bemidji Braves edged the Thief River Falls Independents 6-4 Sunday in the championship game of the 16th annual Horace May invitational baseball tournament at Bemidji.

The eight-team event started Saturday when the Bemidji Lions beat Blackduck 7-3, Thief River Falls Independents defeated two-time defending tournament champion Staples 9-3, Bemidji Braves routed Bagley 17-0 and the Thief River Falls Elks outlasted the Bemidji Braves B team 3-2 in nine innings.

In Sunday's semifinals, the Thief River Falls Independents knocked off the Bemidji Lions 5-2 and the Bemidji Braves shaded the Thief River Falls Elks 7-6 in eight innings.

Thief River Falls Elks outscored the Bemidji Lions 15-12 in the third place game.

Independents — Staples

Thief River Fals banged out 13 base hits as the Independents beat Staples 9-3 in the tournament's first round. The winners scored three times in the top of the first inning and put the game away with three more runs in the third for a 6-2 edge.

Winning pitcher Scott Johnston, who scattered six hits on the mound, was 3-for-4 at the plate, while Dave Stimac went 2-for-3 and drove in three runs. Brian Kemnitz and Joe Blankenfeld also had a pair of hits for the winners.

Independents — Lions

Ahead 1-0 through four innings, Thief River Falls scored four times in the fifth as the Independents posted a 5-2 semifinal win over the Bemidji Lions Sunday.

Ryan Bakke, Gary Cornell and Scott Johnston led off the fifth with consecutive base hits and Dave Stimac added a sacrifice. A triple by Rick Spong and a sacrifice by Bakke made it 5-1 in the sixth. Cornell, the winning pitcher, and Brian Kemnitz had two hits apiece. Both teams finished with eight hits.

Independents — Braves

Bemidji scored five times in the third when ten batters collected four base hits, drew two walks and an error — all after the first two men had been retired — as the Braves defeated the Independents 6-2 in the championship game Sunday afternoon.

Winning pitcher Doug Garrigan highlighted the third inning outburst with a two-run triple.

Thief River Falls had led 2-0, scoring a run in the first inning on back-to-back two-out singles by Gary Cornell, who stole second, and Scott Johnston; then adding a run in the top of the third on a pair of errors and a squeeze bunt by Ryan Bakke.

The Independents threatened to pull the game out in the seventh. Trailing 6-3, Joe Blankenfeld drew a lead-off walk and scored after a wild pitch and a single by Tim Nyland. Thief River Falls put four runners on base, but got just one run out of it.

Cornell had two of the five Thief River Falls hits off Garrigan. Johnston was the loser, although he gave up only five hits and struck out ten.

Elks — Braves B

Ryan Drees drew a full-count bases loaded walk with nobody out in the bottom of the ninth as the Thief River Falls Elks got by the upset-minded Bemidji Braves B team in first round play Saturday.

Steve Wiskow had two of the five Elks hits against the Braves B team, filling out the tournament when 12 other teams declined invitations. Drees was the winning pitcher in relief, with three Elks pitchers giving up just three hits, but walking ten.

Elks — Braves

Another extra-inning game in the semifinals sent the Elks into the third place game Sunday as the Bemidji Braves defeated Thief River Falls 7-6 in eight innings.

The Elks tied it 6-6 in the seventh on a two-run triple by Allan Ness, but the Braves won it in the eighth when Mike Johnson legged out a lead-off triple that was followed by three straight walks to force in the winning run. Johnson was 4-for-5 in the Braves' 12-hit attack off losing pitcher Tim Bottem. The Elks had nine hits, three by Bottem and two by Steve Wiskow.

Elks — Lions

Trailing 9-4, Thief River Falls rallied for eight runs in the fourth inning to take a 12-9 lead that eventually led to a 15-12 Elks win over the Bemidji Lions in the tournament's third place game.

The Lions narrowed it to 12-11, but Thief River Falls scored three more times in the sixth to finally nail down the win.

Dean Brandon, Tim Bottem and Brian Dormady had two-hit games for the Elks. Todd Ortloff picked up the win in relief, coming in to pitch in the fifth. Both teams had 10 hits, but Thief River Falls utilized five Bemidji walks in its big eight-run fourth inning.

Off the beaten path, Longville has proved to be a mecca for hundreds of thousands of summer visitors over the years. Dozens of fine fishing lakes are located just minutes from Longville's fine business district. One of the most attractive features of the town are docks located right in the business district so that summer visitors can come for many miles by boat to do their shopping.

Some of the famous fishing lakes located near Longville are Woman Lake, Leech Lake, Little Boy Lake, Big Boy Lake, Inguadona Lake, Wabedo Lake, Long Lake, Girl Lake, Mule Lake, Blackwater Lake, Mann Lake, Baby Lake, Child Lake and Thunder Lake. Pipestone

Out-of-doors production of the "Song Of Hiawatha" is staged annually in July and August in Pipestone.

First production of the "Song of Hiawatha" was produced by the Hiawatha Club in 1949. Several of the lead parts in the pageant were performed by descendants of the Objibways whose legends these are.

The production is the effort of the entire Pipestone community and assistance from neighboring communities. For additional information regarding the pageant, you may wish to write to the Hiawatha Club Secretary in Pipestone.

Stage setting for the famous Pipestone pageant faces a spring fed lake filling one of the oldest quarries. It is nestled within the background glacial boulders. Seating capacity is 5,000, every seat showing the fine view of the stage in its 3-acre natural amphitheatre.

Minnesota Is Fourth In Fish License Sales

A total of 287,815 persons purchased non-resident fishing licenses in Minnesota last year, ranking it fourth behind Wisconsin, Michigan and Montana, according to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The figures show that Wisconsin was far and away the leader in the sale of non-resident fishing licenses with 404,680. Michigan followed with 330,868 and Montana was third with 292,329.

In the sale of fishing licenses to residents, Minnesota also ranked fourth with 1,452,016. The leader was California with 2,186,178, followed by Texas with 1,745,119 and Wisconsin with 1,515,046.

As for hunting, Minnesota had 496,038 paid hunting license holders. The leader — and the only state with one million licensed hunters — was Pennsylvania with 1,272,763.

Minnesota ranked ninth among all states in the sale of hunting licenses.

Nationally, the number of hunting license holders declined by 295,000 from 1979 while the number of fishing license holders increased more than 47,000.

Total number of hunting license holders in the U.S. was 16,257,074 last year.

A HANDSHAKE from coach Jim Simon awaited Crookston's Kent Shafer as he rounded third base after hitting a fourth inning home run off Thief River Fals lefthander Kevin Sanders in Tuesday's American Legion baseball game played here. Brent Weiss and Shafer hit back-to-back home runs to lead off the fourth inning, breaking open to a scoreless game, and Brian Laliberte hit a two-run homer in the sixth to start a six-run inning that carried Crookston to an 8-2 victory.

List Results In TRF Fourth Of July Events

Pleasantly surprised by the large crowds that attended the two-day event, officials of the Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball association expressed satisfaction at the results of their Fourth of July weekend celebration they promoted in an effort to raise funds for construction of a new softball facility in the city.

Wetbike races, powerboat races, men's and women's slow pitch softball tournaments, a two-mile fun run, children's games, beer garden, music, pork feed and fireworks were all featured during the Saturday-Sunday affair that was blessed with perfect weather — clear skies and temperatures in the 80's.

Bruce Kolden was the fastest runner in the Lions-Pepsi fun run Sunday, covering the 2.2 mile race in the 11-minutes, 39-seconds.

Winners in the men's and women's fun run age groups included Joel Schmidt and Vicki Leathers, 12-under; Kurt Wangsnes and Kristy Forsberg, 13-17; Kolden and Debbie Leathers, 18-29; Wayne Anderson, 30-39; and Ervin Kiesz, 40-over.

The youngest runner was Byron Severson and the oldest runner was Ruggles Larson. Seventh-Day Adventist Church earned a special award as the organization with the most runners, with division winners Schmidt, Wangsness, Kolden and Kiesz all running as members of the church group.

A seven-team, double-elimination tournament was played Saturday featuring teams from the Thief River Falls women's slow pitch softball league, with the Schmidt Stealers taking the title.

In first round play it was Northern Employers Agency 15, Roseau Transport 2; St. Hilaire Saints 13, Ekeren Drug 3; Dwight's Hartz 6, American Legion 5; Schmidt Stealers, bye.

Round two winner's bracket scores saw the St. Hilaire Saints beat Northern Employers Agency 6-5 and the Schmidt Stealers outlast Dwight's Hartz 13-8 in nine innings, while in the loser's bracket, Roseau Transport eliminated Ekeren Drug 5-1 and American Legion drew a bye.

Effie Rodeo Set For Last Week In July

As the last weekend in July approaches, the citizens of Effie are getting ready for the North Star Stampede, the 28th annual rodeo held on the North Star ranch just north of Effie. This is Minnesota's largest open contest rodeo.

As in the past, contestants are expected to enter from a several state area. Veteran rodeo cowboy Art Noble of Cody, Neb. will be entered in the saddle bronc riding and calf roping. Lonnie Bradshaw of Phoenix, Ariz. has paid an entry fee for the privilege of throwing a rope at the husky roping calves. Several Minnesota cowboys will also be trying to win another silver buckle and part of the several thousand dollars payoff.

Larry Kaczor of Grand Rapids will be competing in the bareback and saddle bronc riding. He won the bareback riding event in 1979. The riding Pitzen boys will be competing in the rough stock events. Fred won the saddle bronc riding in 1979 and has won this event at many other rodeos throughout the country. Dan Harrington of Effie will be competing in the saddle bronc riding, bareback riding and steer wrestling. He tied for first place in the saddle bronc riding at the July 4 rodeo in Sturgeon Lake.

The bucking stock has been on the road since the North Star Rodeo company has contracted more rodeos this year than ever. The stock has just been brought home from the July 4 rodeo in Sturgeon Lake. "They will have nothing to do but graze and rest up out in the big pasture until stampede time," said Howard Pitzen. "They should be in great shape for the last weekend in July".

First performance of the rodeo starts at 2 p.m. Saturday, July 25. Saturday night there will a downtown parade in Effie and other activities, followed by fireworks after dark.

Sunday morning, the Bigfork Lions will sponsor a fly-in breakfast, open to the public at the Bigfork airport. Anyone flying in will be furnished free transportation to and from the rodeo grounds.

As in years past, the parking and camping is free at the North Star ranch. However, campers are urged to bring their own drinking water as there is no deep well.

DNR To Apply Herbicide In Forest Areas

Department of Natural Resources reports that a helicopter will be used to apply herbicide to several hundred acres of state and county administered forest lands this summer.

Spraying is scheduled to begin about July 17. Foresters said the aim is to reduce the amount of undesirable vegetation competing with coniferous (needle-bearing) trees and to prepare areas for tree planting projects.

Officials said 2, 4-D will be applied on 1,884 acres. A mix of 2, 4-D and 2, 4-DP will be used on 1,666 acres and glyphosate will be applied to 375 acres.

The areas to which the herbicides will be applied are located in the counties of Becker, Beltrami, Cass, Clearwater, Crow Wing, Hobbard, Itasca, Koochiching, Lake, Mahnomen, Pine, Roseau and St. Louis.

Additional information can be obtained by contacting C. Barry Morse, DNR Division of Forestry, Box 44, Centennial Office Building, St. Paul, MN 55155 (phone 612-296-4482).

Nouvelle Dressings For Summer Salad

Even "gourmets," the connoisseurs of fine food, agree that the simplicity of a fresh green salad needs no improvement. In France, for example, a simple lettuce salad is considered the greatest of all salads.

The green salad pictured here is served with a Nouvelle French Dressing, developed by the Planters Oil Test Kitchen. The dressing is made with Planters Peanut Oil, for a lighter, more delicate flavor, in keeping with the spirit of "nouvelle cuisine."

A Rosemary Variation of this same French Dressing makes a wonderful marinade for cold meats. Pour the dressing over slices of cold beef, cover, and refrigerate for several hours. Arrange the marinated meat on a platter with crudites (fresh raw vegetables) for a quick, refreshing summertime meal.

NOUVELLE FRENCH DRESSING
Makes 1 cup

3/4 cup Planters Peanut Oil
1/4 cup red wine vinegar
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
dash ground red pepper

Combine all ingredients; beat well. Serve as is or use as a basic recipe following directions below to make variations.

To store dressings cover and refrigerate up to 2 weeks. Let stand at room temperature 10 minutes before serving. Shake well before using.

Rosemary Variation: Mix in 2 tablespoons minced onion and 1/2 teaspoon rosemary leaves. Use as a marinade for meats, poultry, or fresh mushrooms.

Entertaining Tips

FROM THE V.O. LIVING CENTER

OUTDOOR PARTY HINTS

With a little planning and foresight, you can master the art of outdoor entertaining. Just heed these tips from the Seagram's "V.O. Outdoor Entertainment Guide":

- Plan a schedule, noting the foods you plan to serve, and a timetable for chores. Nothing is more discouraging than finding a casserole still in the refrigerator after the party.
- Use blocks of ice rather than cubes that melt quickly. To keep canned or bottled beverages cold, fill an ice chest, barrel or plastic bag lined garbage can with ice blocks. Simply chisel off ice chunks with ice pick for drinks served in glasses. (An ice pick can be purchased in supermarkets and hardware stores—but always keep the pick in its protective sheath when not in use.)
- Be sure to place your bar and buffet in the shadiest spots to protect perishables.
- All perishables should be well-chilled when you bring them outdoors.
- When setting up the food spread, continue to chill it with ice. Keep it covered with plastic wrap until ready to serve.
- Limit the time that dishes containing mayonnaise and other sauces are left out. They can easily spoil.
- Serve no-cook "munchies"—chips 'n dip, crackers, etc. They offer variety and fun to your spread with little fuss.
- Locate your fire at a safe distance from trees, shrubs or dry grass and in a spot where any breeze will blow the smoke away from the eating area. Clear the surrounding site of flammable debris.
- Always have a container of water on hand to smother flames should your fire get too high. And never leave the fire unattended.
- If you are entertaining at night, use insect-repellent candles to eliminate bugs.
- Serve your guests the terrific "V.O. Summer Punch"—it's a delicious way to toast a delightful, balmy summer's eve:

V.O. SUMMER PUNCH

- 1 pint strawberries, halved
- 2 oranges, sliced
- 1 lemon, sliced
- 1 lime, sliced
- 1 can (46 ounces) apricot nectar
- 1 can (46 ounces) unsweetened pineapple juice
- 3 cans (6 ounces each) frozen lemonade concentrate
- 1 bottle (750 ml) Seagram's V.O.
- 2 bottles (28 ounces each) ginger ale
- Ice mold

In large punch bowl, combine fruits. Add liquids. Float molded ice in bowl. Serve. Makes about 50 servings.

For additional guidelines on planning backyard parties, write for a free "V.O. Outdoor Entertainment Guide" to the Seagram's V.O. Good Living Center, Box 4377, Dept. OPH, New York, New York 10163.

Retirement Medical Coverage Reviewed

Medicare covers only about 40 per cent of health care costs, meaning that most people need supplementary coverage. Unless you are careful about what coverage you obtain, you could be paying for coverage you already have, according to the Minnesota Society of CPAs.

Medicare provides hospital insurance (part A) and medical insurance (part B). If you are 65 and receive social security benefits, you don't have to apply for hospital insurance, unless you plan to continue working. Because this part of the program is financed by social security taxes, this coverage is free.

On the other hand, you must apply for medicare medical insurance. The low premiums are withheld from your monthly social security check. CPAs suggest you apply during your "enrollment period," which begins three months before your 65th birthday and ends three months after. If you enroll later, there's a penalty. Your monthly premium would be ten per cent higher for every year you delay enrolling.

For example, the monthly premium for medical insurance — starting in July — is $11, or $132 a year. If you wait until next year to enroll, you pay $12.10 a month or $145.20 for the year.

Medicare hospital insurance helps pay the costs of your stay in a hospital or a skilled nursing facility, or for home health care. Coverage includes operating and recovery room costs, lab tests, x-rays and nursing services. Medical insurance benefits help meet the cost of doctors' hospital services and other services such as renting or purchasing medical equipment and outpatient hospital treatment.

"There are "gaps" in Medicare coverage, even if you are enrolled in both parts of the program. For example, hospital insurance pays for covered services during the first two months of a hospital stay except for $204, which you must pay. If your hospital stay is between two and three months, medicare hospital insurance covers all but $51 a day for each day furing that period. After three months, your daily payment increases to $102.

Another "gap" is the first $60 of each year's medical bills, payable by you. After that, medicare medical insurance takes into account the amount of your bill, what your doctor usually charges for those services and the prevailing charge where you live. If medicare considers $450 a reasonable charge of your doctor's services, it will pay 80 per cent of that amount, or $360. Your doctor may accept that amount as full payment. If not, you must pay an additional $90.

Medicare does not cover many health care expenses. These include the cost of eyeglasses and hearing aids, dentures and routine dental care, prescription drugs and routine physical examinations.

If you have a low income, some of medicare's "gaps" can be met with medicaid. Income levels qualifying for medicaid very, so check your local social services office to find out if you are eligible.

For most people, it is a good idea to buy a health insurance policy and fill in gaps in coverage. Insurance companies and health maintenance organizations (HMOs) offer a wide variety of "medigap" policies. If you are insuraed through a company plan, you may be able to extend your coverage once you retire. This can be an adequats supplement to Medicare, and less expensive than a policy purchased on your own. Your employer may pay part or all of the cost.

When you examine medigap insurance policies, be sure you are covered for the major medical expenses of a long, serious illness, which can wreak havoc on your retirement budget. Find out exactly what coverage the policy provides that Medicare doesn't. According to the health insurance institute, it is becoming more common for medigap policies to pick up some or all of the more common medical expenses you incur even when you're not in the hospital.

While medigap policy premiums vary, a typical insurance policy that pays a high percentage of costs not covered by medicare and some health services medicare completely excludes can cost you $400 a year if you're between 65 and 69 and $600 annually if you're over 75. You can buy a less extensive policy for about $120 a year, but you'd have to pay more out of your pocket toward your medical bills.

Remember to budget for medigap insurance and medicare premiums, which are tax deductible, say CPAs. Medical expenses you pay are deductible, provided the total exceeds three per cent of your adjusted gross income. Keep good records if you want to take advantage of this tax break.

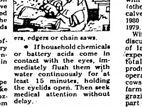
Hints for HOMEMAKERS



According to the National Society to Prevent Blindness, an estimated 45 percent of the nearly one million Americans who today have vision impairments caused by eye injury, suffered the damage at home. This adds up to 420,000 Americans.

The National Society offers these precautionary measures to prevent potentially serious eye injuries in the home:

- Read package label.
- When using spray-type chemicals or cleansers, make sure the arrow on the nozzle is pointing away from you.
- Store harmful products away from children.
- Protect your eyes with safety goggles whenever possible, particularly when you're using chemicals or power drills lawn mowers, edgers or chain saws.
- If household chemicals or battery acids come in contact with the eyes, immediately flush them with water continuously for at least 15 minutes, holding the eyelids open. Then seek medical attention without delay.

For a free pamphlet on eye safety, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to your state Society to Prevent Blindness or the National Society to Prevent Blindness, 79 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016.

Dairy Cattle Numbers Rise After Decline

Up until 1980, those who examined the annual statistics on the number of dairy cows in the U.S. might have wondered about Bossie's future. The "cow census" showed a steady, long-term decline in population, which was down more than one million in the past decade alone. But last year the trend reversed and milk cow numbers rose to 10.8 million head, up one per cent from 1979.

Add to this the fact that each cow produced an average of 387 pounds more milk in 1980 than in 1979 and you get 1980's all-time record milk production of 128.4 billion pounds. This total was up almost four per cent from 1979 and topped the 1964 record production of 127 billion pounds by one per cent.

Of total milk produced, approximately 51.3 billion pounds were sold as fluid milk. Most of the rest went to make the wide variety of real dairy foods found in stores and restaurants, including the major products, cheese and butter. In 1980, the dairy industry sold more than 3.8 billion pounds of cheese and 874 million pounds of butter.

Once again the leading dairy state was Wisconsin, producing 22.3 billion pounds of milk in 1980. California was second with 13.6 billion pounds, followed by New York, 11.0 billion; Minnesota, 9.5 billion; and Pennsylvania, 8.5 billion.

Figures on average output per cow over the past several years indicate the dairy farmers' animal husbandry practices have produced a consistent rise in cows' milk-making efficiency. Contributing significantly to U.S. agricultural productivity, average milk produced per cow rose more than three per cent as compared to 1979, to an average of 11,875 pounds per cow. Just since 1970, per-cow production has increased 2,124 pounds or 22 per cent.

In keeping with the trend in U.S. agriculture in general, the total number of operations with one or more milk cows (other than cows used to nurse calves) fell four percent in 1980 to 335,270 from 349,970 in 1979.

With this and the much-discussed rise in the number of large farms, one could expect that 1980's increases in total and per-cow milk production came from giant operations with hundreds of cows, and that the small dairy farm with a few peacefully grazing cows was becoming part of America's past. A look at United States department of agriculture (USDA) figures about dairy operations for 1980 shows that neither expectation is accurate.

Farms with one to 29 head of milk cows made up 60.7 per cent of all U.S. operations with milk cows, while those with 100 or more head were only 5.4 per cent of such farms. Those with 30 to 49 head made up 18.9 per cent of the total, and operations with 50 to 99 milk cows represented 15 per cent.

However, the smallest farms also accounted for the smallest portion of total U.S. cow numbers: 13.5 per cent. The 30-to-49-cow group accounted for 22.9 per cent of the cows; and 50-to-99-cow operations for 30.4 per cent. Despite their small representation in total number of milk cow operations, the 100-and-over group of farms accounted for 33.2 per cent or the largest percentage of 1980 total milk cow inventory.

(All statistics, are from USDA and are estimates as of 3-15-81).

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q — When will I get my dividend for my World War II insurance and how much will it be?

A — The 1981 dividends will be paid on the anniversary date of the policy. The average dividend on World War II policies is $168. For World War I policies the average is $296, and for Korean Conflict policies, the average dividend is $67.

Q: I recently retired from the military after 20 years of service and I plan to go to school under the GI Bill. Will I receive an allowance for my dependents?

A: Additional allowance is payable for dependents if the veteran attends school on at least a half-time basis. Dependents include spouse, minor children and unmarried children between 18 and 23 who are attending school.

Q — My brother and I entered active duty prior to December 31, 1976. I was honorably discharged on December 31, 1979 and he was honorably discharged on February 25, 1980. Would we both have the same delimiting date of January 1, 1990, for our Veterans Administration education benefits?

A — The final cutoff date for receipt of Chapter 34 education benefits is December 31, 1989. As a result of this, anyone eligible for these benefits released from active duty after December 31, 1979, will have a delimiting date of December 31, 1989.

Q — What is "direct deposit" as it relates to Veterans Administration benefits?

A — Direct deposit is a government program that allows you to have your monthly compensation or pension payments delivered directly to the financial institution of your choice for deposit to your personal checking or savings account. To apply, take your next check to your financial institution and tell them you want to sign up for direct deposit.

Problems... Problems

People chuckle when they see a baby who seems to have the weight of the world on his shoulders. What can he possibly be thinking about that makes him seem so pensive?

His thoughts probably aren't very serious, for babies often strike delightful and comical poses that enliven the family photo album.

But babies grow up and become adults, with real problems and difficult decisions to make.

Don't forget, as your baby matures, to emphasize those things that will enable him to cope with his future. Don't forget love, discipline, understanding . . . and especially, don't forget his spiritual training.

FIRST AID TIPS FOR A MORE ENJOYABLE SUMMER

Caring for a minor cut, scrape or burn isn't too difficult when you are close to home. But, what happens when you're on a camping trip, far away from your medicine cabinet?

Whether you prefer camping, hiking, canoeing down the rapids, or a combination of all three, there are many precautions you should take before embarking upon any sort of "outdoor" activity, that has a built-in potential for hazard.

To help make summer activities safer for your entire family, here is some advice from Colgate-Palmolive, manufacturers of Curity First Aid products:

- Study a first aid book when you are still in the planning stages of your trip. It will help you to identify the nature and severity of an injury and help you make a wise decision about the correct course of action to follow.
- Get a tetanus innoculation.
- Learn CPR, cardio-pulmonary resuscitation.
- If you plan to be near water, knowledge of artificial respiration is essential.
- Plan to take a well-organized, well-stocked Curity First Aid Kit with you.

Keep in mind that professional medical attention should be given to any cut, puncture or burn that seems to be unusually severe. In the case of an animal bite, professional medical attention is always advisable. If possible, make an effort to quarantine the animal in question, to ascertain whether or not it is rabid.

Exercise common sense whenever you and your family are involved in outdoor activities. Don't attempt hazardous activities in isolated areas. Do try to learn as much as you can about what you plan to do. It is the best way to insure your safety and well-being and that of the people you care for.

. . . As Good As They Never Were

Columnist Lois Trapp of the Grafton Record usually expresses an objective viewpoint with a good deal of forethought involved. The following is no exception as she gives her views on education:

It is that time of year again. The journals and magazines are blossoming with articles, about the sad state of our public schools. Somehow they always seem to coincide with the teacher-school board salary negotiations.

The coal miners are striking, the dock workers are striking. Any raises they get will be felt indirectly by the public in price raises. The cost of raises for teachers is reflected immediately in the school budget.

The general perception is that the public pays a lot of money for education and isn't all all satisfied with what it is getting. There is a cry for tax credits for sending children to private schools, forgetting that private schools do not have to take or keep everyone.

Someone has said: "We want the schools to be as good as they never were."

Looking back over fifty years — a high school diploma was not then considered a necessity. Many students went to school until they finished the eighth grade or until they were sixteen, whichever came first, and no one worried about it. As for college, that was for a relative few.

Today, when a B.A. is practically a requirement for selling toothpaste; when a drop in attendance means a drop in school aid, the pressure is on to keep them in school by whatever means.

One of the problems of American education is that we thrust on the school whatever social or economic problem is bothering us. The schools are asked to teach not only reading and writing, but patriotism, life adjustment, good manners, and the dangers of drug abuse.

They must teach driver education. (Who can stand to teach his own kid to drive?) They must teach sex education. (Who can comfortably instruct his own kid about the birds and bees?)

When "Sputnik" went up we demanded they start turning out graduate engineers. When race relations became a problem we laid on the schools the burden of righting the ills of segregation and prejudice. And we wonder why Johnny can't read and blame it on television.

North Dakota schools have not had the problems of violence, racial tension and drugs, for the most part, that have disrupted the process of education in urban areas. But we are not immune to the drop in the standardized test scores that bother the critics so much.

Local administrators attribute it partially to a broader curriculum, which tends to dilute concentration on the basics.

The broader curriculum has come about from the theory, fashionable for a couple of decades, that a child's schooling should center on his likes and aptitudes. While North Dakota schools have not, as in some areas, diluted their offerings with credit for astrology, cheerleading or mass media, there is less emphasis on English, history, math and science.

Perhaps the real problem is that Americans are not sure what they want our schools to do. Is there a common cultural heritage that is essential for a Democracy to function; that every child should have? Should a kid who wants to be a truck driver be exposed to the arts, be able to write an essay, know the importance of the Magna Carta or study Hamlet?

At the age of eleven or twelve, the British divide their children according to their abilities, sending some on the university path, some on the trade school route. We find that terribly elitist. We also know that many children have not found themselves at that age. Yet we tend to do the same thing by diluting the cirriculum with electives and vocational options.

I tend to be something of an optimist about our public schools. They are not what they could be, but they are a lot better than the critics would have you believe.

In every study of good and poor schools, two factors are listed as important. The first is the school principal. To quote a Harvard University study: "A good principal is an instructional leader. He or she cares most about the academic program, not the football team, the boiler room or going to workshops. This sort of principal is out in the school, talking to students, supporting and monitoring teachers, not sitting in an office filling out reports."

The second requirement for a good school is involved and supportive parents; parents who demand academic excellence and discipline — not just from the school and other people's kids, but from their own.

A Grim Reminder

Sometimes it takes a bit of grim reality to bring home to us the value of safety rules we all too often ignore or take for granted. Such a reminder is contained in this article from the Ohio State Fire Marshal News:

Last week I saw a man die. He suffered unimaginable torture. Second-degree and third-degree burns covered 40 per cent of his body. For five days and six nights he fought off the inevitable before he drew his last rasping breath.

Old friends spent the weekend at his house and on Sunday night they were to have a giant steak, charcoal-broiled on his outdoor grill. When the coals did not flare quickly enough, he gave them another squirt from a large can of fluid. There was a vapor explosion. You may have seen one like it. There is a flash of light, but very little sound — only a quick phfft, and it is all over.

This time it was not over. As he released the thumb pressure on the can, a tiny bit of flaming vapor was sucked back into the can. It exploded. The bottom blew out and drenched him with the flaming liquid.

He rolled on the ground, got up quickly, ran toward the river, stumbled and fell, got up and hurled himself into the water. There was no scream, there was little sound of any kind. Even the exploding can made little noise. He said, "Oh, my God!" twice in an agaonized undertone, and one of his dogs howled. In less than 30 seconds it was all over, and 30 minutes later he lay in a hospital bed bandaged like a mummy.

I went over the ground later and saw the burned grass and the burned branches of the cedar tree above. I picked up the remains of the can. It bore a name familiar to all of us, and it contained a fluid I have often used. One of the purposes for which it is sold is the starting of charcoal fires. The still readable directions were clear: "If used on charcoal, wait before you light it. Never add more after the fire is started." But how often have you followed these directions — if you have read them at all?

If you light charcoal this way, don't invite me to a cookout at your house. I never want to see another man die.

In The Name of Research

Sen. William Proxmire of Wisconsin some time ago originated the "Fleece of the Month" awards, an attempt to show the existence of waste or at least unnecessary financial involvement by the government in projects of questionable value.

The Wisconsin Democrat cites appropriations made in response to claims of other representatives in Congress who argue that the U.S. budget is uncontrollable, appropriations are required by law and little can be done to reduce federal spending.

It is true that Sen. Proxmire's interpretations of complex subjects may occasionally be simplistic, but when reviewed from the perspective of bottom line results, most of the expenditures seem rather ridiculous. Here were some cited recently:

$215,592 spent by the office of education to teach college kids how to watch TV.

$384,948 spent as part of a CETA award to count the cats, dogs and horses in Ventura, county, California.

$3.4 million paid by the Postal Service to get U.S. citizens to write more letters.

$775,000 spent by the postal service to determine if the letter writing campaign was worthwhile.

$57,800 spent by the Federal Aviation administration to study the body measurements of 79 airline stewardess trainees. (At $731 per stewardess, there is room for much measuring.)

$27,000 spent by the Law Enforcement Assistance administration. They wanted to know why prison inmates want to escape.

$2,500 for the National Endowment for the Humanities, to learn why tennis players cheat, lie and act crude on the court.

$75,000 to the institute of mental health to learn why bowlers and hockey fans smile.

$102,000 spent by the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse to decide if sunfish that drink tequila are more aggressive than sunfish that drink gin.

Borrowed Nonsense:

"Are you content," the elderly lady said to the panhandler, "to spend your life walking around begging."

"No, lady," he confessed. "I'd much rather have a car."

THE SHAPE OF TOMORROW

STARS BY THE BUCKETFUL

Installers lower a deep space surveillance system telescope into place. Such telescopes can track an object no bigger than a soccer ball 22,000 miles above the Earth.

When TRW Inc. began building a deep space surveillance system for the Air Force, astronomers sat up and took notice.

The reason? The system's video cameras and 15 computerized telescopes not only will track satellites in outer space, but will take pictures of millions of stars.

The deep space surveillance system will provide more consistently accurate pictures — and more of them — than astronomers have ever had access to before. It will hourly scan six million stars, more than have been catalogued in the history of astronomy.

That data will be stored in a computer system — or "starbucket," as it's sometimes called — that astronomers may dip into anytime.

As a result, the opportunities for scientific research about such mysteries of deep space as stellar masses, novae, and black holes will be increased.

Are you in touch with the newest devices for keeping in touch? This quiz on pagers and mobile phones can help you tell.

1. More people would have a phone in their cars but for (a) the price (b) technological problems (c) the government?

2. Pagers are for (a) doctors only (b) librarians only (c) just about anybody?

3. To install and use a radiotelephone in your car, you must make arrangements directly with the telephone company. True or False?

ANSWERS: 1. (c) Close to 140,000 car phones are currently in use and at least 50,000 people are on waiting lists. Until this year, the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) had allocated only 26 channels for commercial rediotelephone use so only a few people in any one area could make a call at one time. Fortunately, a recent technological breakthrough with cellular radiotelephone systems will mean a number of calls can be made on each channel and many more people may be able to have and use car and portable telephones.

2. (c) While many people think pagers are just for professionals or executives, beepers are also used by expectant mothers to keep in touch with expectant fathers, parents to keep in touch with baby sitters, children to keep in touch with elderly parents, peripatetic repair people to keep in touch with new jobs, priests who want to be on call for emergencies, ranchers with workers at the ends of their estates and many others.

3. False. Radiotelephones can be installed and serviced by Radio Common Carriers, licensed independent communications companies which provide FCC-authorized radiopaging and mobile telephone service to the public through the use of radio signals. For free information on pagers and mobile phones, write the RCC national association: Telocator Network of America, 1800 M St., N.W., Suite 1020 North, Washington, D.C. 20036.

ENTERTAINING IDEAS

Big Batch Brownies: Chocolate or Butterscotch

If you resort to using brownie mix because it's quicker, easier, and less messy than "from scratch", you might consider another less costly alternative. This easy recipe, just as fast as a mix, yields a bigger batch of moist brownies than even the large size brownie mix. Cholesterol counters take note: these are egg-less brownies.

Take your pick of either dark (chocolate) or "blonde" (butterscotch) brownies. For chocolate brownies, use chocolate cake mix and canned chocolate pudding. For butterscotch brownies, use yellow cake mix and canned butterscotch pudding.

Since the richness of these brownies comes from canned pudding, don't pay extra for pudding-added cake mixes. Look for the least expensive generic or store brand.

For an interesting change from plain brownies, an easy topper of chips and nuts is suggested. Of course, these yummy extras add to the cost of the recipe. When you compare basic brownie mix with the pudding/cake mix method, (minus the chips and nuts), you'll be saving money.

EASY CHOCOLATE BROWNIES

1 pkg. (double layer size) chocolate cake mix
1 can (17½ oz.) Thank You Brand Chocolate Pudding
½ cup chopped nuts
½-¾ cup chocolate, choco-mint OR peanut butter chips

Combine cake mix and chocolate pudding until well blended. Pour into oiled and floured 9x13x2-inch cake pan. Sprinkle with nuts and chips. Bake at 350°F. for 35-45 minutes.

EASY BUTTERSCOTCH BROWNIES

Follow above directions, using yellow cake mix, Thank You Butterscotch Pudding, and butterscotch chips.

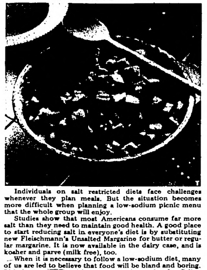
UNSALTING OUR DIET FOR HEALTHY AND TASTY EATING

PREPARING FOR A PICNIC



Individuals on salt restricted diets face challenges whenever they plan meals. But the situation becomes more difficult when planning a low-sodium picnic menu that the whole group will enjoy.

Studies show that most Americans consume far more salt than they need to maintain good health. A good place to start reducing salt in everyone's diet is by substituting new Fleischmann's Unsalted Margarine for butter or regular margarine. It is now available in the dairy case, and is kosher and parve (milk free), too.

When it is necessary to follow a low-sodium diet, many of us are led to believe that food will be bland and boring. This is not the case. The accompanying recipe for Calico Potato Salad combines Fleischmann's Unsalted Margarine with a variety of seasonings in an unusual variation of a favorite dish where no one will miss the salt. Served warm or at room temperature, it is an ideal dish to pack for a day's outing.

CALICO POTATO SALAD
Makes 10 Servings

- 1/2 cup (1 stick) Fleischmann's Unsalted Margarine, melted
- 1/4 cup cider vinegar
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1/3 cup finely chopped green pepper
- 1/3 cup finely chopped onion
- 1/4 cup chopped pimiento
- 6 medium potatoes, peeled, diced and cooked

Thoroughly combine Fleischmann's Unsalted Margarine, vinegar, sugar, dry mustard and pepper. Mix in green pepper, onion and pimiento. Pour over warm potatoes. Toss lightly and serve warm.

Sodium: 10 MG. per serving

Hints For Homeowners

Home Improvement, Safety And Economy

TOOL SETS SAVE TIME

Have you ever taken an adjustable wrench from the workshop to the kitchen to begin repair of a leaky faucet, only to find that the jaws don't open quite wide enough to fit the nut? Or started to tighten a loose hinge but found the screwdriver tip too thick to fit the screw slot? And then had to make a return trip to the workshop for the right tool?

These are familiar time-wasting happenings that can easily be avoided. Modern toolmakers have solved this type of problem in a number of different ways—mainly by combining sizes of hand tools and complete work kits in a single package. And they are not those "dime store" multi-purpose gadgets. We're talking about the makers' regular professional-quality home-owner tools in a neat vinyl or plastic pack.

You'll spot most of these in any good hardware store, such as a set of three sizes of Crescent adjustable wrenches, or a convenient combination of an adjustable wrench, screwdriver and pliers. There's a Nest of Saws made by Nicholson that includes a wooden handle with three interchangeable blades—compass, keyhole and metal or wood cutting. For your circular saw, they have a Trio pack of rip, plywood and all-purpose blades, and to answer your filing needs a Home File Pak—four different files "for every purpose."

So that you can have all your soldering gear readily at hand, Weller put together a dual-heat gun with three tips, tip-changing wrench, flux brush, soldering aid tool, and a coil of rosin-core solder . . . all in a plastic case. Two other handy sets are Xcelite's Four-In-One screwdriver set which consists of a holder with two reversible blades with different size tips for regular slotted or cross-shaped screw heads, and a compact convertible set of 10 midget screwdrivers and nutdrivers with a "piggyback" handle that slips over the top of the mini-tools for extra turning power.

With handy sets or kits like these, a lot of back-and-forth between the repair scene and the workshop is eliminated, and two jobs can get done in half the time.

Host Families Still Needed For 1981-82

Educational Foundation for Foreign Study, located in Greenwich, CT, is still in need of families to host a foreign student for the 1981-82 year.

Students, who are very carefully screened, come to the United States with their own money. The only cost to the host family is room and board. In addition, by hosting a foreign student, the U.S. government allows a taxable deduction of $50 per month for each month the student is with a host family in the U.S.

Currently, there are still high school age students from Norway, Sweden and Austria to place in this area. Families will have the opportunity to pick their student from available files. These students must be placed immediately, so they may receive their visa prior to their arrival August 22, 1981. They cannot come to the U.S. without a student visa.

Please consider having a student. The experience will last a lifetime. An area representative will help families throughout the year and will deal with any problem that may arise.

For more information please call 218-687-5131 collect.

Area Crops Infested By Army Worms

Serious infestation of army worms were present in isolated small grain fields throughout the Thief River Falls area during the week of July 6. Most commonly infested have been fall planted rye and early seeded barley, according to Terry Courneya, Pennington county extension director.

While the infestation is not widespread at present, the potential exists and farmers are cautioned to check their fields regularly to make worm counts before making a decision to apply chemical control, Courneya said.

Rule of thumb recommended to determine economic levels of investation is five worms per square foot on the ground. If the level is reached, they are not difficult to observe and are likely to be most prevalent in heavy stand of grain where lodging has occurred. They are usually easiest to observe during the cool hours of early morning.

Toxaphene at 1½ to 2 pounds per acre is the most commonly used insecticide. Where the straw is extended to be used for livestock feed or bedding, malathion at 1½ lbs. per acre is recommended.

Free Clinic At Viking

A free blood pressure screening clinic sponsored by the nurses from the Marshall county nursing service will be conducted July 22 at 12:30 p.m. at the community center in Viking.

Tracy Foldesi In Queen Event

AN AVID DANCER, Tracy Foldesi of Greenbush is also an accomplished singer, instrumentalist and athlete. A junior this fall at Bemidji state university, 19-year-old Tracy is a former Northwest Dairy Princess. Her talent number in the Miss Thief River Falls pageant August 1 will be a vocal solo.

(Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of interviews with candidates for the Miss Thief River Falls title at the annual Jaycee Aquacade. The official Miss America preliminary pageant will be held August 1 in the Lincoln high school auditorium.)

Music and athletics may not be a common mix of interests, but to Tracy Foldesi of Greenbush they have formed a combination for activity and enjoyment throughout most of her 19 years.

Tracy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Foldesi and a 1979 graduate of Greenbush high school. She attended Golden Valley Lutheran college in the Twin Cities a year ago and completed one year at Bemidji state university this spring. She is five feet four inches tall, weighs 120 pounds, has brown hair and hazel eyes. Her pageant talent number will be a vocal solo.

Royalty is nothing new for Tracy. In 1979-80 she served as Northwest Dairy Princess, winning the regional title at competition in Thief River Falls. An honor student in high school, she has also been on the dean's list for all six quarters of college and was recognized in the 1979-80 edition of the national dean's list.

In high school at Greenbush she mixed many activities with her scholastic efforts. She was selected most valuable player and all-conference in basketball, won the most outstanding member award in both band and choir, was named most scholastic athlete, nominated for "Who's Who in Music" and the McDonald's All-American band. She received superior ratings in state-region music competition and was a homecoming queen attendant.

In college she was a wrestling team cheerleader and a member of the intramural women's basketball championship team at Golden Valley Lutheran. At Bemidji she was floor representative on the homecoming committee and has taken provate vocal lessons from Linda Spicher. She is majoring in social work with psychology and sociology minors and also working on obtaining a coaching certificate.

For hobbies she particularly enjoys dancing and cooking, but also enjoys singing, softball, basketball and playing the drums.

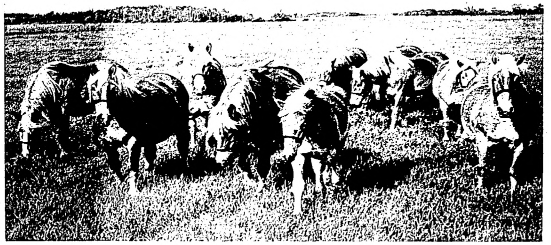
Goodridge School Board To Meet Tues.

Regularly scheduled meeting for the board of trustees of Goodridge Independent School District No. 561 will be conducted Tuesday (July 14) at 8 p.m. in the home economics room in the Goodridge high school.



TONS OF HORSES are represented by these Belgian mares on the Larson Brothers farm located northwest of Oklee. Although the horses are huge in size (these mares will approach 2,000 pounds each), they are gentle and have excellent dispositions. Surrounded by the animals in the Larson pasture, a visitor may feel lost in a land of giants. But the horses merely seek attention, an affectionate rub or pat, and the chance to satisfy their curiosity about strangers in their midst. With the brood mares here are some yearling fillies.

Larson Brothers Enjoy Life As Producers Of Belgian Horses

EXPERIENCED HORSEMEN are the three Larson brothers who raise Belgian draft horses on their farm northwest of Oklee. They are the sons of John Larson, a Montana cowboy who homesteaded the farm in 1896 and, according to some of the early neighbors, "forgot more about horses than the boys will ever know". George Larson (upper left) is the senior member of the trio at 74 years of age. Bill Larson (left) is 70 and would rather talk about horses than drink coffee, but prefers to do both at the same time. Carl Larson (upper right) is 67, an accomplished cook and baker, who draws midwife duties with the mares on the farm "because he was in the medics in World War I and should know more about maternity than the rest of us". The brothers explain their spotless house and meticulously kept yard by saying, "We, we do the best we can." The statement also applies to the quality of horses they raise.

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

There aren't many horse owners around this part of the country who would turn down an offer of $12,500 for their horse. But the Larson Brothers who raise Belgian horses northwest of Oklee did just that.

It's not that the Larsons had only one horse to sell — they generally have 15 to 20 of them on the farm. It's not that they aren't accustomed to selling horses — it's their business. And the $12,500 offer was the highest they have ever received for one of their horses.

"But she's probably the best mare we ever raised," Bill Larson says about the decision. "We remember when horses were selling for $500. They still really are only worth that today. It's not that the offer was too low; she's just not for sale."

Larson further explained that the mare's dam produced a colt every other year and that the brothers had sold a full sister of the mare in question to another breeder and later were sorry they made the sale. They tried to buy the animal back but the new owner was so pleased with the horse that he wouldn't sell. They weren't about to make the same mistake twice.

George, Bill and Carl Larson are three unmarried brothers who farm a few miles northwest of Oklee. Their father, John Larson, was a Montana cowboy who homesteaded the farm in 1896 when the Red Lake Indian reservation lands were opened for settlement. The farm now consists of 500 acres, part of which is rented out and the remainder in pasture, hay and oats for the horses and "a little wheat for spending money".

In the early years the Larson family farmed the 500 acres with horses, always having about 25 grade horses on the farm. They purchased purebred stallions and raised their own horses for the farm work. Then, about 44 years ago, they got into the purebred horse business.

"We bought a registered Belgian mare and stallion from George Dayton (of the department store Daytons) in Minneapolis. But production with a single mare was too slow, they decided, and in 1946 they bought three mares and a stallion from Grand Good of Ogden, IA.

"We used to show at the state fair," Bill Larson said. "It would be a family trip. You could hire a man to look after the farm for $5 a day. Now you'd have to pay that an hour if you could get anyone at all. And we did all right. In three years we never got less than third place and we showed against the Daytons, Gluek Brewing company, Earl Brown and the University of Minnesota. The Daytons used to send their herdsman, Wesley Wilson, to Belgium to buy the best horses he could get.

"The first year we showed at the state fair I was green at it," Bill admitted. "I was ready to bring our horse out and Wesley Wilson said I should have blackened the

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Hanford And Jacobson Vows Spoken At Mentor

Mary Catherine Hanford and John Robert Jacobson of Thief River Falls exchanged marriage vows on June 6th at the Faith Lutheran church in Mentor.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hanford of Mentor. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jacobson of Los Angeles, Calif.

Rev. Harold Petersen officiated at the double ring ceremony. Music was provided by Mrs. Edna Neibauer, organist, and Mrs. Marilyn Ness, soloist.

The birde was given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a gown of white chiffon with Chantilly lace trim. The fitted bodice, accented with pink satin ribbon, was styled with long, tapered sleeves with deep lace cuffs, matching the sheer embroidered yoke and stand-up collar. Two wide lace ruffles edged her bouffant skirt and chapel-length train. Her lace-edged veil of bridal illusion was held by a coordinating headpiece trimmed with pearls. She carried a bouquet of white and peach roses, accented with babies' breath.

Mrs. Claire Rhode, Mentor, a sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Other attendants were Tammy Hanford, Coon Rapids, niece of the bride, and Mrs. Cindy Ruse, Erskine, a friend of the bride. They wore blue, peach and yellow gowns with matching jackets. They carried bouquets of peach roses, yellow silk babies' breath and white daisies.

The birde's personal attendant was Mrs. Phyllis Loder, Cooperstown, N.D., a friend.

Bruce Jacobson of Los Angeles, Calif., attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Dwight Bruggeman and Joe Kotaska of Thief River Falls. They wore gray tuxedos with white rose boutonnieres, while the groom was attired in a white tuxedo with a peach rose and white babies' breath pinned on his lapel.

Serving as ushers were the bride's nephews: Robert Rhode of Mentor and Patrick Hanford of Blaine.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Hanford wore a green polyester gown complemented by a white corsage. A similar corsage was worn by the groom's mother who was attired in an off-white street-length dress.

Special guest at the wedding was Mrs. Eva Buhn of Mentor.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall with Mr. and Mrs. Allen Sipe of Ada, uncle and aunt of the bride, as host and hostess.

Trisa Sipe of Ada, a cousin of the bride, was at the guest book. The gift table was attended by Mrs. Florence Nygaard of Twin Valley and Mrs. Alice Johnson of Moorhead, aunts of the bride. Jimmy and Tracy Rhode of Mentor, nephew and niece of the bride, ladled the punch.

Presiding at the silver service were Mrs. Edith Larson of Mentor and Mrs. Bernice Endres of Maple Lake, friends of the bride's family. The wedding cake was cut and served by Mrs. Hugh Hanford, Coon Rapids and Mrs. Bruce Hanford of Blaine, sisters-in-law of the bride.

After a wedding trip to Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Jacobson are at home in Thief River Falls where they are employed.

Valley Home Events Reported By Ella Overum

Six residents at Valley Home observed their birthdays during the month of June, according to the report received from Ella Overum, the Home's reporter.

Noting birthdays and dates, were Leo Schiefert and Louis Handegard, both on June 6; Olaf Abrahamson, June 7; Clarice Sundberg, June 13; Angie Gangness, June 28; and Grace Lindblom, June 30.

All were honored jointly at a party on June 12 with each honoree receiving a birthday card and a monetary gift from the Home, and a card from the Catholic Daughters of America. Entertainment for the party was provided by Randy Moe, who played the piano and sang. Lunch included cream puffs provided by the Home, Leo Schiefert, Louis Handegard, Clarice Sundberg and Grace Lindblom. Also on their birthdays Handegard and Sundberg served ice cream to all the residents as did staff members Gloria Cleven and Diane Benson.

Several novel events highlighted the month's activities. In observance of Old Maid's day, a cake walk was held. Cup cakes, decorated by the residents, were served at the afternoon coffee hour.

On June 29, the men hosted a stag party at the band stand for invited guests. Refreshments were served. Music for the event was provided by the Newfolden string band. The following day, the season's first picnic dinner was held at the Hartz park; and twice during the month, both ambulatory and wheel chair residents had coffee and cookies in the Senior Citizen Park gazebo. Due to rain, the hymn sing scheduled for the Hartz park was held at the Home.

Also during the month, a wedding picture contest was held with the residents identifying wedding photographs of the residents. Hilda Johnson correctly identified 24 and was given a collage frame and Mildred Fritzinger, who identified 21, received a box of stationery.

Activities Planned For Pennington County Fair

MARGO SMITH, country songstress, will be featured July 26 at 7:30 p.m. at the Pennington county fairgrounds during the 1981 Pennington County fair in Thief River Falls July 23-26. Smith's latest Warner Bros. LP, entitled, "Diamonds and Chills," presents the "new" Margo. "I couldn't be something I wasn't," she asserts, "but there's a whole lot to me people don't know." Smith, a former schoolteacher from Dayton, Ohio (real name — Betty Lou Smith), was encouraged by friends to try singing and writing professionally. Her first record, a Margo-penned song called "There I Have Said It," hit the country charts in 1975. Smith has gone from performing as a solo act to traveling with her own band, "Love's Explosion" since that time.

As Pennington county fair time nears, plans are well underway for an assortment of activities for participants of all ages during the four-day event, July 23-26.

Included this year will be Kiddies Days, Wednesday, Friday and Sunday; talent contest Thursday at 7:30 p.m.; demolition derby Friday at 7 p.m.; horse racing Saturday at 7 p.m. sponsored by the Northern Minnesota Horse Racing Association; mud rassling Sunday afternoon sponsored by the Thief River Falls Evening Lions club; and the Margo Smith show at 7:30 Sunday evening.

Arrangements are now complete for the 1981 amateur talent contest which will be conducted in front of the grandstand at the fairgrounds Thursday. In case of rain, the contest will be conducted in the city auditorium.

Prize money totaling $200 will be awarded with the first place winner to receive $75, second $50, third $35, fourth $25 and fifth $15.

Talent must be amateur. Anyone is eligible to enter and there is no age limit. Performances will be limited to four minutes. A piano, microphones and sound system will be provided. Any other equipment needed must be supplied by the performers.

Registration forms may be obtained from Larson Music company, downtown Thief River Falls. Completed forms should also be returned to Larson Music. First 15 entries received will be accepted for performance.

Any questions may be referred to Mike Lehrer, 681-2700, ext. 272; or Doug Engstrom, 681-2700, ext. 241.

Admission charge to the talent show will be 50 cents per person or $1 per family.

Margo Smith show will be presented in the grandstand Sunday evening. Smith, a former schoolteacher from Dayton, Ohio (real name — Betty Lou Smith) was encouraged by friends to sing and write professionally. Since that time, the country songstress has released several records, and has performed as a solo act as well as with her own band, "Love's Explosion." She has worked with fellow performers such as Tammy Wynette, Charlie Pride, Charlie Rich, Tom T. Hall, Don Williams, The Statlers, Faron Young, Conway Twitty, Sonny James and Ronnie Milsap. Her latest Warner Brothers album is entitled "Diamonds and Chills."

Exhibits in the fair create a "good fair" according to the fair board of directors. Exhibitors are asked to pay special attention to the premium lists this year, as ages of some of the animals have been changed, according to Oliver (Skip) Swanson, secretary of the fair board.

Exhibitors should remember that entries for premium prizes are limited to residents of Northwest Minnesota and all entries in all departments must be in place on the entry day, July 23, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. as judging will begin at 10 a.m. July 26 and will end at 4 p.m.

All livestock, including horses, cattle, sheep, goats and swine to be exhibited shall be accompanied by health certificates issued by qualified veterinarians and approved by the livestock sanitary official. Certificates for all livestock shall comply with the rules and regulations of the Lifestock Sanitary Board.

Terry Courneya, director, also reminds exhibitors showing swine in the open class that those animals over six months require a vaccination or must be from a certified herd free of "Brucellosis" a swine disease.

All poultry must be accompanied by a pollorum certificate or must originate from a certified pollorum free flock.

Divisions included within the livestock department include cattle, sheep, swine and poultry and pets. Classes in the poultry and pets division include all standard poultry, bantams; pigeons, turkeys, ducks, geese, rabbits and an open class dog show.

Agriculture division classes include grains and seeds; hay, silage or haylage; field roots, garden products and fruits.

Articles exhibited in the home and family department must never have received a premium nor have competed within two years preceding the fair. All entries in this division must be mounted, framed, finished and clean, and all pictures should be ready to hang. Children's handwork division will include the same classes as for adults.

Sewing division will include adult garments, men's wear, children's wear, infant wear, lingerie, remodeled garments, rugs, quilts, pillows, and quilted articles. In the sewing division for children will be a class for those sewers 12 and under and a doll clothes class.

Entries will not be accepted after 4 p.m. July 23 in the flower department. All flowers must be grown by exhibitors, an exhibitor may enter only one exhibit in any lot of color and exhibitors are required to show the exact number of specimens called for in the premium list.

Classes include those for cut flowers, artistic arrangements, and potted plants with the children's flowers to include a class for cut flowers only.

Arts and crafts department will include classes for pictures, crafts, leatherwork, ceramics, porcelain art, hobbies, holiday decorations, photography, woodworking, and children's projects. Demonstration day will be July 21 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the courthouse meeting room in Thief River Falls.

A number of improvements have been added at the fairgrounds this year, according to Skip Swanson. A cyclone fence has been added east of the grandstand around the track mainly for safety reasons, he said. Again this year, fans will be evident in the barns for cooling for the animals and entrants. And gravel is being hauled into the fairgrounds area this week.

"We want to make things as comfortable and convenient as possible for our patrons," he said.

Fair-goers are also reminded that the 4-H food stand will be located in the upstairs of the city sports arena during the four days of the fair.

At the reception conducted during the promotional blitz, Mayor Carlson made Winnipeg Mayor Bill Norrie an honorary citizen of Thief River Falls and expressed his appreciation to the citizens of Winnipeg for the "gracious hospitality" extended to his delegation during their visit.

Mayor Carlson noted that there are a number of Manitobans who are frequent visitors to Thief River Falls, and would like to invite all those who have not visited this city to come down August 3. INSTALLING ONE of 12 benches that will be appearing in downtown Thief River Falls within the next week is a CETA crew who worked on Main Avenue last Friday. Discussing the procedure is Jack Quinlivan, city planner (second from right) and Bill Duckworth of the J. C. Penney company. Project developed from a request by Ed Sisler and others in the community concerning the need for benches. Contact was made with various service groups and the Retail Business Association and because the project fit into the downtown plan, was carried out. Because of the participation by various groups, the project has become a "community" one with the area vocational-technical institute responsible for steel work on the benches, Occupational Development Center responsible for the wood work, and finishing work accompalished by city forces. Northwest Senior Federation is handling monies for the project. Future plans are to install a total of 30 benches in the downtown area as need arises. CETA crew at work consists of Cindy Madoll, Dan Phelps and Tom Mjelde.

Instrument Makes Carrot Planting Easy

Combine a saltshaker with a gardening instrument not yet named, along with some black dirt, and the result will be nine rows of carrots, according to Carl E. Johnson of Newfolden.

Johnson put into practice an idea he developed last summer to make planting carrots an easier task. But the idea failed when the use of a rake would not make the proper sized furrows in the ground to plant the carrot seeds, he said. So last winter he put a friend to work. The result was an instrument created from a drive shaft of a car. "Reason it doesn't have a name yet," chuckled Johnson, "is because I haven't gotten mad at it yet!"

Use of proper sized holes in the saltshaker are important for spreading seeds over the nine rows created by the instrument. "I experimented with different ones (shakers) to get one with the right sized holes," he said. "You can always thin the carrots out but you can't always put them back if nothing grows," Johnson said, explaining what would happen if too many seeds were spread in one row. Seeds arde planted one-fourth to one-half inch deep into the furrows created by the instrument.

Johnson placed a nine-inch board over the seeds after watering them to conserve moisture, but the rains forced him to take them off, he said.

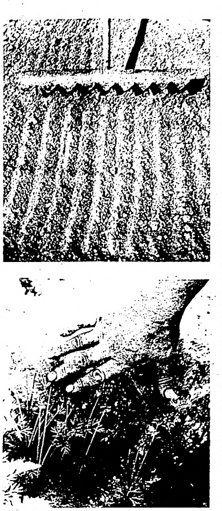
So far Johnson has only used the instrument to plant carrots, although he said, it may work for other vegetables as well — depending upon how much room that particular crop needs.

"I figured while I was down on my hands and knees (planting) I could just as well work on a wider row," he said.

Johnson, a gardener who takes pride in his work, admired his garden of carrots, potatoes, onions, peas and tomatoes during our visit to his home last week.

"I just start thinking about something and work at it until I get it how I want," he commented.

LOOKING OVER his garden in Newfolden, is Carl E. Johnson, a gardener who takes pride in his work. He is especially proud this year of his carrot crop which developed from the use of an instrument created by a friend from a drive shaft from a car. Using a saltshaker with the proper sized holes, Johnson spreads the carrot seeds over the nine one-half inch deep furrows created by the instrument. "Invention" works well for carrots because of the way they grow," Johnson said. The carrots can be easily thinned out of too many seeds gather in one furrow.



AN "INVENTION" developed by a friend last winter has enabled Carl E. Johnson of Newfolden to plant nine rows of carrots at one time. "I figured as long as I was down on my knees, I could just as well work on a row this wide," he said, describing the nine furrows created by a single movement of the instrument.

Cow Research Data Given At Dairy Meet

At the recent American dairy science association meetings conducted at Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, Dr. George D. Marx presented research conducted at the Northwest Experiment Station, Crookston. There were 1400 dairy scientists in attendance from the USA, Canada and several foreign countries. A total of 336 research papers were presented along with current symposia topics.

Paper presented by Marx was entitled "Comparison of large and small Holstein cows fed three quantities of concentrate." The scientific paper involved the long term breeding-nutrition project at the Crookston station where researchers are developing large and small sized cows within their herd. This registered Holstein herd has been a closed herd since 1966 when the project was initiated with no females purchased since that time. Objective of the research is to determine feed and production efficiencies of large and small sized Holstein cows fed three different levels of forage and grain.

Summary of the data to date shows that there is no differences in the production of large and small cows when both milk yield and milk fat are considered. Small cows were four per cent more efficient in producing milk primarily because they required nutritionally less body maintenance needs. Large cows do have larger calves, more meat salvage value and higher growth rates (daily gain) than small bred animals. Substantial progress has been made in achieving size differentiation and in breeding high producing cows in both size groups. Actual dairy herd improvement (DHI) rolling herd average of this herd is presently 19,677 pounds of milk with a 3.6 per cent fat test and 707 pounds of milk fat. Considering the various research projects imposed on the herd, this production average is considered outstanding and is the highest among state owned institution herds in Minnesota.

In 1979, only 12 per cent of lawyers and judges and 3 per cent of all engineers were women, according to a U.S. Department of Labor publication, "Job Options for Women in the 80's."

MN Orchestra Concert Set In Rural Terrace

Minnesota Farmers Union (MFU) will join the Minnesota State Arts board and the Terrace Mill foundation in sponsoring a Minnesota orchestra concert in rural Terrace July 19 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the historic restored Terrace Mill, 10 miles south of Glenwood on State Highway 104.

"This is an excellent opportunity for rural Minnesotans to hear the orchestra without traveling to the Twin Cities," said MFU president Cy Carpenter. "It shows that this is truly the state's orchestra, and that all Minnesotans are interested in quality entertainment."

Carpenter added that the concert is planned as a family event, with the program to include classics that all audiences will recognize and enjoy.

Guest conductor Joseph Giunta will lead the orchestra in a program at Terrace Mill that will include Copland's "Fanfare for the Common Man" (popularly known as the theme from the Olympics); Tchaikovsky's "Excerpts" from Swan Lake; Wagner-Hutschenruyter's "Ride of the Valkyries" from Die Walkure; excerpts from Mussorgsky-Ravel's "Pictures at an Exhibition"; Wagner-Hoffmann's "Arrival of the Guests at the Wartburg" from Tannhauser; A Star Wars Medley by Williams-Burden; and a selection of songs from Rodgers and Hammerstein musicals including "Some Enchanted Evening," "Oklahoma!" "There is Nothin' Like a Dame," and "Where or When."

"One of the unique things about this concert will be the site," Carpenter commented. Terrace Mill district is a nationally registered historic area consisting of the mill, a privately owned miller's home, dam, head race and tail race, keystone arch bridge, and three acres of park. It has been altered very little since its construction in 1903. Almost 1,000 flour mills were built in Minnesota around the turn of the century, an era when the state was known for its flour production, the Terrace Mill is one of the 12 remaining.

According to the Minnesota orchestra staff, this is the first time that the 95-member orchestra will play in this rural area of the state. Other concerts to be conducted during this 52-week season will be in Minneapolis, St. Paul, St. Joseph and Rochester, plus an annual performance at Carnegie Hall. Next year, the orchestra will tour New York, Boston, Washington, D.C.

There will be an admission charge for the outdoor concert of $3 in advance or $4 at the gate. No alternate location has been named in case of rain.

MN Is Losing Ground, Says Publication

Minnesota is losing ground — literally. Over 100 million tons of soil erodes from the state's cropland annually.

These are the findings published in a new Soil Conservation Service publication, "Minnesota's Farmland: An Endangered Resource."

The theme of the brochure is that Minnesota is losing ground to soil erosion and conversion of prime farmalnd to non-agricultural uses.

The 100 million tons of topsoil that erodes annually from Minnesota's cropland is enough soil to bury both sides of I-94 12 feet under from Minneapolis to Miles City, MT. Erosion creates negative side-effects by decreasing the soil's fertility, damaging crops, and polluting surface and groundwater.

Annually, 49,000 acres of Minnesota farmland is converted to non-agricultural uses. Almost one-third of this farmland is prime farmland, the richest, best drained and least erosive land in the state. Conversion of this farmland represents a loss of over a million and a half bushels of corn worth $4 million.

The findings published in the brochure are from the National Resource Iventory study, conducted by the Soil Conservation Service. The study provides statewide statistics on rural land use, soil erosion rates, conservation needs and rural flood prone areas.

Copies of the brochure are available from the Soil Conservation Service, 200 Federal Building, 316 North Robert Street, St. Paul, 55101.

Antique Show Set At Fargo

Midwest Antique Guild show and sale will be conducted July 21, 22 and 23, at the Fargo Civic auditorium. Tuesday and Wednesday hours will be from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Thursday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is $1.50 for one day and $2.50 for all three days.

This is the 20th year the antique show and sale has been sponsored by Kappa Alpha Theta Alumnae, with proceeds going to charity. There will be 42 dealers from over 10 states displaying their antiques. Lunch counter will be served in the lobby by alumnae members.

S. Howard To Work At Youth Camp

Sandie Howard, Plummer, has been selected by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources to work at the Northern Lights youth conservation corps camp located in northeastern Minnesota near Isabella.

Camp employs 21 enrollees, 14 of whom are hearing impaired, to work on a variety of conservation projects on non-federal public lands. Projects include trout stream improvement, construction of new camp sites, park and trail maintenance, and brushing of lake access roads. Thirty hours a week are spent on work projects with enrollees earning the current minimum wage of $3.35 per hour.

In addition to the work experience, enrollees receive 10 hours per week of hands-on environmental awareness education at work sites or near-by lakes, rivers, bogs and forests. Weekend field trips are taken to areas of historic or cultural interest. Recreational activities are a part of the daily and weekend schedules and include camping trips, hiking, canoeing, fishing and a variety of creative games. Students receive one high school credit for their participation.

MCCL Opposes Nomination Of S. O'Connor

A spokeswoman for Minnesota Citizens Concerned for Life (MCCL) recently announced that the 24,000-member pro-life organization would strongly oppose the nomination of Sandra O'Connor to the U.S. Supreme Court.

"Judging by the votes she cast while a member of the Arizona Legislature, O'Connor is not pro-life and would not vote to uphold the right to life of the unborn," said Nancy Koster, MCCL's vice president.

In 1970, when she was an Arizona state senator, O'Connor twice voted to support a bill legalizing abortion. (Until the 1973 Supreme Court abortion decisions, Arizona's abortion law permitted abortions only in cases where the mother's life was endangered.) In 1974, a memorialization was introduced calling on Congress to pass a Human Life Amendment. O'Connor voted against the memorialization twice, once in committee and once in caucus. Again in 1974, O'Connor voted against a bill to prevent abortions from being done at the University of Arizona.

"Nothing in O'Connor's record indicates that she would support the human rights of those who are now so threatened: the unborn," said Koster.

Koster noted that the 1980 Republican platform called for the appointment of judges who would "respect the sanctity of innocent human life." Sandra O'Connor, said Koster, does not meet this standard.

"MCCL is urging pro-life citizens to ask Sens. Boschwitz and Durenberger to oppose O'Connor's nomination," said Koster. "We also urge all pro-lifers to contact President Reagan asking him to abide by the Republican platform and withdraw the name of Sandra O'Connor from consideration for the Supreme Court."

Manager For Power Mktg. Is Named

James D. Davies, area manager for the Western area power administration's (Western's) Billings area office, has announced the appointment of Richard J. Schirk as assistant area manager for power marketing. Schirk, who assumed the position July 12, will replace Edwin C. Speare who recently retired.

As assistant area manager for power marketing, Schirk will be responsible for the power marketing activities associated with the Eastern division of the Pick-Sloan Missouri Basin program in a marketing area that includes Montana (east of the Continental Divide), North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, and the western portions of Minnesota and Iowa — a total area of about 378,000 square miles.

Billings area office is responsible for marketing power from power plants of the Pick-Sloan Missouri Basin program which have about 2,400 megawatts of capacity. Office markets over 12 billion kilowatt-hours annually to over 250 customers and operates and maintains about 7,100 miles of transmission lines and 80 substations.

Free AAA Gas Economy Test At Kmart

Local motorists can learn whether their cars are wasting gasoline and polluting the air by participating in the free gas economy tests to be conducted by Minnesota AAA at the Kmart parking lot in Thief River Falls July 22. Open to the public, the tests will run from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., according to Glen Krenz and Dave Swanson, district managers for Minnesota AAA in this area.

The test takes only three minutes and determines whether a vehicle is operating as efficiently as possible. "A small sample of exhaust gas is analyzed to see how much combustible material it contains. This is wasted gasoline," says Krenz.

If a car engine is not running efficiently, the test can indicate probable trouble spots.

To date, over 50,000 vehicles have been tested by AAA in Minnesota in an effort to show motorists how to get the best gasoline mileage they can. Minnesota AAA expects to test an additional 8,000 vehicles in approximately 75 Minnesota locations this year.

Philadelphia carpenters struck unsuccessfully in May 1791 for a 10-hour day and additional pay for overtime. According to "Brief History of the American Labor Movement," a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor, this was the first recorded strike of woekers in the building trades.

50 Year Award Presented At State Fair

Long-time participants in the Minnesota state fair may be eligible for the 50 year award, to be presented during the 1981 exposition, August 27 through Labor Day, September 7. To receive the 50 year award, applicants must have been involved in at least 25 state fairs beginning in 1932 or before.

Persons who qualify for the award will receive a commemorative plaque at a 1 p.m. ceremony August 30, at Heritage Square, the fair's early America theme area. In addition, names of award winners will be added to a permanent wall plaque in the lobby of the state fair administration building.

Those eligible for the 50 year award include competitive exhibitors, concessionaires, commercial exhibitors, employees of the state fair and anyone who has had a long association with the exposition.

Among applicants thus far are Martha Randall Tayler of White Bear Lake and Harold Eckdahl of Golden Valley. Mrs. Tayler, the daughter of former State Fair manager Eugene W. Randall, was born on the fairgrounds in 1899 and has never missed a fair. Eckdahl is a long-time exhibitor in the state fair's bee and honey competition.

In 1980, 23 people received the 50 year award. Program was started for livestock exhibitors in 1979.

Anyone interested in applying for the award should contact: 50 Year Award, Minnesota State Fair, Falcon Heights, Minn. 55108; phone (612) 642-2251.

Interest-Free Loans

It has to be a sore point with U.S. taxpayers — who are against the wall with high interest rates on their personal borrowing — to know that the federal government is borrowing money at mid to upper teen interest rates in order to make interest-free loans to states and terrotories.

According to the U.S. chamber of commerce, 17 states and territories collectively owe the U.S. treasury unemployment trust fund $6.3 billion in interest-free loans to help finance their unemployment benefit systems.

While the loans themselves are "beneficial" in purpose, the easy credit terms have encouraged abuse of the loan fund by some states that borrow to avoid taking fiscal responsibility for their benefits, notes chamber benefits analyst Eric J. Oxfeld.

"Moreover," he states, "the loan fund itself is insolvent and must borrow from federal government revenues (taxes) to provide advances, contributing to federal deficit spending."

In other words, the treasury has to borrow at rates in the mid to high teens in order to make the interest-free loans. At 15 per cent interest rates, these unemployment compensation loans would cost taxpayers close to $1 billion a year. According to U.S. department of Labor figures, here is what the states and territories owe:

Arkansas, $64 million; Connecticut, $365.6 million; Delaware, $48.7 million; District of Columbia, $57.9 million; Illinois, $1,375,600,000; Kentucky, $52.1 million; Maine, $35.9 million; Michigan, $1,015,000,000; Minnesota, $114 million; New Jersey, $646.8 million; Ohio, $599.9 million; Pennsylvania, $1,588,000,000; Rhode Island, $120.4 million; Vermont, $40.5 million; West Virginia, $99.8 million; Puerto Rico, $82.4 million; and Virgin Islands, $6.0 million.

Under federal unemployment laws, a state may borrow from a special federal loan fund if it cannot meet benefit obligations. In Minnesota, for instance, the benefits have been so liberalized that the state unemployment fund is in dire straits. The federal bail-out is in effect a subsidization of state mismanagement and largess.

The U.S. chamber of commerce suggests two actions which should be taken, and we agree that they are necessary as minimum action:

(1) Charge interest on new borrowing from the fund, effective immediately for states currently in default and for other states as they default;

(2) Freeze benefit costs for states that are unable to repay their federal loans, as a condition for any additional borrowing.

Federal financial back-up for state systems on an occasional basis is tolerable to help out in times of crisis. Regular use, or mis-use to the extent of some of the states listed, is intolerable and should be immediately corrected.

Can We Put An End To Drunk Driving?

Getting drunken drivers off Minnesota streets and highways — and keeping them off — is one of the most serious problems confronting this state.

In 1979, Minnesota recorded 881 deaths in traffic. Of the 525 drivers involved, 324 were tested for alcohol content, and 189 had alcohol in their systems. Of the 189, tests showed that 146 were at or above the 0.10 level of intoxication.

Attorney General Warren Spannaus makes a good point when he suggests that tougher laws are needed for governing the drinking driver.

Drinking drivers are a serious danger to our society," Spannaus declares. "We cannot afford to let them continue to climb behind the wheel. It's a matter of life and death."

It certainly is.

Itasca county court Judge William J. Spooner believes that the answer is to "get drinking drivers off the road, not just put them in jail." He can see some merit in the Spannaus proposal to tighten the time periods before driving while intoxicated (DWI) cases are settled. But he suggests that it would be more effective to make drunken driving an offense which provides for a two-year suspension of a driver's license.

"A $300 to $500 fine is of minor importance to many drivers facing DWI charges," Judge Spooner says. "What really hurts is jail time, loss of the driver license and what happens to their insurance rates."

Under the present system, three things may happen to the person charged with DWI:

(1) If the driver pleads guilty, he loses his license for 30 days but receives a ten-day certificate to allow him to continue driving to the required DWI clinic, to arrange for other transportation to work, and to apply for a limited license which will allow him to drive to and from work only.

(2) If the driver refuses the alcohol content test and pleads not guilty, after the present 30-day grace period he will lose his license for six months if guilty.

(3) If he takes and fails the test with an alcohol content of 0.10 or more, pleads not guilty, and is found guilty, he loses his license for 90 days.

Anyone convincted of DWI must pass a driver's test and go through the license application process before the license is returned by the state. Some are not able to pass the driver's test.

What happens to insurance rates for those convicted of driving while under the influence of alcohol?

A 20-year-old single man with only the required liability, no fault medical and uninsured motorist coverage will see his costs soar from $448 a year to $1,643 after a DWI conviction. A 35-year-old married man with the same basic coverage will have his rates increased from $138 to $677 a year.

That increased rate will probably continue for five years after the violation before it returns to a lower level. Insurance costs alone should be a strong deterrent to driving while intoxicated.

Judge Spooner thinks that making DWI an offense with extremely rigid penalties, could be an important step in the right direction. He suggests a two-year suspension for the first offense, ten years for a second violation and suspension for life after the third. There should be a mandatory jail sentence for any driver who violates a suspension or terms of his work permit.

"They're doing things like this in the Scandinavian countries, with great success," he adds. "It may sound harsh, but it should be."

We agree with both Attorney General Spannaus and Judge Spooner that drinking drivers are a menace to us all. They should be eliminated from the highways. This is a good time to consider increasing penalties for drivers whose drunkenness behind the wheel may bring tragedy to the innocent as well as to themselves.

How Much Can We Stand?

Following editorial is from the Redwood Gazette:

The Fargo-Moorhead problem as described in the Sunday Tribune ought to be required reading for members of the Minnesota legislature.

A working man and wife with two kids, earning $45,000 a year between them, pay $2,700 in Minnesota income tax, $820 in North Dakota.

A $100,000 home in Minnesota is taxed $1,924; in North Dakota, $1,450.

A fast-food restaurant in Moorhead pays $16,600 in property taxes; in Fargo across the river, $6,688.

A Fargo trucking firm pays $410 per driver for workman's compensation; in Moorhead, $1,923.

Is it any wonder that the Moorheaders are fleeing the Quality of life in Minnesota?

The director of Fargo's industrial development corporation summed it up: "What Minnesota is doing to its business is nothing short of slaughter."

That comment ought to be bronzed in a paperweight and placed on each Minnesota legislator's desk.

Borrowed Nonsense:

The down-and-outer asked the store keeper, "Would you take a fellow's last cent for a lousy pack of cigarettes." "I sure would," the store keeper replied sternly. "I'm not in business to give 'em away." "O.K.," the tramp grumbled, picked up the cigarettes, laid a penny on the counter and left.

"Guess what," the employee said to his boss. "I dreamed last night that you gave me a bigger raise than the one I asked for last week."

"Isn't that strange?" the boss replied. "In your next dream, invest it wisely."

Wife: "Why do you insist on playing poker with Bill and John when you know they're such bad losers?"

Husband: "Because I'd rather play with a poor loser than a good winner."

House Display For Citizens At State Fair

Thursday, August 27, marks the beginning of the 1981 Minnesota State Fair which runs through Labor Day, September 7. The Minnesota House of Representatives information office will be there, for the eighth straight year, to promote citizen participation in state government.

The House display will again feature an electronic voting booth which will give fair visitors a change to cast their "vote" in a state fair opinion poll. This year's poll will center around a number of issues the Legislature has dealt with and that will come up again in the next session.

In a visit to the House information display visitors can learn who their representatives are at the State Capitol; find out how a bill becomes law — in 10 basic steps; check their government I.Q in a test-yourself slide quiz, pick up information on new state laws, view a slide show on the House in Action, meet and talk with House members, register to vote.

House display will be in the machinery-state exhibits building on Machinery Hill. Look for the sign "Minnesota House of Representatives — Government is for Everyone" and learn where and how to get information about the Legislature.

Theatre Group To Present Art Festivals

Plain People Children's Theatre, a touring group of seven performing artists, will present a series of youth art festivals again this summer.

Festivals will emphasize creativity and involvement through exposure to a wide range of art forms. Each festival will include performances and hands-on activities suitable for the whole family. Activities will include: dancing, juggling, song writing, storytelling, origami, and face painting.

Plain People members are experienced performers and instructors. This winter the company was involved with school residency programs and special arts festivals for the handicapped. In April, the group was privileged to perform at the Governor's Rough Rider award banquet honoring Phyllis Frelich.

Currently, the company has been working under the direction of Jim and Helen Cermak who are on the Concordia College theatre faculty. The Plain People repertoire includes selections from the last three seasons and a variety of new, original material.

In the past over 100 festivals have been sponsored in part by grants from North Dakota Council on the Arts, F-M Area Foundation, N.D. Community Foundation, and the Stern Family Foundation.

This summer 40 festivals will be eligible for partical funding by grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and the North Dakota Council on the Arts. Community organizations, park boards, and art councils interested in sponsoring a festival should contact the manager, Larry A. Olson at (701) 232-1646.

Wild Oat Seminars Set During July

With uncertan weather conditions and tight work schedules teaming up to undermine some of the best laid spring weed control plans, a growing number of area farmers are turning to fall application of herbicides to control wild oats, a weed which costs North Dakota grain growers an estimated $150-200 million in crop yield losses annually.

This relatively new technique, and the equipment needed to implement it, will be the subject of a series of special granular equipment exhibitions and wild oat seminars for local farmers throughout the first part of July. Complimentary food and refreshments will be served, by Monsanto, hosts of the event.

Participating growers will hear indepth presentations on the wild oat problem and the benefits of fall treatment, and will have an opportunity to get a first-hand look at granular applicators manufactured by Barber Engineering, Bellne, Gandy, Nodet Gougis and Valmar. Most popular units from each company's line of air- and gravity-flow equipment will be on display at the exhibition site.

"North Dakota farmers have been up against unpredictable weather ever since the first seed was sown," contends David G. Hanson area weed control specialist for Monsanto. "The last two years are a good case in point. Dry weather clearly reduced the performance of both pre-and post-emergent herbicides applied in spring."

"Fall application of a granular herbicide like Far-Go offers local growers an effective wild oat control program that doesn't require much cooperation from Mother Nature," he continues. "Treating wild oats in the fall also allows farmers to take advantage of winter moisture in getting their herbicide activated and their wild oats controlled."

According to Hanson, this program is also gaining increasing popularity since granular Far-Go can be applied and incorporated shallowly while still leaving a trash or stubble cover over winter to minimize soil erosion.

Area growers interested in further details on the free seminar and exhibition should contact their local farm supplier, or call the local Monsanto district office.

Theatrical Production At Stephen, Sat.

Civic and Commerce Association of Stephen will sponsor a theatrical production Saturday (July 18) at 12:30 p.m. at the Lundeen Motors lot in Stephen, as part of Appreciation Days.

Six-member Pillow Theatre company, an international ensemble touring Minnesota this summer, will be presenting "Les Fourberies de Scapin (The Trickery of Scapin)" within their custom 30 by 60 foot tent. Audience will be invited to join in the atmosphere of playwright Moliere's (pronounced mo-lee-air) comic world. Play is an adaptation of a work by Moliere, who produced comedies in mid-17th century France.

Pillow Theatre Company combines mime, acrobatics, chases and tomfoolery in this presentation. Action revolves around a roguish servant named Scapin, whose task it becomes to trick two self-possessed fathers into accepting the romantic choices their children have made without their consent.

Featured in The Pillow Theatre Company this summer are director Jim Calder, actors Jane Furnas, Jenny Tucker Flion, David Calder and Andre Baer; and musician Brenda Swanson.

The Pillow Theatre Company tour is being presented this summer as an outreach effort by Bemidji State University and the Paul Bunyan Playhouse. Activity is being made possible, in part, by a grant provided by the Region II arts and humanities council through funding from the Minnesota State Arts board and the Minnesota State Legislature.

Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Peres

Q. Pastor Don, do you believe that the Old Testament rule of tithing, giving 10% of your income to the Lord, still applies today?

A. The Jew was under the law to give 10% of his income to the Lord, and anything over and above was called a freewill offering. This Jewish law ought to be a suggestion to us as to where we should begin our giving. We should begin by giving 10% to the Lord, for a Christian certainly ought not to be less generous than a Jew.

The Jew as well as the Christian have many promises given them if we give generously to the Lord. Our motives for giving should not be to receive back from the Lord, but because we love Him, even though He has promised many blessings.

Acts 20:35 says, "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

Malochi 3:8-10 teaches, "Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings. Ye are cursed with a curse: for ye have robbed me, even this whole nation. Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be food in mine house, and test me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

Luke 6:38 says, "Give, and it shall be given unto you, good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over, shall men give into your bossom. For with the same measure that ye mete withal it shall be measured to you again."

II Corinthians 9:6-7 says, "But this I say, He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he which sowath bountifully shall reap also bountifully. Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give; not grudgingly, or of necessity: for God loveth a cheerful giver."

Yes, I believe that the Old Testament rule of tithing still applies, but the New Testament goes much farther than 10%. All of our money belongs to God and we are to be good stewards of His blessings.

Deuteronomy 8:18 teaches, "For it is He that giveth thee power to get wealth."

Larson Brothers Producers Of Belgian Horses

hooves. I didn't have anything to do that with, but George Dayton got shoe polish from his own kit, got down on his knees and blackened the hooves of my horse. Then I went out in the show ring and beat him with the horse we had bought from the Daytons in the first place."

Bill praised the sportsmanship and friendliness of the Daytons, noting that they arranged for the Larsons to have adjoining stalls at the state fair and decorated them as well as their own. "I asked them what it would cost," Bill recalled, "and they said, 'It don't cost you nothing'. Pretty nice, huh?"

Only once have the Larsons taken one of their horses to a sale — and that was a few years ago. "We thought we should go and top the sale," Bill said. "Well, we didn't make it. We placed third out of 800 head, so we came home satisfied." That mare brought $4,500 and the Larsons are sure at today's prices that she would have sold for $12,000.

The Larson horses are well enough known now so that sales are really no big problem. There is a demand for draft horses and prices have risen accordingly. The highest price they have ever received was $12,000 for a bred mare sold to a Buffalo, (MN) horseman. Their stud colts are in the $2,000 range and fillies go for about $3,500.

The Larsons estimated they have raised between 225 and 250 colts in their years of registered horse breeding, and are proud of the fact that the animals have been of high quality. "We haven't gelded a colt in 43 years," Bill said.

The horses are sold primarily throughout the midwest, although sales have been made by the Larson brothers to three provinces of Canada, Texas, Oregon, North Carolina, Michigan and Wisconsin.

But horse raising is much more than making sales. Big horses are big eaters as well. The Larson's main herd sire, "Riot duMarais", is a seven-year-old which came from Wisconsin as a two-year-old. It weighs 2,220 pounds. Mares flirt with the one-ton mark. Mature horses and older fillies may eat 40 to 60 pounds of hay a day, and the growing colts and pregnant or nursing mares receive grain as well. The Larsons figure it takes about 5,000 bales of alfalfa hay to carry their horses through the year.

In addition to raising their own horses, the Larsons provide stud service at $75 for breeders bringing their mares to the farm. They board no mares, however, and they don't guarantee a foal. They have had mares trucked in 300 miles for stud service.

For George, Carl and Bill the horses are much more than a business or means to a livelihood. They are the key to an entire way of life. They average 300 visitors to the farm a year — "all kinds of people from all walks of life". Their guest book shows addresses from many states and several foreign countries, including Japan and Norway.

"One week last year Carl baked four cakes and by the weekend all we had left was doughnuts," Bill laughed.

That means the Larson brothers will probably continue raising horses as long as they possibly can. "If we quit the horses," Bill reasons, "we'll lose all our friends. It's like a guy who quits drinking — he soon loses all his friends. Now we have lots of company, there are often visitors around, and we enjoy it."

When Carl isn't handling the farm's herd sire or playing midwife to a foaling mare (he draws night time barn duty during foaling, sleeping on a cot in the 30-year-old converted dairy barn), he will probably be in the kitchen of the spotless farm house. His culinary wizardry is well known in the area, and he has helped a number of women with fancy baking for weddings and other special events.

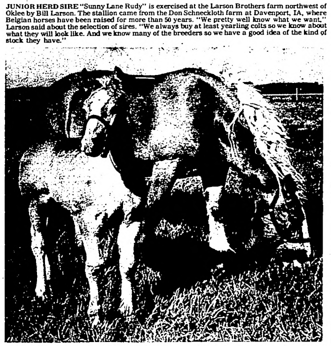
With beautiful horses to look at and Carl's baking to go with coffee and conversation, it's no wonder the visitors flock to the Larson farm. The neighbors used to say about the Larsons' father that he had forgotten more about horses than the boys would ever know.

Perhaps that's possible, but George, Carl and Bill know how to get a great deal of enjoyment out of their work. And sometimes maybe that's the important thing to know.

COMBINED EXPERIENCE of more than 130 years in raising Belgian horses is shared by the Larson Brothers of Oklee, who have been raising registered horses on the Larson farm for nearly 44 years. George (left) is 74, Carl (center) is 67 and Bill is 70, but their years have not diminished their love for good draft horses and the social atmosphere which accompanies the business. The mare in the foreground is "Betty Farceur", a six-year-old which has produced two colts and the horse which the brothers believe may be the best mare they have ever raised. They turned down an offer of $12,500 for her and have not regretted the decision. "She's not worth more than that, necessarily," Bill admits. "She's just not for sale."

THE LARSON BROTHERS are three unmarried sons of the late John Larson who homesteaded the Larson farm northwest of Oklee in 1896. Their farm yard is a model of neatness and cleanliness with several novelty touches — including this field stone hitching post which doubles as a flower garden. The top of the rock has been chiseled out by hand to permit the hitching ring to be seated and the hole filled with lead. Left to right are Bill, Carl and George Larson.

JUNIOR HERD SIRE "Sunny Lane Rudy" is exercised at the Larson Brothers farm northwest of Oklee by Bill Larson. The stallion came from the Don Schneckloth farm at Davenport, IA, where Belgian horses have been raised for more than 50 years. "We pretty well know what we want," Larson said about the selection of sires. "We always buy at least yearling colts so we know about what they will look like. And we know many of the breeders so we have a good idea of the kind of stock they have."



STRONG AND ALERT, this foal on the Larson Brothers farm northwest of Oklee is a fine example of the Belgian breed. The Larsons have been raising registered Belgian horses for nearly 44 years and have been breeding for light color and white face blaze as well as size and conformation. They have sold a bred mare for as high as $12,000 to a Buffalo (MN) breeder. The only time they have placed an animal in an auction it brought the third highest price among 800 year consigned. That was a few years ago when the $4,500 bid was considered a high price for a horse.

IF YOU DON'T KNOW what this sign at the end of the driveway means, you've come to the wrong farm. The Larson Brothers of rural Oklee prepared the sign for the driveway where it meets the country road. "People we deal with don't always know what 'stop' means, but they all know what this means," Bill Larson explains.

Workshops On Elderly Set At Crookston

Two three-hour workshops pertaining to the elderly have been scheduled July 20 at the Best Western Motel in Crookston.

First workshop, conducted from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m., will deal with "Nutritional Needs of the Elderly," while the second workshop, "Emotional Needs: Adapting to Stress," will be conducted from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. First workshop will include information on diabetes in the elderly.

The elderly population is faced with many societal problems, according to Loran Hanebuth, director of staff development in St. Paul. As economies, job opportunities, independence, health and living arrangements change, self-esteem or the feeling of self worth decreases. Also, as friends and family members encounter similar difficulties or die, loneliness occurs. These effect the emotional stability and place stress on the person's ability to adapt to these changes.

Admission to hospitals, nursing homes or any relocation of living arrangements, increases stress. Effectieve nursing care can help the older person to maintain or re-establish his or her self-esteem and decrease the feeling of loneliness.

Both sessions are approved by the Minnesota Nurses Association for three contract hours each in meeting continuing education requirements. For information on registration, send name, address, name of session or sessions planned to attend, to Lorna Hanebuth, MS in N.Ed., 1285 St. Paul Avenue, St. Paul, MN 55116 or phone (612) 227-0336. Fee of $11.50 per session or $23 for both sessions can be paid the day of the workshop. Lunch is included.

Polish Relief Objective Of Food Campaign

Church World Service-CROP has announced its intention to cooperate with the American Agricultural Movement (AAM) and Catholic Relief Services (CRS) in soliciting food donations for Poland. That nation is suffering a definite food shortage with 50 per cent of the population affected. Empty food shelves in grocery stores are reminders that the nation has a critical 12-day food reserve.

This effort has the recognition and support of the U.S. state department, U.S. department of agriculture, AFL-CIO, Teamsters, and Longshoremen's Unions, Pope John Paul II, many American Catholic leaders and several Polish-American organizations. American corporations have given substantial donations and assistance.

In Minnesota and the Dakotas CWS-CROP will solicit donations of wheat, potato flakes and powdered milk. Cash donations will be used for the purchase and processing of these foods. Plans are underway to have the wheat flour milled and sacked in our three-state area. Free transportation to port will be provided by the Teamsters Union; Longshoremen will donate the containerizing and loading; and transportation will be provided free in Polish government ships. The distribution of the food will be through the Polish Episcopal conference of the Roman Catholic church in Poland, in cooperation with the Solidarity Unions.

Organizations, communities and individuals interested in organizing food shipments from their communities, or those interested in making commodity donations, should contact Rev. Roger O. Livdahl, CWS-CROP, Box 566, Fargo, ND 58107, telephone (701) 293-0910. Cash donations for this project should be sent to: Church World Service-CROP, Elkhart, Indiana 46515.

Jack Poole Featured In Article

Former Lincoln high school hockey standout Jack Poole was the subject of a column article by Jim Zima of the Press-Gazette in Green Bay, Wis., where Poole, an all-stater on the 1956 Thief River Falls state championship team, now resides.

He was a charter member of the Green Bay Bobcats, still ranking among the top 20 in the Green Bay scoring charts with 177 points on 80 goals and 97 assists despite seeing somewhat limited action in five seasons because of his time away from the team with the U.S. Nationals and a knee injury.

Poole played right wing for the United States in three world hockey tournaments in 1961-63. The U.S. team finished fifth in the world meet in Switzerland in 1961 and won the third place bronze medal in 1962 at Colorado Springs. The team was fifth in 1963 in Stockholm.

Poole was one of the leading scorers for the U.S. team in that 1963 tournament, scoring the winning goal in a pair of games, including two goals in a 5-4 win over West Germany.

But it was a play near the end of the 1962 tournament that sticks out in Poole's mind as he passed the puck instead of taking a shot in the final seconds against Sweden. A goal there would have put the U.S. in position to win a second place silver medal.

"That game still stands out in my mind," Poole told Zima. "It was great touring all over and playing in countries like Switzerland, Sweden, Russia, Czechoslovakia, Poland and Germany, and playing the Russian was always great. But that game against Sweden has been on my mind for many years. I keep thinking that one over. The score was 2-1 and Paul Coppo, who was centering Oscar Mahle and myself, went in and got the tying goal, but they ruled it offside and nullified the goal. On the face-off, Coppo got the puck and fed it to me and I was breaking in with Mahle on a breakaway with around 30 seconds to play. Mahle called for the pass. I had the shot, but instead I passed it to him. The goalie intercepted it and the game was over. That was probably the toughest loss we suffered, especially since if we would have tied we would have had to play Canada and needed only a tie for the silver medal. There were a lot of great games and lots of wins, but that game sort of sticks out in my mind."

Following the 1963 world tournament, Pool returned to the Green Bay Bobcats, but played in only four games during the 1963-64 season. He suffered a knee injury that required surgery and then had a blood clot in his lungs that sidelined him for the season. He tried to come back in 1964-65, but was having trouble with his knees. He played one game in Rochester, and in his second outing in Green Bay he collided with Lou Nanne of Rochester, now general manager of the Minnesota North Stars, and reinjuried the knee. That forced him to give up hockey.

He is currently actively involved in the Green Bay youth hockey program.

WARROAD BASE RUNNER Ward Ortmann was tagged out at the plate by Thief River Falls catcher Jim Hallamek as he tried to score from second base on a bloop single into left field by teammate Chris Ploof in the sixth inning of Thursday's Northwest American Legion baseball league game played on the fairgrounds diamond. Leftfielder Jeff Cwikla fielded the ball and threw a strike to the plate to end a threat by the visitors who collected four consecutive two-out singles but got just one run out of it, tying the game 7-7. Thief River Falls came back to win it in the bottom of the seventh.

Beat Independents 4-1 In Championship Game . . .

Elks Win TRF Babe Ruth Title

In an all-Thief River Falls final, the Elks scored three times in the top of the ninth inning Sunday to beat the Independents 4-1 to win the 13th annual Thief River Falls Elks invitational baseball tournament for 14-15-year-olds.

The eight-team, two-day event played on the diamonds at the fairgrounds and Northland community college was called "without a doubt, the best tournament" in the history of the event that began back in 1969.

Opening round games Saturday saw the Independents out-score Grand Forks South 8-6, Bemidji Lions shaded Crookston Gold 5-4, Bemidji Braves knocked off Grand Forks North 7-2 and the Elks handled Roseau 7-3.

In the semifinals later that same day, Thief River Falls entries defeated Bemidji rivals by nearly identical scores as the Independents stopped the Lions 7-3 and the Elks downed the Braves 7-2.

The Lions defeated the Braves 9-2 in Sunday's third place game.

In consolation round action, Crookston Gold beat Grand Forks South 4-2 and Grand Forks North pounded Roseau 14-4 Saturday to set up Sunday's consolation final where Crookston triumphed 11-9.

The Elks, coached by Bruce Williams, succeed the Bemidji Braves as the Thief River Falls tournament champion.

Elks — Independents

An extra-inning championship game matching city rivals climaxed the tournament Sunday as the Thief River Falls Elks outlasted the Thief River Falls Independents 4-1 in nine innings.

Deadlocked 1-1 since the second, the Elks finally won it in the top of the ninth when Bill Benedict and Steve Wiskow were issued walks and Tim Bottem drove in the winning run with a one-out single. Two assurance runs crossed the plate on an infield error on a ball hit by Todd Ortloff.

The Elks scored their initial run in the first inning when Ryan Drees walked, stole second and came home on a base hit by Bottem.

It became 1-1 in the second when the Independents' Scott Johnston singled and later scored on a base hit by Brian Kemnitz.

Bottem was the winner on the mound for the Elks, giving up just four hits while walking five and striking out nine in a route-going nine-inning performance. Gary Cornell, Johnston and Dave Stimac all pitched for the Independents, with Stimac getting the loss over the final four frames. The Elks collected five hits, two of them by Bottem.

Elks — Braves

Todd Ortloff didn't give up an earned run on the mound and went 2-for-3 at the plate to lead the Elks to a 7-2 semifinal victory over the Bemidji Braves.

He scattered five hits, walked three and struck out six. The Elks combined seven base hits with seven Braves errors for the win, scoring two runs in the first, third and fourth innings.

Elks — Roseau

Brian Garceau struck out 13 batters as the Elks opened with a 7-2 triumph over Roseau. Garceau gave up just one earned run as he checked Roseau on just two base hits, walking three.

The Elks scored three times in the first inning, with Steve Wiskow and Tim Bottem collecting RBI singles, and added two more runs in the second. Wiskow was 2-for-4 in the Elks' six-hit attack, driving in three runs.

Independents - GF South

Winning pitcher Scott Johnston struck out 16 Grand Forks South batters as the Thief River Falls Independents opened the tournament with an 8-6 win. Johnston gave up just two hits, walking nine.

Ryan Bakke, Joe Blankenfeld and Johnston all had two hits in the seven-hit Thief River Falls attack that went along with seven Grand Forks errors. The Independents picked up three errors.

Down 3-0 at the start, Thief River Falls came back to win, wrapping it up with a five-run fifth inning that featured an RBI single by Bakke and a two-run double by Jhhnston.

Independents — Lions

Rick Spong was 3-for-4 and scored three runs to lead the Thief River Falls Independents to a 7-3 semifinal victory over the Bemidji Lions.

Thief River Falls, leading from start to finish, iced the victory with a three-run sixth that featured an RBI single by Joe Blankenfeld.

Bemidji had an 8-5 base hit edge, but picked up four of the game's five errors. Winning pitcher Gary Cornell walked two and struck out three.

TRF Takes Consolation Title At New York Mills

Thief River Falls, after losing a 7-0 first round game to Brainerd, bounced back to beat Wadena 2-0 and New York Mills 7-5 to take home consolation honors in the New York Mills invitational American Legion baseball tournament completed Sunday.

Brainerd emerged as the tournament champion, beating Bemidji 10-0 in yesterday's title game.

Play started Friday when Fergus Falls blanked New York Mills' second team (replacing Parkers Prairie) 12-0 and Bemidji hammered New York Mills 11-1. In Saturday's quarterfinals, Frazee picked up a forfeit win over Wadena while Brainerd beat Thief River Falls 7-0.

Bemidji edged Fergus Falls 3-2 and Brainerd stopped Frazee 7-2 in semifinals. New York Mills received a bye over its No. 2 team while Thief River Falls was beating Wadena 2-0 in consolation semifinals.

TRF — Brainerd

Brainerd pitcher Greg Erickson tossed a two-hit shutout in a 7-0 opening round win over Thief River Falls, giving up only a third inning single to Kerry Wollin and a fourth inning single to Delray Ness.

Brainerd collected 11 base hits off Ness, the losing pitcher, scoring three times in the top of the first, adding single runs in the second and fourth and finishing with two more in the seventh.

Rob Veith, Keith Holtan, Tom Smith and Carl Branler all had two hits apiece for the winners, who played errorless ball while Thief River Falls picked up four errors.

TRF—Wadena

Single runs in the first and third innings proved to be enough as Thief River Falls edged Wadena 2-0 in the consolation semifinals.

Lefthander Kevin Sanders gave up just two base hits for the win, walking five and striking out four.

Thief River Falls scored in the first inning when Mark Lundin singled, moved up on an error and scored on a base hit by Greg Harder. In the third, Dave Kays reached base on an error, stole second, went to third on a sacrifice by Jeff Milender and scored on a double by Lundin, who had two of the five Thief River Falls hits.

There were just three errors in the game — two against Wadena.

TRF — N.Y. Mills

Trailing 4-3 entering the sixth inning, Thief River Falls scored three times on five base hits to take a 6-4 lead en route to a 7-5 consolation championship game win over host New York Mills.

Babe Ruth Baseball . . .

Sub District Games To Start On Wed.

A three-way first place tie in the final regular season standings was broken by a coin flip, giving the Crookston Gold the No. 1 seed over the Thief River Falls Elks and Thief River Falls Independents heading into the 1981 South Half Lake Agassiz Sub District Babe Ruth baseball tournament, scheduled to be played Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at Red Lake Falls.

The five-team, double-elimination affair will advance the two finalists to the district tournament for 14-15-year-olds.

First round game Wednesday will match the Crookston Merchants against the host Red Lake Falls ball club at 9 a.m. In the second round, the Independents and Elks meet at 11:30 a.m. while the Crookston Gold gets the winner of the Red Lake Falls-Crookston Merchants game at 2 p.m.

Final game Wednesday will match the Independents-Elks loser against the Merchants-Red Lake Falls loser at 4:30 p.m.

Games Thursday will start with a 10 a.m. match-up of the remaining unbeaten teams, followed by losers brackets games at 12:30 and 4:30 p.m. Championship game is scheduled to be played Friday at 1 p.m.; with a second game, if needed, set for 3.

SCORING THE SECOND Thief River Falls run, Greg Harder started his slide across the plate as Warroad catcher Brad Nash backhanded the ball in the first inning of Thursday's American Legion baseball game played here. Harder reached base on a bad-hop RBI single over the second baseman's head and scored on a stolen base when Nash threw the ball over second base and centerfielder Chris Ploof tacked another error onto the play. Thief River Falls won the Northwest League game 8-7.

Come-From-Behind Legion Win . . .

TRF Outlasts Warroad 8-7

Thief River Falls, after falling behind 6-2 at the outset, rallied to beat the upset-minded Warroad 8-7 Thursday in a Northwest American Legion baseball league game played on the fairgrounds diamond.

And even though it wasn't the most artistic baseball game you'll ever see, both teams deserved a pat on the back when it was done. Scrappy Warroad played better than its limited 1-5 record might indicate, while Thief River Falls battled back gamely after a poor start, pushing its Northwest League record to 4-1, one game behind league-leading Crookston, an 8-2 winner over Thief River Falls earlier in the week.

Scoring started almost immediately. With two out in the top of the first inning, Wes Ehlers bounced a single through the left side of the infield, Roc Nelson walked and Ward Ortmann singled to center for a 1-0 Warroad lead.

Thief River Falls went up 2-1 in the bottom of the inning when lead-off batter Jeff Milender doubled to right field and scored on a two-out bad-hop single over the shoulder of Warroad second baseman Tom Lien by Greg Harder, who scored all the way from first base on a stolen base when the ball was thrown into center field by catcher Brad Nash and was misplayed there by Chris Ploof.

Things clicked for Warroad in the second inning when ten batters scored five runs on three base hits, a walk, a hit batsman, two errors and two stolen bases.

Things clicked for Warroad in the second inning when ten batters scored five runs on three base hits, a walk, a hit batsman, two errors and two stolen bases.

It started when Ploof and John Brandli, the No. 7 and No. 8 batters in the Warroad line-up, walked and got hit by a pitch, respectively. An infield error scored the first run, with a single over second by Ehlers driving in two. A delayed double steal with men on first and third worked for a run, and Thief River Falls' second infield error of the inning made it 6-2.

Thief River Falls came back, though, scoring single runs in the second — on an infield ground-out by Milender that scored Steve Bengtson, who had walked and moved up on a wild pitch and a balk; and in the third on a sacrifice fly by Harder that scored Scott McKeever, who had also walked, moving to third when his stolen base produced another throwing error by Nash.

A three-run fourth inning put Thief River Falls back on top 7-6. A walk and an error started it, with Delray Ness, batting for the first time, delivering a two-run single to right field. He moved to third on a single by McKeever and scored on a base hit to right by Harder, who finished with three RBI's.

However, Warroad tied it 7-7 in the sixth, collecting four consecutive singles after the first two batters had been retired. A single by Keith Huerd scored Nelson, who bounced a single into center field to start things. But what could have been a bigger inning fizzled when Warroad had a runner thrown out at the plate for the second straight inning as Ortmann tried to score from second base on a bloop single into left field by Ploof. Jeff Cwikla fired a strike and catcher Jim Hallamek, who was 3-for-4 offensively, blocked the plate.

Thief River Falls scored the winner in the bottom of the seventh when Harder's ground ball was booted by Nelson at shortstop to lead it off. Kerry Wollin's sacrifice bunt moved the runner to second and Hallamek bounced a base hit over the head of Huerd at third, taking an extra base on the throw to the plate, giving Thief River Falls runners at second and third with just one out. Huerd charged Brent Walton's bouncer, but slipped on the infield grass and got off a weak throw to the plate as Harder scored the winning run.

Elks Rally, Beat Bemidji VFW 11-8

Thief River Falls Babe Ruth baseball teams of 14-15-year-olds came up with a split Thursday in a doubleheader against the Bemidji VFW, a club comprised of 16-year-olds.

Coach Bruce Williams' Thief River Falls Elks beat Bemidji 11-8 in the opener on the fairgrounds diamond, but the Charlie Cornell-coached Thief River Falls Independents lost the second game 7-2.

The games closed out the 1981 season for both Thief River Falls teams. The Elks carried a 16-3 record into the scheduled Thief River Falls Elks invitational tournament over the weekend while the Independents went into the same tournament with a 14-6 mark.

Elks — Bemidji

It was a see-saw slugfest, especially at the start, as the Thief River Falls Elks outlasted the Bemidji VFW 11-8 in the opener.

Bemidji opened with three runs in the top of the first inning, but Thief River Falls got five in the bottom of the inning. Bemidji vaulted back on top 8-5 before Thief River Falls capped a come-back effort with a four-run fourth inning that included three base hits and three Bemidji errors. Allan Ness had an RBI double in the frame and Lee Genereaux drove in a run with a single, scoring himself on a double steal.

Ness, Genereaux and Ryan Drees all had two hits in the game that saw Bemidji finish with a 12-10 base hit edge by committ six of the game's eight errors.

Todd Ortloff picked up the pitching decision in relief.

Independents — Bemidji

John Tesar limited the Thief River Falls Independents to just three base hits as the Bemidji VFW bounced back to win the second game of the day 7-2.

Bemidji pushed two runs across the plate in both the first and fourth innings, then wrapped it up with a three-run seventh.

Brian Kemnitz had two of the loser's three base hits.

TG Sporting Goods jumped out to a 5-0 lead in the third inning, but Coca-Cola battled back to win the game 6-5 on a ninth inning home run by Rob Almquist in Wednesday's doubleheader opener.

The two teams went through two scoreless innings and the first two TG Sporting Goods batters were retired in the third before things started happening. It began with a free pass issued to Steve Geatz, followed by five straight singles, an error and a passed ball for a 5-0 lead.

Coca-Cola answered with three runs in the bottom of the inning and single runs in the fifth and seventh to send the game into extra innings.

Neither team threatened to score until Almquist ended the contest by lacing a 2-2 pitch over the left field barrier in the bottom of the ninth.

Action Realty 8
Schmidts 7

After back-to-back one-run ins over front-runners North Star Transport and Popplers, Schmidts tried to make Action Realty its third straight upset victim in the second half of Wednesday's twinbill and almost did it before falling 8-7 in the seventh inning.

Schmidts started with a bang, grabbing a 5-0 lead in the top of the first inning when Mark Lundin and Howard Dalager hit one-out singles and Paul Walker hit a towering home run over the left field fence. Mark Haats and Don Foss sandwiched doubles around a Greg Harder triple for two more runs.

But Action Realty roared back in the bottom of the inning, with Nick Drees drilling a bases-loaded double to left-center field to cut the margin to a 5-3.

Schmidts combined a double with three singles, a wild pitch and a passed ball for two more runs in the second and carried a 7-3 edge into the sixth before Action Realty cut it to 7-6.

Holding on to a one-run lead proved to be too much to ask from Schmidts as Action Realty scored the tying and winning runs with two out in the seventh.

TRF Legion Takes Fifth

The sixth inning rally started with a one-out home run by Steve Bengtson. Then came a single by Tim Bergland, a double by Mark Lundin and a single by Jim Hallamek before another batter was retired. Greg Harder added another single to the outburst before it was done.

Thief River Falls added an insurance run in the top of the seventh when Kerry Wollin led off with a single, moved up on a pair of passed balls and scored on a ground-out by Bergland.

The winners earlier got a run on an RBI single by Bengtson in the second and two more on a two-run single by Wollin in the third.

Thief River Falls had a 10-6 base hit edge and topped the error charts 4-3. Kevin Sanders and Bengtson were 2-for-3 and Wollin, the winning pitcher, was 2-for-4.

Three Named To U.S. Hockey Hall Of Fame

Three long-time contributors to the sport of hockey will be the 1981 inductees into the United States Hockey Hall of Fame, it was announced by Director Roger Godin.

They are Tom Williams, considered one of the best American pros to play in the National Hockey League; William Jennings, president of the New York Rangers; and 1960 Olympics star Robert Cleary.

All have been cited for their wide contributions to the amateur, professional, college and international levels of the sport.

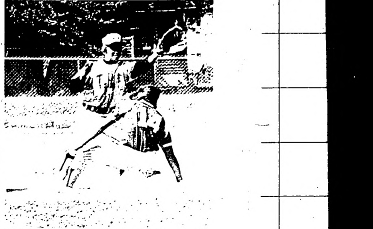
A Duluth native, Williams was the youngest member of the 1960 Olympic hockey team that captured the Gold Medal in Squaw Valley. At the age of 21 he skated into the Boston Bruins line-up and for years distinguished himself as the only American in the National Hockey League. Williams remained on the pro roster for 16 years, 13 of which included NHL service with Boston, Minnesota, California and Washington. The veteran right wing presently stands first in goals and points scored by an American-developed player in the NHL.

Jennings, 59, has been termed "one of professional hockey's most dynamic and successful executives for more than two decades," according to selection committee members for the U.S. Hockey Hall of Fame. Jennings, a New York attorney, was a motivating force behind the dramatic expansion effort in 1967 when the National Hockey League doubled in size, the largest expansion ever in professional sports. He received the Lester Patrick Award in 1971, an award presented "for outstanding service to hockey in the United States."

Cleary, a Cambridge, Massachusetts native, was a Harvard hockey captain for the 1956-57 team and led the entire nation in scoring. He was named All American in the 1957-58 season and awarded the Walter Brown trophy for outstanding achievement by an American college hockey player at an eastern school. He played in the 1958 U.S. National team and shared the Gold Medal win at the 1960 U.S. Olympics with fellow inductee Tom Williams, as well as his brother Bill, a 1976 inductee.

Williams, Jennings and Cleary will be formally inducted on Saturday, October 17, in ceremonies at the U.S. Hockey Hall of Fame in Eveleth. This year's enshrinement game will feature the University of Minnesota — Duluth vs. Michigan Tech. For further information contact Hall of Fame director Roger Godin, (218) 744-5167.

Japanese spider crab is the largest of all crabs, according to Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine. A male usually grows to a size of six or seven feet from the tip of one outstretched claw to the other. The fastest crab is the ghost crab, which can scoot across the beach at five feet per second.



BEMIDJI VFW runner Tom Luoma came up with a stolen base in the fourth inning as Thief River Falls Independents second baseman Tim Nyland pulled down a high throw during Thursday's baseball game played on the fairgrounds diamond. The Bemidji VFW, comprised of 16-year-olds, split a pair of games against the 14-15-year-old Thief River Falls Babe Ruth teams, losing to the Elks 11-8 but bouncing back to beat the Independents 7-2.

Firearms

As Ben Franklin said: "Those who would give up essential liberty to purchase a little temporary safety deserve neither liberty nor safety!"

Homicides cannot be prevented by removing a citizen's liberty and right to bear arms.

Registration of citizens' names and addresses who own firearms for protective or sports purposes also invades his private rights as a citizen. An element attempting to overpower the nation could then identify the individual owners of firearms. Therefore, registration of citizens' names owning guns is equally dangerous to the citizen himself and to the future protection of his country.

We are protesting the registration of firearms. This is your business, not big brother's. . . unless you are a crook, that is. We strongly urge and support the citizen's right to bear firearms. This is a liberty granted by our American Constitution.

This concerns the neophyte shooter, the expert sportsmen hunters, the souvenir and gun collectors; and all gun owners using guns for maintaining peace and for strictly protective purposes of life and property. Let's keep the facts very clear. We are all for the private citizen's right to carry or to own sporting equipment without registration.

Why should the sportsman have to register his sporting equipment? He may as well register his golf clubs or his wife's kitchen broom. Yes, even the broom is sporting equipment. It is used in curling games. The baseball bat the kid owns is a threat to mankind along with the rest of the team's bats. And their baseballs are equally vicious. Did you know that a ball can be thrown with deadly accuracy and strength and can kill or maim another person?

You realize too that one may be shoved off a dock while swimming or fishing — even pushed overboard from a boat or yacht. That, too, is murder. There will always be ingenious ways to commit murder other than with sporting guns: axes or hatchets, plumbing wrenches, hammers and tire irons; and if one really tries he can use scientific ways to kill by chemicals. The bathroom cabinets or kitchen cupboards or garden supplies all possess ways to eliminate by murder.

Laws are upheld by law-abiding citizens. A crook will not uphold gun laws, or any decent laws, that restrict his actions.

Regardless of whether we are crooks or not, insanity may strike anyone of us suddenly — violence may take over and using any force at hand we may murder by strangulation, hanging, rocks or even suffocation by pillows or dirt.

Yet we are being treated as feeble minded idiots or basically crooked in intent and unable to handle our privately owned sporting equipment — weapons to them — unless they are registered. Tell me — will they register your fish knife, your bow and arrows which you use in deer hunting or your spear which is used for fishing, or your wife's kitchen carving knives? How about my paper stapler?

The gun registration, in other words, will still permit murder. The guns will still be in our possession.

Is this going to eliminate insane murders by guns? Who prevents insanity? Since when has law against murder or the Lord's Commandments prevented murders taking place — or prevented insanity-inspired murder?

It seems almost futile to argue with lawmakers who perhaps never came close to guns in field hunts or target practice. I wonder what they would do if they were approached and attached with a golf club out on their golf course. Would they then ban the game, or the club or the man?

Please write to your legislators today. Request that they not tack onto their firearms bills further restrictions which prevents a citizen's right to bear arms according to his Constitutional rights. This could happen here — unless you and I also denand that we are represented by our legislators in our Constitutional interests.

Finally, the last argument to prove the issue at hand. We all know that if a crook wants a gun he finds one. Crooks never abide by existing laws — so who must abide by the new gun laws? Crooks or citizens? Who is being penalized?

States should have the responsibility of making suitable firearms laws to their own needs. Example: A state with a larger land area and low population as Montana may not want the same laws as a state like New Jersey with small land area and high population concentration.

"During 1965, firearms sales in Philadelphia dropped 90 per cent following passage of an extremely severe gun-purchase-permit law. During the exact time of this drop in gun sales, the crime rate in Philadelphia increased. Supporters of the restricitive law told the public the law would help reduce crime.

"The threat to society is not the weaponry of crime, but crime itself," sayd U.S. Rep. John D. Dingell, Michigan.

12 ½ POUND channel catfish was caught by Christ Ley of Thief River Falls Saturday morning while fishing below the dam on the Red Lake River. The smaller fish Ley estimated at four pounds. Ley began fishing at 8:30 Saturday morning and after snagging a few small walleyes, decided to try for catfish. He uses chunks of meat for bait to catch the fish, "big chunks for big fish," he smiled. Ley said the fish put up a fight before he could get him out of the water, with the task becoming even more difficult when the fish got caught in rocks in the water.

PROGRAM DIRECTOR Scooter Blankenfeld dropped the puck for a face-off in the floor hockey portion of the walleyball-hockey-soccer (WHS) summer sports program at the Thief River Falls Racquetball and Exercise Club. FWS Will Designate 1982 As Year Of The Eagle In U.S.

National Wildlife federation (NWF) has called upon the nation to observe 1982 as the "Year of the Eagle" to commemorate the 200th anniversary of the selection of the bald eagle as its national symbol.

The bald eagle, now an endangered species throughout most of the country, was adopted as the central figure of the great seal of the Unuted States by the second Continental Congress June 20, 1782, six years after a committee consisting of Benjamin Franklin, John Adams, and Thomas Jefferson was named to recommend an official seal for the newly-independent country.

"By next June, the bald eagle will have served as our national bird and symbol for 200 years," said Dr. Jay D. Hair, executive vice president of the NWF. "An eagle bicentennial will remind all Americans of our wildlife heritage — a priceless natural resource that we must manage wisely if it is to survive — and it will also remind us of the virtues — the strength and courage — the the eagle symbolizes."

On the national seal and also the Presidential seal the eagle carries an olive branch, signifying the country's desire for peace, in one talon. In the other it holds a bundle of 13 arrows, symbolizing the willingness of the 13 colonies to fight for freedom.

NWF has asked President Reagan to declare the "Year of the Eagle" in a presidential proclamation, Hair said, and is now awaiting word from the White House on the president's response.

The high-powered committee appointed to develop a national seal, which includes two future presidents, was created on July 4, 1776, the same day that the colonies declared their independence from England. Benjamin Franklin later said he opposed the choice of the eagle on grounds that it was a cowardly creature of "bad moral character" that stole its food from other birds.

In a letter he wrote in 1784, Franklin said he had favored the turkey gobbler as the national bird despite the fact that turkeys were sometimes "vain and silly."

Zoologists dispute Franklin's contention that the bald eagle, a bird found only in North America, is a "rank coward." After years of study by three committees, William Barton, a Philadelphia expert on heraldry (and brother of Benjamin Barton, a well-known naturalist), submitted a design to Charles Thomson, secretary of the Continental Congress, and Thomson presented his drawing, with some changes, to the Congress.

The U.S. was by no means the first country to use an eagle — there are more than 50 species of the bird world-wide — as its symbol. Eagles appeared in the heraldry of Mesopotamia more than 3,000 years before Christ and served as emblems for Roman emperors, Charlemagne, Napoleon, and Peter the Great.

Ornithologists believe the bald eagle soared over all of the present "lower 48" states when the first Europeans arrived on this continent. Their numbers declined steadily as settlers pushed back the frontier and destroyed their wilderness habitat, then fell sharply in the 1950s and 60s as DDT, dieldren, and other man-made pesticides contaminated their food supplies. The indiscriminate use of these deadly pesticides was outlawed in the early 1970s.

Shooting has also taken its toll of the "bird of freedom." Until 1940, when Congress passed the Bald Eagle Protection Act, some states actually paid bounties for carcasses of the predatory "varmit" bird. The federal protection law was reinforced by the Endangered Species Acts of 1966 and 1973 and by a campaign by the National Wildlife Federation to stamp out illegal shooting of the bird.

Since 1972 the NWF has paid $3 $500 rewards for information leading to the conviction of eagle killers — a program that the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service now duplicates as a deterrent to eagle poaching. Since the national Bicentennial of 1976, when it established the NWF Raptor Information Center to serve as a clearing house for data on eagles and other birds of prey, the Federation has also acquired and placed under the protection of wildlife agencies eagle roosting sites in five states.

Each January the NWF conducts a bald eagle census in the "lower 48" states which is considered to be the most thorough count conducted in the U.S. The Federation has also lobbied and been involved in several lawsuits in efforts to safeguard habitat for the nation's symbol.

The bald eagle is now listed as "endangered" in all but five of the lower 48 states. In Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Washington, and Oregon it is listed as "threatened." In the 49th state, Alaska, bald eagles are plentiful and in the 50th, Hawaii, they are non-existent.

The first permanent strike fund was established by New York City cordwainers in 1805, according to a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

THREE MONTHS of dedicated work came to a close last week as the shiny black locomotive waited patiently for its "creator" to take it to the state legionnaire convention in Moorhead for its appearance in the parade conducted this past weekend. Don Lykken, chairman of the locomotive committee, 40 et 8, voiture 737, was aided in the project by Henry Linder who helped with painting, Wennbergs Inc., Forsbergs Inc., Brodin Sheet Metal Inc., Diversified Manufactured Housing Detroiter and Revere of Red Lake Falls, and Ron and Neal's Body shop of St. Hilaire. Lykken developed the idea for the locomotive after seeing some of the vehicles in a parade at Virginia Beach last summer, he said. Lykken indicated this morning that the locomotive placed fourth in the parade. Voiture 737 placed first in nurses training, child welfare and Americanism. Group also received three honorable mentions during the convention.

County Board Proceedings

Official Proceedings
Board of County Commissioners
Pennington County, Minnesota
June 30, 1981

Pursuant to adjournment the County Board met in the Commissioners' Room in the Court house in Thief River Falls at 10:00 A.M., June 30, 1981.

Members present: Hoffman, Grabanski, Koop, Stenberg and Tasa. All present.

The minutes of the meetings of May 26 and June 9 were read and approved as read.

Board members of the Townships of Numedal, Norden, Bray and Sanders were present to discuss what is believed to be a problem of lack of proper maintenance of the roads in that area of the County. Board members of each Township indicated areas where a need existed and where gravel was needed. Acting Engineer Godfred Svir was present to get each area noted on his gravel map which is presently being covered because of the graveling now being done.

Recent rains and the present graveling seemed to point up the problem as a matter of communication and the time for graveling. Svir was instructed to review the graveling plan with each Township. Another matter of great concern was the problem presented by gravel haulers hauling heavy loads over certain roads and ruining them. It was thought that some form of control should be in place to correct the problem. It appears one form of recourse is a gravel tax which will provide funds for rebuilding roads ruined by this type of abuse. Matter of control is to be studied.

Ivan Downs & others discussed drainage in the area served by County Ditch 39 and reviewed problem of providing adequate outlet for the water between Sections 10 & 11; 14 & 15 and into Sec. 22 in Kratka Township. No action.

Royce Yeater and Romolo Martemucci of the firm of Foss Associates appeared in response to an assignment undertaken under Contract with the Board which was intended to reflect the needs of each County Office that could be corrected along with a mandated remodeling that must be undertaken by the County to provide for equal access to the public facilities provided by County Government. The Board feels that a certain amount of relocation and remodeling could be done along with the installation of an elevator at little added cost. A preliminary report was given on the interview with the department heads in the Courthouse. The Architects present reviewed the preliminary findings on an office by office basis with the Board. Rough sketches were introduced reflecting what the interviewers understood the various Department heads suggested their needs were. Several alternate suggestions were made relative to the possibility of tying the new construction portion to the City Auditorium to provide an equal access to the City Government building; an alternate site for the elevator that would keep the entry where it is. It must be pointed out here that no effort has been made to question the suggestions of any Department or to set forth any preferences as it was pointed out the Contract was to try to ascertain the needs and provide the tools with which the Board could make a decision. Matter taken under advisement.

Bob Dondelinger speaking in behalf of the Chamber of Commerce of Thief River Falls presented a proposal that incorporates the probable construction of a new $1.5 to $2 million investment in a new Feed Plant by G.T.A. and the co-operation of the County by providing the GTA with Industrial Bond privlledges and the added possibility of providing an all weather road for them so that should the Plant be built North of the City the traffic from T.H. 59 and from T.H. 32 would have a quality road to the site. The Board took the matter under advisement.

Moved by Hoffman seconded by Koop that the Auditor be authorized to conduct a sale of Forfeited Lands and to lease lands for Agricultural purposes on July 10 according to publication. Motion carried.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Koop that an amendment be approved in Contract with Manulife which provides term life insurance for the County; that will provide for a 35 per cent reduction in benefits at age 65 and termination of benefits at age 70 with Elected Officials being excluded from this provision. Motion carried.

At 2:00 P.M. the Board convened to consider a petition by the Minn. Dept. of Transportation for approval for extension of culverts thru the Highway in County Ditch 16, County Ditch 21 and County Ditch 62 to provide for adequate right of way for widening the Highway. The Dept. of Transportation was represented by Robert Helland.

Two interested Landowners Kenneth Schroeder and Kenneth Peterson appeared and inquired about the extent of the work and cost. The DOT representative explained the extent of the proposal as being merely extensions on the culverts and that all of the expense involved is to be paid by the Dept. of Transportation. No other questions.

Moved by Koop seconded by Hoffman that an Order of the County Board be drawn approving the minor alterations for each of the County Ditches 16, 21 and 62 and that a complete copy of said order be filed with the Department of Transportation and a complete copy be filed in the ditch records on file in the Office of the County Auditor and that bills be forwarded to the Dept. of Transportation for publication and other costs incurred by the County in this undertaking. Motion declared unanimously carried.

Vernon Holmstrom appeared with design of a Plat for property of Roy Shetler in Govt. Lot 2, Sec. 20 Rocksbury Township — a 40 acre tract. Moved by Koop seconded by Hoffman that preliminary Plat be approved. Motion carried.

A preliminary Plat was presented by Stewart & Walker in behalf of Gunderson entitled Gunderson Second Addition incorporating a 3 acre tract on North State Street. Moved by Stenberg seconded by Hoffman that Preliminary Plat be approved. Motion declared unanimously carried.

Sam Brattell, John Hoffman and Verner Arveson presented Viewers reports on their assignment of a re-view of the benefits in area served by Judicial Ditch 25-3 in Bray, Numedal, Sanders and Norden Townships. Maps were presented indicating benefits found. The Auditor's staff is to develop a detailed listing reflecting the benefits indicated by the Viewers. After this listing has been approved by the Viewers a Hearing will be scheduled to allow each Landowner an opportunity to ascertain his benefits and compare with others.

Moved by Koop seconded by Hoffman that Hanford Bjerke be authorized to remove obstructions on North side of Co. Road 18 to allow water to drain to culvert to the West, with permission of landowner Glen Jorde who owns the land to the West and adjacent to the river. The County does not assume responsibility for any damage which may occur. Motion declared unanimously carried.

To the Honorable
County Board:

I herewith present you with a full and accurate statement of the receipts and expenditures for the past year, 1980, together with a full statement of the finances of the County for the calendar year 1980, including all debt and liabilities and assets to discharge same.

C.W. Rodekuhr,
County Auditor

Moved by Hoffman seconded by Tasa that approval be given the County Auditor to dispose of the following listed records and papers by presenting them to the State Historical Society for disposition.

1. Claims and Vouchers for year 1970 and prior years.
2. Real and Personal Property Assessment books and Real and Personal Property tax duplicate books for the year 1970 and prior years.
3. Receipts for Mortgage Registration taxes for the year 1970 and prior years.
4. Miscellaneous Receipts, papers and correspondence bearing dates 1970 and prior years.

Moved by Tasa seconded by Hoffman that the Road Committee and Bridges and Culvert Committee inspect roads, bridges and culverts at 9:00 A.M., July 31, 1981. Motion carried.

Moved by Stenberg that the County appropriate and pay the the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce $800.00 to assist in financing brochures designed to promote Pennington County, Thief River Falls and the area. Upon call for a second to the motion, none was heard and the motion died for lack of a second.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Tasa that the sum of $500.00 be appropriated and paid the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce to assist in financing brochures for the economic development of the City and County, as well as Northern Minnesota. Motion declared carried with Commissioner Koop voting against the motion.

The Board then studied the Census figures as received from the Federal Census in regard to the possible need for redistricting the County Commissioners Districts according to State Law. The Board had redistricted after a special Census was taken in 1975 and the changes have not been that great. The County Attorney conferred with the Board relative to conformity with the State Law and upon motion by Stenberg seconded by Tasa instructed the County Auditor to proceed to advertise for a Hearing on County Redistricting to be held at 2:00 P.M., July 28, 1981 with Hearing to be held in the Commissioners' Room in the Courthouse. Motion declared carried.

County Auditor, C.W. Rodekuhr, presented a letter of resignation as County Auditor to be effective August 31, 1981. The Auditor indicated that he will have completed 29 years as Auditor at the end of August, having been appointed in August 1952. The Board indicated that the resignation was received with regret and that the matter will have to be acted on at a future meeting.

Moved by Hoffman seconded by Tasa that meeting adjourn to convene at 10:00 A.M., July 13, 1981. Motion carried.

ATTEST: C.W. RODEKUHR,
COUNTY AUDITOR EX-OFFICIO, CLERK OF THE BOARD.

Classmates Honored At '46 Reunion

Seventh class reunion of the Lincoln high school class of 1946 was conducted recently. Roger Tunberg, reunion and program chairman (former basketball captain) welcomed the 56 classmates attending.

Program included V. Rose Asp, wife of Bob Asp, Hawley, MN, who gave a report on the sailing of the "Hjemkomist," the Viking ship the Asps spent many hours building. "The trial launching on Lake Superior was a great success and if all plans go on time the ship will sail for Oslo, Norway in the spring of 1982," Mrs. Asp said. She further explained Bob's death in December 1980, before he could fulfill his dream of sailing the ship but added that family and friends will carry out his plans.

Guests at the reunion included Arlyne Eide Newcomb, Portland, OR, former classmate who moved before graduation; Donovon Nelson, assistant coach, who recalled stories about each member on his team during his first coaching position; and Verna Stoughton Hughes and husband Jim C. Hughes, Tucson, AR. Hughes, president of Hughes publishing company, told of his latest publication, "How to Escape from the Jaws of Inflation" by Jerry E. Airth and James C. Hughes. Other guests included Bill Bye, son of former superintendent of schools, Morris Bye, and Robert Wright, Minneapolis, and his wife.

Classmates who received prizes for coming the greatest distances included Robert Melby, Florida; Ardis and Ralph Foster, Arizona; and Audrey Hylden Corcoran, California.

Most admired classmate award was presented to Arlyne Forsberg who raised five children and after the death of her husband, Manny, went to college and received her degree in public administration.

Plans were begun for the 1986 reunion — Las Vegas? Thief River Falls?

BLACK RIVER Lutheran church of St. Hilaire recently noted its 100th anniversary with a variety of centennial events occurring during a two-day celebration, July 4 and 5. Photo above illustrates the church after the tower and window tops were added and before the basement was put in, July 4, 1909.

Note 100th Anniversary By Black River Church

GOING FISHING is one of the favorite sporting hobbies of Diane Narlock of Warren. She is the reigning Miss Warren and will be competing for the Miss Thief River Falls title August 1 at the pageant to be conducted in the Lincoln senior high school auditorium.

"Lift High the Cross" was the anniversary hymn summarizing events during the 100th anniversary celebration of the Black River Lutheran church of St. Hilaire during the Fourth of July weekend.

This is believed to be the first church to note its 100th anniversary in Pennington county. Black River church was also the first to develop a lending library in Pennington county, according to information supplied on the church's history.

Centennial schedule of events brought over 600 participants during the two-day celebration. Included at the anniversary were three sixth generations whose families have been continuous members of the church.

Celebration began with registration July 4, followed by fellowship games and recreation. Dinner was served that evening by the young men of the parish who roasted and served two pigs to the approximately 645 people present.

Later that evening, a time parade was conducted which illustrated 100 years of history. Included was the modeling of wedding gowns popular at various time periods.

Following the parade was a program honoring members of former confirmation classes dating back as early as 1905. Rev. Don Knudson, assistant pastor of the parish, officiated over the Saturday evening activities included within the program, which included hymns, introduction of former pastors and interns, readings of letters and greetings received and announcements.

Beginning activities July 5 was Harold R. Lohr, Red River Valley Synod Bishop who presented a centennial service of Holy Communion, which was followed by a noon meal attended by over 300 people. Meal was followed that afternoon by a special anniversary program led by Rev. Keith Prekker, head pastor of the church. Hymns selected for the program included "Dear Lord and Father of Mankind," "Children of the Heavenly Father," (sung first in Swedish by Mrs. Edgar Naplin and Mrs. Melvin Melin); "Saviour Like a Shepherd Lead Us," and the anniversary hymn, "Lift High the Cross."

During the program, special music was provided by the Black River Singers, and Sunday school children.

Pastors attending the special program were Ron

Although a winner of a number of awards in speech activities and a communications major in college, Diane Narlock of Warren will present a vocal solo as her talent number in the Miss Thief River Falls pageant. She will sing "The Simple Joys of Maidenhood" from the musical "Camelot".

Diane is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Narlock of Warren and a 1979 graduate of Warren high school. The 19-year-old junior at Moorhead state university is five feet two inches tall, weighs 103 pounds, has auburn hair and brown eyes. She is the eldest of seven children.

Pennington county producers should call at the county office on Dale street.

TRF Landlords Speak Out At Special Meet

Approximately 22 landlords attended a special meeting called last evening with Rep. LeRoy Stumpf, District 1B, at the Jerry Wetch home in Thief River Falls.

During the meeting, a landlords association group was formed comprised of presidents, Kenny Berg and Steve Seglem and Penny Seglem, who will serve as secretary for the group.

Group has arranged tentative meetings for July 22 and August 6 in the Law Enforcement Center meeting room of Thief River Falls for further discussion of problems presently faced by landlords in this city. Interested landlords have been invited to the meetings, and further information may be obtained by contacting Kenny Berg at 681-1579 or Steve or Penny Seglem at 681-7359.

Items discussed with Stumpf during the three-hour meeting involved concern over the Seth Stitchell and Gunderson subsidized housing units proposed for Thief River Falls. "We are trying to keep units like these out of the city," Penny Seglem said, "since there are too many vacancies in present rental facilities now." Main question to be answered, she said, is "Does the city of Thief River Falls need more subsidized housing units?" Present facilities should be utilized before additional units are even considered, was the feeling of the group, she said.

Other concerns expressed to Stumpf included the homestead tax increase of 20 per cent and the rental property increase of 30 per cent effective January 1. "Problems will result to keep up with these increases if we can't increase our rent," Seglem indicated.

Majority of landlords indicated that presently, there is a 20 per cent vacancy rate on existing rental units within the city.

Other problems expressed by the group included fuel assistance guidelines, Federal Housing Administration rules, and keeping low income elderly housing units for the low income elderly only.

"Renaissance Festival" . . .

Art In The Park Friday Has Variety Of Activities

Anyone with an interest in almost any phase of art will find that interest sharpened by attendance at the annual "Art in the Park" program Friday in L. B. Hartz park near the national guard armory in Thief River Falls.

More than 30 artists in a variety of media will be participating and programs in dance and music will be presented on the hour beginning at 10 a.m. and continuing to 4 p.m. (with the exception of 12 noon). Co-chairmen for this year's event, which has been given the title of "Renaissance Festival", are Mrs. Silas (Marge) Hanson and Steve Anderson.

One of the highlights of the day will be an outdoor dinner theatre production by the Commedia Theater company. A barbecued pork dinner including roast pork, baked beans, cole slaw, rolls, pickles, coffee and lemonade will be served at 6 p.m. Tickets for the dinner and play to follow are available for $4 each at Larson Music company in Thief River Falls or from members of the sponsoring Thief River Falls community arts council. Tickets must be purchased before Friday.

For those people who would like to bring their families to the theatre production but not participate in the meal at the park, tickets at $1 per person will be available. "We would like to encourage as many people as possible to take part in the dinner and theatre," Mrs. Hanson said, "but we also want as many people as possible to share in the hilarious theatre event."

Although the formal theatre production is scheduled for 7 p.m., the actors will mingle with the crowd during the latter part of the dinner to add to the festival atmosphere. In its seventh season, Commedia theatre will present "Love in Naples", a Renaissance style comedy that will provide enjoyable entertainment for the entire family of all ages.

During the day the company will provide four workshops for actors, would-be actors and directors. Each workshop is done only once and there is no registration or fee necessary. Featured will be basic parts of theatre such as character development, chroeographing fight scenes and even juggling.

Music programs throughout the day will be from half an hour to 45 minutes in length, according to Steve Anderson.

Helen Anderson will have two groups of aerobic dance participants performing at 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. and will provide commentary on the activity.

At 11 a.m. the Lincoln high school jazz ensemble under the direction of Doug Engstrom will perform and at 1 p.m. the Thief River Falls tuba ensemble consisting of Bill Hustad and Steve Anderson will be featured.

Franklin middle school stage band "Morning Darkness" under the direction of Mike Lehrer will play at 2 p.m. and Tony Ricci's recorder quarter will be performing at 3 p.m.

In addition to artists from Grand Forks, Bemidji, Mentor, Lake Bronson, Warroad, Kennedy, Solway and Thief River Falls displaying their work, there will be a number of demonstrations throughout the day. Included are Linda Worth, weaving; Web Maves, picture framing; Gunder Legvold and Robert Schroeder, wood carving; Lois Helgen of Bemidji and Arla Anderson of Crookston, rosemaling; Don Fugleberg, pottery; Rosalie Paulson of Red Lake Falls, caligraphy; and several others.

Othrer special interest displays will be by Maureen O'Brien, Solway, who paints birds and animals in pairs featuring parent and offspring; Pam Kalor, Grand Forks, who creates ceramic beads and strings them for belts and necklaces; Carl Medin, Brainerd, who creates original stained glass items; the Torborg family of Maple Plain who carve trolls; Jim Youngman, Oslo, who builds ships in bottles; and Emily Lunde, Grand Forks, a folk artist.

Council Told About Dutch Elm Disease In T.R. Falls

Report on the discovery of Dutch Elm disease in Thief River Falls discussed by Mike Mongoven, park and recreation director, and the public meeting next Monday on a hazardous waste storage facility, were two major items discussed by city council members during their regular meeting last evening.

"I believe Thief River Falls has run across its first case of the disease," Mongoven indicated last evening. The infested tree was discovered 10 days ago at 322 Kneale av. S. in this city and has since been taken down. "The tree appeared to have all the symptoms of the disease," he added. "We ran tests on it and results were positive. As an added precaution we sent the specimen to the state for verification."

Mongoven further explained action the city could take following the discovery of the disease.

Stemming from this report, Mayor Bob Carlson reported on another problem area in the city on the Red Lake river across from LaFave park. Through efforts by the city, park and recreation department and the Pennington county sheriff's department, buoys will be placed on the Red Lake river designating areas to be used for such things as inner tubes. "No Swimming" signs have also been placed in that area. Action results from increased use of the river for swimming and other recreational water activities and from an accident which occurred Sunday involving a boat and inner tube.

In other action last evening, Rev. J. M. Hovland, president of the Falls Delivered Meals program, provided city council members with a summary of the program in Thief River Falls, with figures from the period March 1, 1979 to July 1, 1981. Actual meal deliveries began in the city Oct. 15, 1980. Hovland's summary included monies received for the program from the city of Thief River Falls, Hartz Foundation, private donations and funds from United Way.

Total meals served since the program began, he indicated, have been 2,628 with an average of 20 to 21 meals delivered per day.

Hovland expressed his appreciation to those groups which have helped and who will continue to help with the program. "The project is a community project," he indicated. "We are very pleased with the program and with those who are willing to take their time to deliver the meals."

Program involves delivering nutritional meals to those persons unable to prepare or obtain their own meals. Persons may be any age to receive the service, but those eligible include convalescents who might be discharged from the hospital earlier if meals were available in their homes; a person who is physically or emotionally handicapped; a person who feels that he or she cannot purchase and prepare adequate meals for himself or herself; a disabled or elderly person living with relatives who may need the service during a family vacation, or

Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Mathewson of Dayton, Ohio, arrived July 3 to attend the reunion of the 1941 graduating class of Lincoln high school and to visit with Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Nelson. Mrs. Nelson and Mr. Mathewson are sister and brother. While here they helped the Nelsons celebrate their 50th anniversary. They also visited with the Clyde Swenson family at Newfolden and the George Panek family near Goodridge, returning to their home at Dayton, Ohio, Monday.

100TH ANNIVERSARY celebration was noted the Fourth of July weekend by the Black River Lutheran church of St. Hilaire. Anniversary hymn, "Lift High the Cross," summarized events revived from the church's past during the two-day event attended by over 600 persons.

Anniversary At Black River Church Noted

Allen and Doug Demlow, former interns, Douglas Augistine (1955-58) and Fred Arneson (1963-65), former pastors; Doug Larson, son of former Rev. Herman Larson, who served as pastor of the church from 1931-47; lay pastor, Otto Baker, who served from 1961-62; and Harvey Carlson of Grand Forks, grandson of Rev. A. Melin who served at the parish from 1901 to 1902.

Caterer for the event was Mrs. Gail (Lillian) Rux, while the Community Christian Youth (CCY) group served homemade root beer.

A history of the church has been obtained from a compilation of material available at the anniversary celebration. Short history follows:

Until 1864, what is now the Black River community was part of the Indian Reservation, but the treaty of 1864 opened the Red River Valley to homesteading. This placed the west border of the reservation where Highway 59 is now — an area settled first with a railroad running to Crookston.

Among the first settlers in the Black River area was Andrew Sture who lived north of where the town of Wylie was later built. It was in the early 1880s that the railroad went from Crookston to St. Hilaire and town of Wylie developed on the prairie.

During the early years there were mission pastors who would travel through the area conducting meetings in the homes and staying with settlers. One of these pastors, J. G. Lagerstrom of Moore's Prairie, called a meeting at the Andrew Sture home September 24, 1881 to formally organize "Swedish Evangelical Black River Lutheran church of Polk, County, Minnesota."

In 1887 Rev. Swante Udden of Warren organized the Tarna congregation at St. Hilaire, which was followed by the building of the Tarna church in 1899.

In 1887 a small congregation named Park Ridge was started by Uddin north of Thief River Falls. This congregation later moved into town and was known as the First Lutheran church. Uddin also organized the Clara congregations some miles east of St. Hilaire in 1885. This church, built in 1903, became a parish with St. Hilaire and Black River.

In 1887 the Black River church was built. In 1907 the steeple and bell were added. First resident pastor was Rev. James Moody. By the time Moody left in 1896, the church was firmly established. In 1887 five acres of land were bought adjoining the church to the east to build a parsonage.

In 1926 the inside of the church was redecorated and a new pulpit and altar table were made. To get the arch effect in the church, green wood was cut and sawed to form the base for the ceiling. The Swedish language was used until 1918 when both Swedish and English was used by the confirmation classes at that time.

Church faced both good and bad times durings its years of operation but it was in the late 1950s that the Black River church faced a major crisis. The Synod felt that due to declining rural population and a shortage of pastors it would be increasingly difficult to provide adequate service to small churches and recommended that a study be made of the possibilities of realignment with other churches in the area. A number of meetings were conducted after which it was unanimously decided to remain as a parish and proceed to call a pastor for the church. After issuing a number of calls and receiving negative responses, a call was issued to Rev. J. A. Gustafson of Kennedy who accepted. He served until 1961, when Otto Baker, a layman, took over some of the pastoral duties of the parish, with Pastor Marvin Carlson of Thief River Falls as vice pastor. The arrangement worked until the Synod board terminated the services of Baker in 1962. Pastor Fred Arneson accepted a call and arrived in 1963 — the same year several new members were received into the church and an electronic organ was purchased.

More trouble followed. In 1964 the Tarna congregation of St. Hilaire dissolved leaving the Black river and Clara as a two-point parish. In 1967 the Clara church also dissolved and many of the members transferred to Redeemer Lutheran church in Thief River Falls. So, in a position to support a pastor alone the congregation decided to request alignment with Redeemer Lutheran church of Thief River Falls as a two church parish.

In 1972 Rev. Keith Prekker accepted the position of pastor at the church. As the parish grew and became too large for one pastor, the congregation entered an intern program of Northwestern Seminary for five years. In 1978 it was decided to call a second pastor — was accepted by Rev. Donald Knudson.

Crop Prospects Continue Good

Hot, dry weather continued throughout Minnesota last week, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. All crops made rapid growth and development under sunny skies.

Growth of row crops remains behind normal but the sunny, dry weather of past two weeks has greatly enhanced development and crops are looking very good now. Field corn is an average of 45 inches tall which compares to 43 inches last year and the five-year average of 49 inches. Tasseling is becoming more widespread with six per cent of the crop that far along. This compares to the five-year average of 25 per cent and last year's 12 per cent.

The average height of soybeans is 14 inches compared to 16 inches for both last year and the five-year average. An estimated 17 per cent of the crop is blooming compared to 37 per cent for a five-year average and 39 per cent last year. Soybeans are rated five per cent poor, 43 per cent fair, 49 per cent good and three per cent excellent.

Sunflower growth continues slow and is at an average height of 28 inches. This is seven inches less than last year at this same time. Sugarbeets are reported to be about average after considerable replanting this spring. They are rated eight per cent poor, 31 per cent fair, 53 per cent good and eight per cent excellent.

Small grain prospects remain very high as the crops continue to make exceptional development. Spring wheat is 98 per cent heading compared to 96 per cent last year and 87 per cent for a five-year average. An estimated 30 per cent of the crop is turning ripe which compares to the five-year average of 26 per cent and last year's 28 per cent. Only a few very early fields have been swathed.

Oats are now nine per cent in or beyond the heading stage with 41 per cent of the crop turning ripe. An estimated two per cent of the crop has been cut compared to none last year and the five-year average of seven per cent. Barley is 99 per cent heading with 36 per cent turning ripe. A few fields have been swathed. Last year, 97 per cent was heading, 43 per cent was turning ripe and one per cent was swathed.

Harvest of winter wheat and rye will be picking up soon. Winter wheat is 76 per cent turning ripe and compares to 85 per cent last year and 77 per cent for a five-year average. An estimated three per cent of the crop has been swathed which compares to the five-year average of 11 per cent and last year's four per cent. Rye is turning ripe on 86 per cent of the acreage and five per cent has been cut.

Flax also made good progress last week after several slow weeks. Budding has started on 75 per cent of the crop which compares to 80 per cent last year and 89 per cent for a five-year average. Blooming stands at 34 per cent compared to the five-year average of 59 per cent and last year's 51 per cent. An estimated nine per cent of the crop is setting bolls compared to 24 per cent for a five-year average and 17 per cent for last year.

Cutting of the first crop of alfalfa hay is now nearly complete. A estimated 95 per cent of the crop has been cut once which compared to 99 per cent last year and 96 per cent for a five-year average.

Council Told Of Dutch Elm Disease Here

perhaps at noon when adults are employed away from home and a person at home needs a meal. Persons qualifying are only those who are homebound.

Following discussion, council adopted the resolution to pay $2,000 to the program — monies which have been included in the city's budget.

In other action, bids were accepted from Hjelle Roofing company of Newfolden for the re-roofing contract for the Thief River Falls regional library, city auditorium and the old arena. Bids were accepted for the three projects in the amount of $30,686.

Bob Dondelinger, representing Jobs Inc., appeared before council members last evening to discuss the matter concerning Grain Terminal association's (GTA) request for certain data on the extension of sewer and electric services to the area south of Alfalfa Products Inc. of Thief River Falls. GTA is presently strongly considering locating a facility at this location, if specific details can be worked out. Cost for the facility, if constructed, would be approximately $1.75 million with the plant to employ approximately 30 persons. GTA is a feed division out of Sioux Falls, SD.

It was resolved that a meeting with GTA members and the city would be set up in the near future, at GTA's convenience, for further discussion of details.

Short discussion regarding the hazardous waste facility public meeting resulted in the appointment of Aldermen Dr. Don Goodrich and Bill Penning to attend the meeting, to represent the city which has expressed its opposition to such a facility in Thief River Falls.

Meeting set for 7:30 p.m. Monday evening follows the Minnesota waste management board's designation of 60 preliminary areas to be considered for an inventory of preferred areas for hazardous waste processing facilities. A portion of Thief River Falls and the township of North have been designated as areas potentially safe and acceptable for a transfer-storage facility. Area includes a section of land approximately one-half mile north of the city of Thief Riveer Falls.

County Awards Contract For Road Monday

financing of the plant construction. After discussion, the board determined that issuance of industrial bonds should be limited to new commercial or industrial construction, projected employment of 20 or more people and minimum construction investment of $750,000.

Preliminary sketches and information was received from Foss & Associates architectural firm on equal access modifications to the courthouse building. The sketches were reviewed and discussed with a view toward modification.

Discussion was also held on what should be done with the former Oakland Park nursing home building which is rapidly deteriorating. The board is interested in receiving public comment in regard to the building, particularly any viable alternatives to demolition and removal of the structure. Any plans or suggestions to date have involved considerable sums of money which the county does not have available. The building is approximately 70 years old and any remodeling or repair to make it useable would be expensive.

Discussion was again held on applicants for the position of county engineer and it was noted that one of the applicants under consideration had withdrawn.

Another agenda item but not considered was the resignation of Rodekuhr as county auditor after 29 years. The auditor had submitted his resignation to the board at the previous meeting to be effective in August.

On Thursday the board will continue its board of equalization meeting at 10 a.m. and at 11:30 a.m. will hold a special meeting to open bids on sale of bonds. A redistricting hearing will be held at 2 p.m. on July 28.

CETA Funding In Region Cut By 50 Per Cent

Recent information from the department of labor (DOL) indicates that the comprehensive employment and training act (CETA) will receive funding cuts which amount to more than a 50 per cent reduction from this year. These cuts could have serious impact in the Region as CETA brought about $2.5 million of assistance to unemployed persons in the area this year and the present economic situation has created a large demand for employment related services.

The funding cuts will mean that less services will be available to persons who need training or retraining to move into jobs that are available, according to the Northwest regional development commission office.

During the June meeting of the regional employment and training advisory committee (RETAC), members and area CETA program operators attempted to design an approach which would provide help to as many persons as possible. Although a final program design has not been agreed upon, the following represents the direction which services will probably take:

—Supportive services such as medical assistance, transportation and rent assistance will be provided in only a limited number of circumstances.

—Programs with high per client costs will be used only when it is clearly documented that this is the only way to help the client.

—Intensive job seeking, job retention and skill assessment programs will be developed to insure that when services are provided those services are the most appropriate and long term effective services possible.

—Criteria will be developed to serve those most in need of services.

—Specific program objectives will be monitored closely during the year to determine the successfulness of the above approaches and adjustments will be made accordingly.

—At the end of the year the past year's activities will be reviewed to determine the best future course.

The RETAC and local CETA program operators hope to implement these steps in the spirit of efficient and cost effective government programs which recognize the need to reduce spending and at the same time continue to help those people who have a real need.

UKRANIAN EGG decorating entertained approximately 20 youngsters at the Northwest Regional library in Thief River Falls Wednesday during a demonstration conducted by Pat Dunning. "Symbolism of eggs used today reminds us of Christ's closeness and interest in our everyday life," Dunning commented during her discussion, on the history and symbolism of the egg.

EXAMINING THEIR Ukranian eggs created at Northwest Regional library in Thief River Falls Wednesday are these two youngsters who joined others in the activity as part of the library's summer program, conducted during the summer. Ukranian egg decoration is a traditional craft which has roots that go back thousands of years — even before the age of Christianity, according to Pat Dunning who conducted the demonstration.

Swimmer's Itch Now Evident In State Waters

As we enter the hot weeks of summer, the Minnesota department of health is again receiving reports of swimmer's itch from around the state. While officials say this year's incidence of the disease is not unusually high, they are cautioning swimmers to be alert for its symptoms.

Swimmer's itch is a common problem in many of the state's lakes during the late spring and summer months. The disease is caused by the larvae of a parasite which normally lives in the bodies of certain birds and rodents, including wild ducks, mice and muskrats.

These animals can leave large numbers of the parasite's eggs in a lake during the fall. The newly hatched larvae then invade the bodies of snails, where they spend the winter. In the spring, they emerge to seek a suitable host for their adult phase. Occasionally, the larvae will burrow under the skin of a human swimmer, causing a rash reminiscent of poison ivy or insect bites.

The swimmer's itch victim may feel a mild prickling sensation after leaving the water, and welts that look like mosquito bites may appear anywhere from 24 hours to two week later. The disease does not spread like poison ivy, does not cause blisters and is not contagious. Calamine lotion can be used to relieve the itching.

The larvae die within 24 hours after entering the human body, according to health officials, and the disease is usually no more serious than a rash of insect bites. However, children may be especially susceptible to swimmer's itch, and some people may be allergic to the parasite. People with the allergy can experience itching, pain, fever and swelling for as long as two weeks, and they tend to become more sensitive to the parasite with repeated exposure.

Some suggestions for preventing swimmer's itch are: Stay out of shallow water as much as possible, avoid swimming in the late afternoon or early evening, avoid staying in the water for long periods of time, and towel off thoroughly after leaving the water. Don't swim in a lake where there is a known swimmer's itch problem, and ask local officials to post warning signs.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

As former Commissioner of Economic Development, I am deeply concerned about the Reagan administration's proposal to replace the Section 406 Airline Subsidy Program which supports airline service to Thief River Falls. Without this program, regular commercial air service will stop. Then communities like Thief River Falls will no longer have regular air freight and passenger service. Businesses that currently depend on air service will have to look elsewhere to meet their transportation needs. Business costs will rise. Minnesota communities could lose jobs and tax dollars.

The administration argues that cutting the 406 program is a good way to save the taxpayers money. This is not true. Minnesota Department of Transportation analysis shows that the federal government will not save any money by eliminating the 406 program.

When Congress passed the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978, it promised the citizens of Thief River Falls and other communities that the 406 program would not be phased out entirely until January 1, 1986. With its abrupt termination of this program, the administration is breaking that promise.

Thief River Falls and all of Minnesota's communities need a commitment from the federal government to help finance regular commercial airline service. But, it seems that we will get no help from this administration. That puts the fate of a vital link in Minnesota's transportation system in the hands of our Congressmen and Senators. This service is essential to Thief River Falls. Federal support for it must be preserved.

Sincerely,
Mark B. Dayton

To The Editor:

In June when we were in Michigan gasoline was selling 10 to 12 cents per gallon less than Thief River Falls. When we arrived home we found both Warren and Grand Forks, N.D., were selling gas below Thief River Falls.

Now July 8 we buy regular gas in Red Lake Falls for $1.29.9 per gallon and receive full service. In Thief River Falls regular is $1.34.9 self-serve; some places $1.35.9 full service. Seems when prices were on the way up Thief River Falls was the first to learn about it.

Thank you,
Frank Armstrong
Rt. 1, T. R. Falls, Minn.

Dahlstrom To Student Teach At Stillwater

Kathryn Dahlstrom of Thief River Falls will be student teaching during fall quarter 1981 at Stillwater, Stonebridge elementary, according to Dr. Gordon Oberg, director of Bemidji state university student teaching.

Student teaching is required of all students seeking the bachelor of science degree in education and Minnesota certification for teaching. Students placed in area schools by BSU are supervised by a teacher from that school district, as well as a supervisor from the division of education at Bemidji state.

While serving in the school systems, student teachers observe daily classroom techniques and routines, serve on occasion as the teacher of the class, and assist their supervising teacher in preparation and presentation of class materials.

The student teaching experience is usually the culmination of a student's preparation for the teaching profession and is viewed by many students as the most valuable requirement of their teacher education.

A study by the Rand Corporation, a California research group, says the U.S. can continue producing domestic supplies of oil for 20 to 40 years, and natural gas for 17 to 26 years, at the 1979 rate of production.

Father Of Painting Is Revived By Art Scholars

by David M. Maxfield
Smithsonian News Service

The name Benjamin West, a contemporary of George Washington, may ring few bells. Yet West, whose artwork was warmly admired by the first president, is considered by today's art critics and historians "the father of American painting."

What happened to West's artistic reputation — how it rose to the top in both Europe and America during his lifetime, how it sank under ridicule during the 19th century, how it was revived by art scholars in recent years — is the subject of this story, a story also about the ebb and flow of the nation's cultural tastes.

West was the son of a poor Pennsylvania innkeeper, and his life story and professional influence in his day reads like the classic American dream. "His career was the first great success story in the history of American art," art critic Hilton Kramer has written. "Few subsequent successes — even by today's standard of international celebrity — have matched the immensity of his."

Leaving home in 1760, West, a handsome, affable 22-year-old former prodigy, arrived in London in 1763 after studying the old masters in Rome. With his talent and studio training, he soon became England's most popular painter, praised for his canvases of scenes from the Bible, mythology and history — works that stood in brilliant contrast to the tried and true portraits and landscapes favored by most English artists.

With his unaffected piety and sense of integrity, West also quickly charmed George III, achieving the remarkable feat of remaining a confidant of the British monarch while the War of Independence raged across the Atlantic.

West became the king's favored painter, even helping him found Britain's famed Royal Academy of Arts. And, in 1764, welcoming Matthew Pratt as his first pupil, West established in London what is regarded as the first effective American school of art; it drew virtually every other American artist of consequence who painted before 1820.

"All this happened by the time West was 30, with the best 50 years of his life and work ahead of him," West biographer Robert C. Alberts writes.

It is West's influence on three generations of artists that especially interests scholars today. From his London studios, he taught and influenced the work of such highly-respected men as Charles Willson Peale, Gilbert Stuart, John Trumbull, Thomas Sully, Washington Allston — even Robert Fulton, the steamboat inventor, and Samuel F. B. Morse, the inventor of the telegraph. (One of West's "failures," Morse admitted after his famous achievement, "I was not a painter.")

West, in the words of one account, lent his students money, fed them, improved their brushwork and their manners, found them rooms and patrons and instructed them — all without fee. "West was always held in high esteem, most of all by his fellow-artists," explains West scholar Dr. Dorinda Evans, who organized a recent exhibition on the work of the painter and his circle for the Smithsonian's National Portrait Gallery.

Gilbert Stuart, whose portraits of George and Martha Washington now hang in that gallery, thought West "the wisest man" he ever knew. Another artist, William Dunlap, expressed this admiration: "He had no secrets, no mysteries, he told all he knew." When even the slightest criticism was pointed at the master, his students, Evans notes, would rush to the defense, describing West's "fine personal character, as if this were indistinguishable from an assessment of his artistic ability."

"His great contribution as a teacher was certainly his ability to inspire enthusiasm in others," Evans adds. He encouraged students to pursue their own inclinations, never forcing them to imitate his art. "Work night and day," he advised. "Draw from the antique. Paint from nature. Study the masters but copy nature."

"Because these artists turned to Benjamin West as their leader for more than a half century and because they were themselves leaders in succeeding generations," Evans concludes, "West can justly be called the 'father of American painting.'"

West's own artistic mark was cut by his 1770 painting "The Death of General Wolfe." Its powerful originality caused George Washington to comment in a letter to Thomas Jefferson that he understood that "the taste, which has been introduced in painting by West (in London) is received with applause, and prevails extensively."

In this heroic painting, West depicted the death of General Wolfe on the plains of Quebec in 1759 during the battle that ended forever France's hopes for the domination of Canada. West departed from tradition by portraying the military figures with the actual uniforms of the day rather than in classical Roman garb. He justified the touch of realism by claiming that "in a topic that history will proudly record, the same truth that guides the pen of the historian should govern the pencil of the artist."

The question, then, is, Why did West and his work, once so popular and respected, fade from public view for decades? Why were his paintings either ignored or scorned in art circles for about 100 years, from 1830 to 1940 or so?

Almost overnight at the beginning of the Victorian era, changes in taste, fashion and attitudes about art swept away the reputations of artists grounded in the 18th century — West's century. "Victorians attacked, mocked and then ignored the art of their fathers," Alberts writes. "Family attics, dealers' storerooms were crammed with unfashionable, unsaleable portraits."

As for West himself, "critics attacked him with an eagerness that is astonishing in its vindictiveness," Alberts adds. He was despised for his early success, for holding a high opinion of his own work, for having no passions, and finally, for having accepted commissions from George III.

Many 18th-century artists, however, began to come back into favor about 1910 (and continue to be well regarded today) when tastes changed once again and the Victorian styles were scorned. But West, Alberts notes, "did not share in the revival."

"Now he was condemned for faults and sins conceived by 20th-century taste," Alberts says. He was damned for painting subject pictures that told a story and pointed a moral; for always painting pictures of enormous size; for rigidly following tired rules and formulas; for having ruined Trumbull and Allston by making them paint in his own image.

How did he ever survive? Alberts argues that West's severest critics made charges "that were clearly overstated or not in accord with known facts." Not all his pictures, for example, were enormous. And West, his biographer contends, was an artist "who constantly experimented with new styles, subjects and techniques, or who discarded the sure formulas on which he had built a reputation, in order to break new ground."

In a word, Alberts believes, "West was washed back and forth by changing tides of taste."

"Now restored to grace, he can be accepted simply for what he is and was and did," Alberts concludes. He was an "able craftsman and a superior draughtsman," he painted some "good, honest and important pictures," he "explored new paths and introduced new subjects in art" and "as a teacher and champion of the young, he had no peer."

PETER IVERSON (right) son of Mr. and Mrs. Elling Iverson, Thief River Falls, was recently advanced by the United States Navy to the position of Construction Electrician 3rd Class. Iverson met a number of prerequisite qualifications including time in rate, time in service and completion of required professional courses to earn the advancement. He demonstrated the ability to perform his present duties and showed potential to manage further responsibilities. Iverson was also commended by his commanding officer J. E. Holland in Guam for his work as part of the engine room staff that disassembled a defective engine block and rebuilt a spare block for a GM 6-71 diesel generator. The generator had experienced a failure during a period when maximum effort was being applied in preparation for an upcoming TYCOM ADMAT inspection. (Photo by Lampman.)

NW Minnesota Raises Most Malting Barley

Minnesota farmers planted an estimated 1,050,000 acres of barley in 1981, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. This year's acreage is 17 per cent above that planted in 1980 and 35 per cent above the 1979 crop.

Acreage planted in the major growing districts are estimated at 744,000 for the northwest and 252,000 for the west central. The remaining 54,000 acres are scattered throughout the rest of the state. The northwest acreage is 71 per cent of the state total.

Following above-normal temperatures from January through March, barley planting began at the end of March in some areas of the state. During the middle of April, seeding became more widespread and by the middle of May was virtually completed. Planting was about two weeks ahead of normal throughout the planting season.

Soil moisture was mostly short during the planting season because of a dry winter and only very light rainfall during the early spring. Moderate rains were received around the first of May that greatly benefitted seed germination and good stands were established. Moisture became very short by mid-May but heavy rains toward the end of the month provided for excellent crop development. Barley is now looking exceptionally good and prospects are high.

An estimated 96 per cent of Minnesota's barley acreage was seeded to varieties recommended for malting by the malting barley improvement association. Morex remains the leading variety while Glenn has reached second place. Numbers 3 and 4, Larker and Manker, continue to decline in popularity.

Morex was seeded on 65 per cent (688,900 acres) of Minnesota's barley acreage in 1981. Last year, 66 per cent of the acreage was in Morex and in 1979 only 35 per cent. A breakdown by districts shows 61 per cent of the acreage in the northwest was seeded to Morex and 78 per cent in the west central.

Acreage planted to Glenn increased from 40,600 in 1980 to 204,200 acres in 1981, or from four per cent of the acreage to 20 per cent. Farmers in the northwest led the state in the switch to Glenn. An estimated 23 per cent of the acreage was planted with Glenn while west central farmers planted only 11 per cent.

Larker and Manker, which were major varieties for a number of years, comprise only 11 per cent of the acres in 1981 compared to 25 per cent last year and 58 per cent the year before. Plantings of these two varieties decreased in all parts of the state and total 113,300 acres in 1981.

The next leading variety, which comprises only one per cent of the acreage in 1981, is Bumper. Bumper also had one per cent of the 1980 acreage. It is not a variety recommended for malting by the malting barley improvement association.

Other and unknown varieties are again three per cent of Minnesota's barley acreage. Included under other varieties are Beacon, Bonanza, Park, Klages, Betzes, and Conquest, which are recommended for malting. Varieties not recommended for malting include Cree, Nordic, Valley and Primus.

In 1962 the first machinery created to promote unionization and collective bargaining in the federal government was established by Executive Order 10988, issued by President John F. Kennedy, according to Labor Department's "Labor Firsts in America."

Ask Your Pharmacist

Q. Isn't athlete's foot just a problem for boys on sports teams?

A. No—anybody can get athlete's foot under certain conditions. Now that so many people are participating in all kinds of sports activities—jogging, bicycling, tennis, etc.—it's important for everyone to understand how athlete's foot develops and how to avoid and treat it.

Q. What causes athlete's foot and jock itch?

A. Both of these common conditions are caused by minute fungi which live on the dead skin cells shed continually by the body during normal activity, bathing and toweling. A related condition is body ringworm, which kids can pick up from the fur of puppies or kittens. All three types of fungal infections can be effectively treated with an over-the-counter (OTC) remedy such as Tinactin, the product most often recommended by pharmacists.

Q. Why do my kids always seem to pick up athlete's foot at school?

A. Shared locker room and shower facilities provide ideal conditions for the growth of the fungi that cause athlete's foot and jock itch. These fungi love moist, dark environments. It's easy for athlete's foot to be spread from person to person when kids are running around barefoot in a common locker room or shower.

Q. How can I prevent athlete's foot and jock itch?

A. (1) Use clean, dry towels, socks and underwear for sports activities. (2) Avoid going barefoot in places like locker rooms and showers. (3) If you are prone to frequent development of athlete's foot or jock itch, try using an antifungal powder such as Tinactin as a preventative. (4) During sports activity, wear loose-fitting clothing made of fabrics that "breathe." Plain cotton is better than many synthetics. (5) Never share towels.

Stangeland Notes Needs In Transportation

"Nothing short of a complete reassessment by Congress of our entire federal-aid highway program will stem the rapid deterioration of our Nation's highways and bridges," Congressman Stangeland said recently as the House Public Works and Transportation Committee began five days of hearings on immediate and long-term highway and public transportation needs.

Stangeland, a member of the committee, noted that the percentage of miles in poor condition on the Interstate system has more than doubled over the past three years and cited estimates that over 100,000 of the nation's bridges are deficient.

"Revenues for the highway program have not kept pace with construction and maintenance costs, and any delay in taking the needed corrective action will mean even greater costs," said Stangeland, pointing to new general accounting office findings that during 1970-79, revenues increased by 60 per cent while construction costs rose 145 per cent.

He noted that the situation was equally troublesome for the nation's financially strapped and deteriorating public transportation systems.

"Our committee took an important step to aid the Interstate program by reporting a one-year highway bill containing the important Republican-sponsored Shuster Amendment redefining Interstate completion and expanding the Interstate rehabilitation program to include reconstruction," said Stangeland.

He added, however, that "we still have a long way to go to meet the total needs of the federal-aid highway program, and they will have to be met within the new budgetary climate."

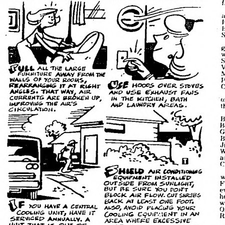
Stangeland stressed that the highway program, like almost every other federal activity, would be asked to absorb its share of cuts in the interest of a balanced federal budget.

"If we expect to preserve our great highway system, those cuts should be balanced and not concentrated on this vital capital investment program, under which money is obligated now to meet needs that are expected well down the road," said Stangeland. "Even at that, the day is past when state and local governments can simply look to the federal government to meet all of their highway needs."

Stangeland expects a full airing of the highway and public transportation programs' problems and funding prospects during the committee's hearings, which will include as witnesses, secretary of transportation Drew Lewis and others from government, industry, labor, and public interest groups.

Hearings are expected to develop a base of evidence on which to draft multi-year legislation to meet the highway and public transportation needs of both rural and urban areas.

Requested by committee Republicans, the hearings are likely to delve into the conditions of highway and public transit systems; capital and non-capital needs of highways, highway safety and public transportation; methods of financing capital projects in those areas; allocation of financial responsibility among federal, state and local governments; the effects od deferring highway and public transit investments; and the impact of those systems on national economic renewal.



HIGH TEMPERATURES DON'T HAVE TO BRING A HIGH RATE OF DISCOMFORT IF YOU FOLLOW A FEW ENERGY SAVING TIPS.

PULL ALL THE LARGE FURNITURE AWAY FROM THE WALLS OF YOUR ROOMS, REARRANGING IT AT RIGHT ANGLES. THAT WAY, AIR CURRENTS ARE BROKEN UP, IMPROVING THE AIR'S CIRCULATION.

USE HOODS OVER STOVES AND USE EXHAUST FANS IN THE KITCHEN, BATH AND LAUNDRY AREAS.

IF YOU HAVE A CENTRAL COOLING UNIT, HAVE IT SERVICED ANNUALLY. A UNIT THAT IS OUT OF ADJUSTMENT CAN INCREASE YOUR OPERATING COSTS WHILE GIVING YOU VERY LITTLE COOLING.

SHIELD AIR CONDITIONING EQUIPMENT INSTALLED OUTSIDE FROM SUNLIGHT, BUT BE SURE YOU DON'T BLOCK AIR FLOW. CUT SHRUBS BACK AT LEAST ONE FOOT. ALSO, AVOID PLACING YOUR COOLING EQUIPMENT IN AN AREA WHERE EXCESSIVE DUST, OR POLLENS WOULD BE DRAWN INTO THE EQUIPMENT. THESE TIPS ARE FROM THE NATIONAL ENERGY WATCH.. Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Poros

Q. Pastor Don, do you believe that the Bible teaches there is a personal devil, or just the influence of evil in the world?

A. I could not believe in the Bible without believing in a personal Devil. I have excellent proof that the Bible is the Word of God, therefore I believe what it teaches about the existence of a personal Devil.

The Devil is very real, but he would like for everyone to think that he does not exist. If he can convince everyone that it is only evil that they are dealing with in society, and not a personal Devil, he has gained a victory.

The Lord Jesus Christ believed in a real personal Devil. In Matthew 4:1-11 and Luke 4:1-13 Jesus was tempted in the wilderness by the Devil. Jesus taught all through the Gospels that the Devil was real.

Jesus taught that it was the Devil who keeps people from getting saved. Luke 8:12 says, "Those by the way side are they that hear; then cometh the Devil, and taketh away the Word of God out of their hearts, lest they should believe and be saved.

Acts 10:38 teaches, "Now God annointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghost and power: who went about doing good, and healing (curing) all that were oppressed of the devil; For God was with Him."

The twelve apostles definitely believed in a personal Devil. Apostle Peter in his epistle of I Peter 5:8 says, "Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour (overcome).

Apostle Paul believed in a personal Devil. In Ephesians 6:11 he taught, "put on the whole armour of God, that you may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil."

Yes, I believe in a personal Devil, as the Scriptures and experience offer abounding evidence that there is a personal Devil.

If you have any questions that you would like to have answered from the Bible, please write Pastor Don Poros, Box 129, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

Babe Ruth Baseball

Scheduled to get underway at 11:30 this morning (Wednesday) in the opening round of the 1981 South Half Lake Agassiz Sub District Babe Ruth baseball tournament at Red Lake Falls, the fourth meeting of the year between the Thief River Falls Elks and Thief River Falls Independents continues an interesting rivalry between the two teams of 14-15-year-olds.

Final regular season standings in the five-team South Half Lake Agassiz League produced a three-way first place tie involving the Elks, Independents and Crookston Gold, with the Crookston team emerging as the No. 1 tournament seed through a coin flip. That gives the Crookston club a much-easier 2 p.m. first round test today against the winner of a Red Lake Falls-Crookston Merchants game that began at 9 this morning.

During the season the three-way first place tie developed when the Elks swept both league starts against the Independents 10-4 and 11-4 but lost twice to Crookston Gold 4-3 and 18-6 while the Independents were sweeping the Crookston squad 23-3 and 5-4.

A third Elks-Independents confrontation came Sunday in the finals of the annual Thief River Falls Elks invitational Babe Ruth baseball tournament where the Elks outlasted the Independents 4-1 in nine innings.

In 1980, the first year in which Thief River Falls fielded two 14-15-year-old squads, the Elks won both regular season games against the Independents before the first-year Independents took a 2-1 win over the top-seeded Elks to win the South Half Sub District championship.

However, both teams reached the Lake Agassiz District tournament where the Elks won the double-elimination event with a pair of one-run wins over the Independents: 12-11 in a rain-plagued first meeting and an 8-7 ten-inning championship game to earn a berth in the state tournament.

Neither coach — Bruce Williams of the Elks and Charlie Corneil of the Independents — would be surprised if there were still several more Elks-Independents match-ups after today's game as both teams battle for titles in the double-elimination sub district and district tournaments.

American Legion Baseball

Final regular season home appearance of 1981 for the Thief River Falls American Legion baseball team will be tonight (Wednesday) when Bemidji visits the fairgrounds diamond for a 6 p.m. doubleheader.

The two teams battled to a 6-6 tie in their first meeting this summer, a loosely-played affair that was finally halted by darkness back on June 22.

Bemidji is 10-7-1 for the year following a runner-up finish at the New York Mills tournament over the weekend where Bemidji routed the host New York Mills club 11-1 behind a one-hit, 19 strikeout performance by pitcher Bryan Hickerson; rallied from a 2-0 deficit to beat Fergus Falls with a bases-loaded three-run double by Daryl Strunk in the fifth; and finally losing to a strong Brainerd team 10-0 in the finals. Thief River Falls won consolation honors in the same tournament, losing to that Brainerd club 7-0 in the first round before eliminating Wadena 2-0 and New York Mills 7-5.

Bemidji coach Whitey Anderson indicated he planned to pitch either Govind Nadesan, the winner against Fergus Falls, or Strunk in the opener and come back with Dave Christenson in the second game, meaning Thief River Falls likely won't see Hickerson, who no-hit the Prowlers during the 1981 high school season with the Lumberjacks.

Miscellaneous

+Crookston American Legion baseball team, 17-2-1 heading into a scheduled Tuesday night Northwest League clash with East Grand Forks that was postponed by rain, has to be considered the favorite to win the title has to be considered the favorite to win the title when Thief River Falls hosts the 1981 Northwest League Sub District tournament semifinals and finals Friday, July 31, and Saturday, August 1. Crookston exploded offensively over the weekend, scoring 51 runs and collecting 42 base hits in a five-game tear that produced wins over Fertile 13-2, Park Rapids 9-0, 7-3 and Warroad 7-1, 15-3. Thief River Falls will be in Crookston Tuesday for a 7 p.m. Northwest League game.

+Defending Ninth District American Legion baseball champion Detroit Lakes tackles a major assignment this weekend when it enters the prestigious Gopher Classic American Legion baseball tournament, a strong 16-team event hosted by Minnetonka. Teams entered are placed into four brackets of four teams each and will play a round-robin schedule. Each of the 16 teams will them play two more games, meaning that everyone will be assured of five starts. Detroit Lakes has been bracketed with Richfield, Grand Rapids and Rapid City, S.D. Richfield is the defending Minnesota American Legion champion, Rapid City is a perennial South Dakota Legion power and Grand Rapids is the team that handed Detroit Lakes an opening round loss in the 1980 state tournament. The tournament also includes entries from North Dakota, Wisconsin and Nebraska.

IT WASN'T A textbook slide as Dwight's Hartz base runner Beth Nichols tumbled across the plate and wound up on her backside as Ridge Runners catcher Dawn Nelson looked on during Monday's Division I women's slow pitch softball league game. Nichols scored after escaping from a rundown between third and home when the ball was dropped at the plate. Dwight's Hartz ran its record to 13-3 with an 8-2 victory.

Pat Fischer Wins Title During State Trapshoot

Thief River Falls trap league members Pat Fischer, Frandell Johnson and Sandy Wilson were all prominent figures in the 68th annual Minnesota state trapshooting tournament completed Sunday at the Del-Tone trap range in St. Cloud.

Fischer emerged as the champion in the handicap portion of the meet by breaking 98 of 100 targets. Kevin Parks of Carleton was runner-up with a 97x100.

Johnson, a Greenbush resident, tied All-American Bob Munson of Howard Lake with a 200-straight in the battle for the state championship title, but missed his first shot on a 25-bird shoot-off before hitting 24 straight to finish second to Munson, who ran off another 25-straight for the crown.

Wilson, meanwhile, joined select company when he was inducted into the Minnesota trapshooting Hall of Fame during the annual meeting at the state shoot.

Thief River Falls trap club shooters will host Crookston in a club shoot tonight (Wednesday) beginning at 5:30 p.m. Crookston won the first portion of the twice-a-year shoot earlier this summer at Crookston. A supper will follow the shooting at the Marshallton Gun Club.

Annual Northwestern Minnesota team trap shoot will be held Sunday beginning at 9 a.m. at Crookston. Thief River Falls is the defending champion.

Wayne Smith drilled a lead-off home run in the bottom of the eighth inning Monday to give Action Realty a dramatic 4-3 win over Coca-Cola in Thief River Falls fast pitch softball league action.

The victory lifted Action Realty into first place in the league standings, one game ahead of idle North Star Transport in the win column, although both teams are tied in the all-important loss column. It was the only game scheduled for either Monday or Tuesday.

Coca-Cola had taken a 1-0 lead in the top of the first inning on singles by Kelly Gutterud and Mike Drury, and a wild pitch. Action Realty tied it 1-1 in the second on Tom Goddard's ground-rule double and a pair of wild pitches.

The two teams traded third inning runs, with Action Realty taking a 3-2 lead in the fourth as Goddard singled, Del Beito reached base on an error on his sacrifice and Goddard stole third. Goddard tried to score on a wild pitch, but catcher Jim Nyland got the rebound and tagged him out at the plate. Beito scored, though, when Keith Charbonneau singled to left field.

Coca-Cola got the equalizer in the sixth when Paul Walker reached on a fielder's choice and scored on Steve Drury's single to right.

Neither team scored in the seventh. In the eighth, Coca-Cola had two runners on base with no outs, but Action Realty got two outs at third base on fielder's choice plays and got the side out on a short-to-first grounder.

Smith then picked out a 1-2 pitch and lined it over the right field barrier for the win.

Minnesota Hunting, Trapping Seasons Announced For 1981

Most of the hunting and trapping seasons for 1981 are similar to last year, Department of Natural Resources Commissioner Joseph Alexander announced today; however, he noted that there are a few changes which are significant.

Alexander said that 10 public meetings were held throughout the state before setting the seasons to give the public an opportunity to express their views.

Wildlife officials report that small game populations look good. Roadside pheasant and Hungarian partridge counts were up substantially from last year mainly because of the mild winter and, with reasonable nesting success, there should be good populations of both species.

Ruffed grouse populations were down this spring except in the far northeast where they increased 15 per cent from last year. A shortage of snow cover reduced over-winter survival.

A regulation change this year will allow squirrel hunting through February 28 to correspond with the season closure on rabbits. Populations of squirrels and rabbits are very high, Alexander said.

Mink and muskrat season will open on October 31 statewide rather than having a split opener as in previous years. This is in response to complaints from northern trappers and furbuyers who felt the seasons the last two years were too early. The commissioner said that complaints have also been building in the north over an increase in trapping pressure caused by southern zone trappers going north for the earlier opening. A single opening will eliminate that, he said.

Beaver season will open the same date as mink and muskrat, October 31. The fur will be better than last year when the season opened a week earlier, Alexander stated.

Trappers registering bobcat, lynx, otter and fisher will be required to have the animals skinned and must present the entire carcass along with the pelt when it is registered. Trappers are advised that there are other changes in the registration procedure that they should study in the small game regulations.

Trapping of bobcat and lynx will not be allowed in the northeastern area of the state including the counties of Cook, most of Lake, St. Louis and Koochiching and the northern edge of Itasca. This closure is to protect the breeding population of lynx while they are in the low segment of their 10-year population cycle.

Bear season will open September 12, which is 10 days later than last year. Baiting will not be allowed until August 29, the commissioner said.

Other changes are that bear may not be taken within one-half mile of a dump, and bear hunters may not possess uncased weapons legal for taking big game while within one-half mile of a dump. Unlike last year, cubs may not be taken. In addition, the season in the northeastern part of the state will close on September 27, while the remainder of the state will have an October 27 closure. These regulations on bear should result in a harvest below the 1245 bear taken last year, Alexander said.

Firearms deer season will be very similar to last year according to Alexander. The only zone changes are around the Leech Lake and White Earth Indian Reservations and the northern part of last year's zone 4. Adjustments were made around the reservations so each would be located in only one deer hunting zone. The northern part of what was zone 4 last year, located east of U.S. highway 59 and from Bagley north to the Canadian Border, has been changed to zone 3 to provide more time to hunt, as requested by a number of deer hunters.

Alexander said that the outlook for deer hunting is excellent. A combination of two mild winters and good herd management through control of the taking of antlerless deer has brought about an increase all over the state. "I know that people have been frustrated over the antlerless deer restriction, especially in the north, but it is working," he said. "This year we are able to increase the number of permits in most northern areas and continue the liberal quotas in most of the agricultural areas."

A new regulation for big game bow and arrow hunters requires them to have their bows unstrung or cased if afield between one-half hour after sunset and one hour before sunrise. This gives them an hour to get to their stand in the morning and half an hour to get back out in the evening without having to carry a case. The regulation is designed to curtail bow hunting after legal hours.

TRF Legion Wins 9-5 Game At Newfolden

Scoring four runs over the final two innings, Thief River Falls snapped a 5-5 tie and avoided an upset bid by Newfolden in winning a 9-5 American Legion Northwest League baseball game Tuesday at Newfolden.

The victory lifted Thief River Falls to 14-7-1 for the year, 5-1 in the Northwest League.

Newfolden, beaten 9-1 and 9-5 in two earlier meetings with Thief River Falls (the latter a non-league affair), jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the first inning last night when doubles by Todd Stokke and Bob Sylskar were sandwiched around walks issued to Eugene Kaml and Vance Lefrooth.

Thief River Falls went ahead 4-3 in the second without the benefit of a base hit. Three errors and three walks put runners on base, with three of them scoring on wild pitches and another coming home on an error.

Newfolden regained the lead, 5-4 in the third on an RBI double by Lefrooth and a bases-loaded walk issued to Scott Wikstrom.

Thief River Falls tied it in the fourth as Kevin Sanders reached base on an infield single, stole second and scored on a two-out error on a ball hit to third by Jim Hallamek.

Winning runs crossed the plate in the sixth as Tim Bottem reached base on an error and scored on a triple by Delray Ness. A sacrifice fly by Kerry Wollin made it 7-5.

Insurance runs came in the seventh on an RBI single by Mark Ludin and a wild pitch that scored Jeff Milender, who had singled.

Duck Stamp Contest Open For 1982-83

Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service announced the federal government's annual duck stamp contest for waterfowl art to adorn the 1982-83 migratory bird hunting and conservation stamp opened July 1.

Revenues from the sales of this stamp, popularly called the duck stamp, are used to acquire critically needed habitat for ducks, geese and other species of migratory waterfowl.

This annual competition is the only art contest regularly sponsored by the federal government. The colorful stamps, whose designs are selected through the contest, constitute the longest-running, annually issued series of stamps in revenue or postage stamp history. Last year, more than 1,500 artists submitted entries in the prestigious contest.

This year's judging to select the winning entry is open to the public and will begin at 9 a.m., November 5, 1981, at the Department of the Interior auditorium in Washington, D.C.

Most contest rules remain the same as last year, except that the deadline for submissions has been moved up to October 1 to allow time for the handling and preparation of the increasing number of entries. In addition, five species of waterfowl are ineligible to be depicted in this year's contest because they were portrayed in the winning designs of the previous five duck stamps: Ross' geese, hooded mergansers, green-winged teal, mallards and ruddy ducks.

Artists interested in submitting an entry should write the Audio-Visual Office, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240, for copies of the contest rules, reproduction rights agreement and entry form. Entries, limited to one per person, must be postmarked by midnight, October 1, 1981.

Migratory bird hunting and conservation stamp was authorized by Congress in 1934. It is sold through local post offices and some national wildlife refuges. The stamp must be carried by every migratory waterfowl hunter 16 years of age or older.

All of the stamp revenues, beyond printing and handling costs, are used solely for the acquisition of additional habitat for migratory waterfowl. This habitat also benefits other wildlife species. The $7.50 stamp for 1982-83 will go on sale July 1, 1982.

Since duck stamps first went on sale, nearly 2.5 million acres of prime waterfowl habitat have been acquired with over $367 million in revenue ($225 million from duck stamp receipts and $142 million from accelerated wetlands acquisition load funds). By purchasing the stamps, more than 2.2 million conservationists provide over $16.5 million in revenue yearly.

Before 1949, wildlife artists were commissioned to provide the design for the duck stamp. Since that time, the design has been chosen through a contest open to all artists who are citizens or residents of the United States.

Prestige of winning the contest has enhanced the reputations of established artists and has elevated otherwise unknown artists to public acclaim. The federal government offers no prize other than a sheet of stamps to the winner, but commercial wildlife art dealers in the past have been eager to market limited edition reprints for the winner.

BOATING TOPICS

by Bob Brewster

MERCURY OUTDOOR CONSULTANT

Double-ended Indian style canoes have been around longer than any other type of boat in North America. They were in use when the colonists arrived and have been a part of boating ever since.

Today the canoe's popularity is increasing. Its advantages over other craft are ease of transportation and storage, and the fact that it will go where many other boats can't because of their size or draft. Made of lightweight materials, a modern canoe is easily lifted atop an automobile, and its narrow width allows it to be stored in a small space.

Equally important to many fishermen is the ease with which a canoe can be adapted for use with a low horsepower outboard engine. Mounted on a double-end or a square stern canoe, an outboard engine offers many advantages over paddle power.

Range is greatly extended, allowing travel to distant places with little time lost in transit. Also, a canoeist can return upstream under engine power, rather than fight current and wind with only a paddle for push. And an outboard is helpful when trying to travel long distances on a lake.

According to Mercury outboards' boating experts, an outboard engine works equally well with either type of canoe. Their experience shows that the side-mount engine is easier to operate because of its position, but that the stern mounted engine is better balanced and will turn the canoe faster because of the stern pivot point.

Humans Unlike Animals In Aquatic Antics

Flippers, snorkles, goggles, wet suits: Humans will don some strange-looking equipment in order to feel more at home in the water. But according to Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine, no matter what we wear, we simply can't match the aquatic abilities of those animals who are born with special diving gear. These super swimmers include:

Dolphins — found in most of the world's oceans, these marine mammals are equipped with a sophisticated sonar system for locating food, obstacles, and each other in the dark water. The dolphin's eyes are covered with thick out layers and a gland secretes an oily liquid which bathes the outside of the eyes. "The layers and the liquid protect the dolphin's eyes so the salty sea water won't make them sting," explains the National Wildlife federation's monthly publication for children.

Although it must come to the surface to breathe, the dolphin can store much more air in its lungs than a human can. When hunting for fish or squid, it can dive to depths of up to 800 feet.

Sea Lions — Like dolphins, sea lions have streamlined bodies and built-in flippers. "With powerful strokes of those big front flippers, a sea lion can swim as fast as 20 miles per hour," reports Ranger Rick. The sea lion's hind flippers act as a rudder, to keep it on course to help it change direction.

When pursued by an enemy, sea lions "porpoise," or leap, through the crest of waves offshore. This method of "body-surfing" also performed by dolphins, uses less energy than swimming below the water's surface. Sea lions can stay underwater for up to 20 minutes and can descent to at least 450 feet, although a trained California sea lion once set a diving record of 820 feet.

Hippopotamus — How can the heavy, clumsy-looking hippo be classified as a super swimmer: "By holding in just the right amount of air, hippos become nearly 'weightless' underwater," explains Ranger Rick. Then they rather gracefully half swim and half tiptoe along river bottoms.

The hippopotamus — the word means "river horse" in Greek — must spend most of the day in the water. Its skin dries out so fast that the big animal would die if it couldn't soak in water or mud. At night hippos emerge and grace on land.

River otters — with its sleek, streamlined body and tail, a river otter can swim fast and turn quickly, and it can dive in a flash, leaving scarcely, a ripple. Special flaps close automatically underwater, like hatches on a submarine.

Penguins — these highly specialized birds do fly, in a sense, underwater. Their wings are powerful flippers which propel them through the water swiftly. A gentoo penguin can swim as fast as 22 miles per hour. Penguin feathers make fantastic "wetsuits." Thick, short, rigid, and overlapping, the feathers and a layer of fat beneath the skin keep the birds from freezing to death in the icy water.

Some varities of penguins spend months at sea, straying onshore only to breed, lay eggs, or molt. While diving for food — shrimp, squid, or krill — the usually surface every two or three minutes to breathe, although the Emperor penguin has been clocked at 18 minutes underwater. This large penguin is also a deep diver; a vertical plunge of 855 feet has been recorded.

Notes Ranger Rick, "That's almost twice as deep as the record for a human diver with scuba gear — and the penguin was just holding its breath!"

Tracy Austin is the youngest pro athlete ever to earn more than $1 million. She did it as a teenager after only 21 months on the pro tour.

Tennis is believed to have originated in France between 1100 and 1200. Players hit the ball over the net with their hands.

In 1909, when he was 41, England's Arthur Gore became the oldest player to win the men's singles title at Wimbledon.

Alaska Land Use Rules Are Altered

Final rules have been announced by the Interior Department's National Park Service and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to relieve regulatory restrictions inappropriate to the unique Alaska setting and alleviate public concern over management procedures for 120 million acres of federal lands in Alaska.

Rules apply to 51 million acres of land in national parks, monuments and preserves, and 76 million acres of national wildlife refuges, most of which were created or enlarged by the Alaska national interest lands conservation act (ANILCA).

These rules are in keeping with Secretary of the Interior James Watt's March 12, 1981, policy statement that a "permit lifestyle" with unreasonable paperwork requirements will not be imposed on the people of Alaska.

Today's action has the practical effect of easing existing general restrictions on public use, recreation, and access that were deemed inappropriate and unnecessary for these federal lands in Alaska because of the unique lifestyle of rural Alaskans and the terrain, climate and vastness of the state. These regulations also reflect many of the special management provisions contained in the Alaska lands act.

"Alaska is a special case, where many of the ground rules we use for parks and refuges in the 'Lower 48' have to be modified to take into account the vastness of the area and the special traditions that Alaskans have with the land," said G. Ray Arnett, Assistant Secretary of the Interior for fish and wildlife and parks. "What these rules permit is coordinated management of federal lands in Alaska that is responsive to local needs."

The rules, published in the Federal Register, govern the current administration of Interior Department lands and may be supplemented by additional rules in the future if either agency determines that further rulemaking is required.

Interim rules were proposed on January 19, 1981, and were the subject of over 500 comments from the state of Alaska and its Congressional delegation, other federal and local government agencies, private organizations and businesses, and private citizens from Alaska and other states.

Regulations apply to units of the national park system and also to national wildlife refuges.

A summary of the rules for lands under the administration of the National Park Service and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service follows. While rules are similar for units of both the park and wildlife refuge systems, there are some differences that reflect the distinct management responsibilities of each agency.

National Park Service

Transportation: Snowmachine use is authorized for travel to and from villages and homesites and for traditional activities when there is adequate snow cover to protect the underlying vegetation and soil. Motorboats, non-motorized surface transportation (dogs, horses, saddle animals) and fixed-wing aircraft are generally allowed. Helicopters are allowed at designated landing sites or under permit. Off-road vehicles are allowed on routes and in specific areas designated by the Superintendent, on established roads and in parking areas, or pursuant to a permit.

Hunting and fishing: Sport fishing is allowed in park areas; sport hunting and trapping are permitted in national preserves in compliance with state and federal law.

Firearms: Firearms may be carried in park areas in Alaska except Klondike Gold Rush and Sitka national historic sites, Denali (Mt. McKinley) national park and Glacier Bay and Katmai national parks. The carrying of traps and bows is allowed within national preserves where the taking of fish and wildlife is authorized.

Collecting: Except in the above park areas, the collection of these renewable resuources is allowed: fruits, berries and mushrooms that are not endangered, driftwood and uninhabited seashells, and dead or downed wood. Recreational gold panning is also allowed.

Camping and picnicking: These activities are generally allowed in park areas.

Access: Adequate and feasible access across parks is guaranteed for any person who has a valid property or occupancy interest in land that is in, or surrounded by, a park area. Administrative procedures are set forth for those land-owners who require temporary access across park areas.

Cabins: Procedures and guidance are provided for people occupying and using existing cabins and those wishing to construct new cabins within park areas.

Unattended Property: Property may be left unattended on most park lands for up to 12 months.

+In national parks and monuments, local rural residents allowed to engage in subsistence uses are those permanently residing in designated resident zones or holding subsistence permits. Resident zones for preserves were deemed unnecessary for this interim rulemaking.

+Most national parks and monuments are open to fishing, hunting and trapping for subsistence uses by local rural residents. National preserves are open to both sport and subsistence fishing, hunting and trapping.

+Local rural residents may fish with a net, seine, trap, or spear in park areas where subsistence uses are authorized.

+Aircraft use for subsistence hunting, fishing, or trapping in parks or monuments is prohibited, with limited exceptions.

+Snowmobiles, motorboats, dog teams, and other means of surface transportation are allowed by local rural residents engaged in subsistence uses.

+In park areas where subsistence uses are allowed, the non-commercial cutting of live-standing timber by local rural residents for subsistence uses is allowed. Timber less than three inches in diameter may be taken without a permit.

Waterfowl season will open October 3 as previously announced, Alexander said. Under a five-year stabilized set of duck regulations, Minnesota will have the same length season and bag limits we had in the past two years. Therefore, the duck season will run through November 21 and duck limits will be five daily and 10 in possession. Other aspects of the waterfowl season will be announced later.

All hunters and trappers are urged to study the annual synopses of regulations before going afield. The big game regulations, the first to be available, should be in the hand of license vendors by mid-August.

Misuse Of Monies Seen On Reservation

Inspector General's office of the department of the interior recently issued the final draft of its audit report on federal programs operated on the Red Lake Indian Reservation. According to Congressman Arlan Stangeland, the report shows that the financial administration of those federal programs under the direct control of the Red Lake Tribal Council was "inexcusable."

"I had originally requested that this audit be conducted shortly after the outbreak of violence on the reservation in May of 1979. In order to either prove or disprove the many allegations that had been made, I felt it was essential that an impartial audit be made of the federal monies being spent by the tribal Council. Now, over two years later, it is clear that there have been incredible amounts of waste and misuse of taxpayer's money on the reservation and that many of the federal dollars flowing into the reservation have not been used to benefit those who were supposed to be served," said Stangeland.

Final draft audit report covered only $5.7 million out of an estimated $25.1 million in federal funds going into the Red Lake Reservation during fiscal years 1978 and 1979.

"Of the $5.7 million in federal grants and contracts that this audit covered, roughly 12 per cent, or $684,000.00, of the federal monies received by the tribe were either shown to have been misspent or were unsupported by valid or accurate records," said Stangeland.

"The Department of Labor has yet to release its own independent audit of the reservation's CETA program which involves over $3 million more in federal funds. However, it is my understanding that, according to earlier drafts of this report, the percentage of questioned and disallowed costs may show even greater amounts of waste and mismanagement than what has already been uncovered in the interior department's report.

"I have always been a strong proponent of fiscal responsibility in government and firmly believe that wasteful federal spending and the loose fiscal policies of the past are the major contributors toward the economic mess we currently find ourselves in. The waste and abuse that has occurred on Red Lake must be stopped and it is clear that the agencies responsible for administering these contracts must exercise appropriate financial oversight for those federal funds controlled by the Tribal Council."

He added, "I do not believe the Tribal Council should be required to do any more, nor any less, than what is demanded of other units of government — state, county, or municipal — which must be accountable for the federal dollars they receive."

The Inspectors General of the federal agencies involved in the audit are now responsible for recommending actions that will hold the Red Lake Tribal Council accountable for federal monies spent in the future.

Stangeland said, "I have written the Inspectors General of these government agencies urging that they communicate with the program managers responsible for disbursing these funds and enact significant policy changes to prevent this type of irresponsible waste of tax dollars from occurring in the future."

The Seventh District Congressman concluded that the audit report criticized the federal agencies for not doing a better job of enforcing their program requirements.

"The report stated that unless there are consequences for noncompliance, requirements tend to lose their meaning. I believe it is unfair to both reservation members and the taxpayers of the country for federal dollars to be handled so carelessly, and I intend to do whatever I can to encourage responsible agency oversight in the future to prevent further waste and abuse of federal funds by the Red Lake Tribal Council," Stangeland added.

Hobbs Anti-Extortion Act Is Reviewed

National right to work committee has been the instrumental force in the current legislative drive to amend the Hobbs Anti-Extortion Act to make union officials and their agents once again liable for federal prosecution for acts of violence and extortion in interstate commerce.

Since S. 613 and HR 450 were first introduced in their respective Houses of Congress by Sen. Strom Thurmond (R-SC) and Congressman J. Kenneth Robinson (R-VA) about three months ago, the bills have garnered an impressive list of cosponsors. To date, 13 senators have expressed their support for Thurmond's S. 613. And on the House side, some 39 Congressmen are active cosponsors of Congressman Robinson's HR 450.

Now that the time-consuming budget debate has for the most part subsided, the committee has called upon Sen. Charles Mathias to schedule hearings on S. 613, currently in the senator's criminal law subcommittee of the senate judiciary committee. As events in the recent coal strike vividly illustrated, it is past time for the pervasive problem of compulsory unionism violence to be taken up, the national right to work committee stated.

Since the controversial 1973 "Enmons" decision, the power of the federal government to prosecute union officials for acts of violence in interstate commerce under the Hobbs Act has been virtually emasculated. Because the High Court undermined the original intent of Congress in passing the Hobbs Act, union terriorists have, in effect, been left to bask under a Supreme Court-created umbrella of immunity. No other group in our society enjoys such a privilege.

The legislative history of the Hobbs Act shows that Congress intended the Act's coverage to reach acts of extortion by union officials regardless of the circumstance. As Justice William Douglas observed in his dissent to "Enmons":

The legislative history makes it clear that the new act (Hobbs Act) was meant to eliminate any grounds for future judicial conclusion that Congress did not intend to cover the employer-employee relationship.

With the two bills now before the lawmakers, Congress has the opportunity to reaffirm its commitment to equal justice under the law. "Due to the new congressional makeup mandated by the November elections, we believe the time has come for this vital legislation to receive the attention it deserves," stated the National right to work committee in a recent release.

Gov. Quie's Column

On July 2 the Minnesota Legislature concluded a special session by passing a bill increasing the state's short-term borrowing authority.

Due to adjustments made in the scheduling of homestead credits payments to school districts, the bill passed by the Legislature, which I signed into law, will meet the state's financial needs.

Very briefly, the new law increases the state's short-term borrowing authority from a limit of $100 million to $360 million. Beginning in fiscal year 1983, homestead credit payments to school districts will be made in two equal payments instead of six. For fiscal year 1983, one payment will be on July 15, 1982, and one on Jan. 15, 1983. By changing these dates the state will have more money on hand to cover the payments, thus reducing the need to borrow.

Let me again stress, as I did in last week's column, that short-term borrowing is just that — short-term. For example, money borrowed this fall to meet cash flow problems will be repaid in the spring 1982.

This new law also has an additional special feature. It authorizes the establishment of a state reserve fund — something I sought as early as January 1981.

The fund would work this way:

Any revenues the state receives in excess of $25 million above authorized expenditures will be secured in the reserve fund. Money would be allowed to accumulate up to 2.5 per cent of the state's biennial general fund budget, or $220 million in the 1982-83 biennium. The money in this fund may be used, after consultation with legislative leadership, to balance the budget if revenues are less than anticipated or to alleviate future cash flow problems. Once the fund is established it will eliminate the need for future short-term borrowing.

The need for such a reserve fund has been demonstrated throughout the last year as we have seen the national economy take its toll on the state. With 80 per cent of our state revenues sensitive to changes in the national economy, the fund will provide the state with a measure of stability.

However, I must add that the fund will only become operational once our revenues exceed $25 million of our budget. We will have to see a continued upward swing in our state economy before money will be deposited in the reserve account. But once we recover from the existing slump in revenues this fund will provide the state with a reserve in the event of future economic downturns.

Five new gateways to Germany have opened in the U.S. since 1979, making a total of 11 cities now offering direct flights to Frankfurt.

The new cities providing service by Lufthansa German Airlines are Miami, San Francisco, Atlanta, Dallas/Fort Worth and the latest, San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Miami and New York now also offer non-stop flights to Düsseldorf. Passengers can also travel with Lufthansa direct from New York to Hamburg and Munich.

Germany is a convenient starting point for travel throughout Europe and neighboring destinations. From Frankfurt alone Lufthansa has flights to more than 40 European cities and the major cities of the Middle East, Far East and Africa.

With the new San Juan service, Lufthansa is also offering flights from Puerto Rico to Lima, Peru and La Paz, Bolivia. With its new nonstop service to Dallas/Fort Worth from Frankfurt, the airline began service between DFW & Mexico City. Travelers from the U.S. on these 747's and DC-10's will find both first and business class seating available. Vacation travelers can take advantage of low advance purchase "Holiday Fares."

Business class, introduced in 1979, offers extra seat room whenever possible. Other extras include choice of dinner entrees, sleeping masks, slippers, individual travel kits, complimentary bar service and headsets.

Both first and business class passengers will find the carrier's "Executive Traveler Services" program aids for the business traveler helpful.

First class passengers have the option, on 747 flights, of sleeper chair seating in the upper deck lounge.

A 747 lands in Frankfurt. A major European airline now has many more flights between major American and German cities.

SOLVING PROBLEMS BEFORE THEY HAPPEN.
Lutheran Brotherhood announces MagniMed℠... a major medical program with 100% coverage for outpatient surgery and generic drugs.
A major need.
What would happen if you or a member of your family suffered a major illness or injury requiring an extended hospital stay, long-term treatment, major surgery or a combination of all three? Are you really covered against such catastrophic costs by your current insurance?
Improving on a good thing.
Lutheran Brotherhood has recently introduced an extraordinary new major medical plan called MagniMed. It's designed to provide quality coverage at an affordable cost. Broad coverage, too. Unlike most other plans, for example, MagniMed pays a full 100% of your outpatient surgery and generic drug costs, after the deductible has been satisfied.
Flexible, million dollar coverage!
Among MagniMed's many other features are these:
• There are a number of deductible options so that you can tailor your coverage to what you can afford
• There's no limit to the number of days or scheduled amount of benefits provided under the plan for intensive care, and room and board is provided based upon average local semi-private room rates.
• Coverage is provided either while confined in a hospital or while being treated as an outpatient.
• Each covered family member is eligible for up to $1,000,000 of lifetime benefits!
Taking the lead.
Once again Lutheran Brotherhood has spared no effort to provide Lutherans with the very best in insurance benefits...at a very competitive cost. Once again we're ready and able to help you solve problems before they happen.
Find out now.
Don't wait another minute to protect yourself from the kind of calamity that could happen any minute. And if you already have major medical coverage, it could still be very worthwhile to compare it with what MagniMed offers. Call your nearby Lutheran Brotherhood representative today and find out all about MagniMed!

Boy Scouts and their leaders from across the nation will gather in Virginia this month to participate in the 1981 National Scout Jamboree. One hundred twenty six scouts and leaders from the Northern Lights Council will be among those in attendance.

Jamboree will be conducted July 29-August 4 at Fort A. P. Hill near Fredericksburg, VA. Approximately 30,000 scouts and adult leaders from all 50 states and territories and approximately 30 foreign countries will be on site for "Scouting's Reunion With History," the theme for this year's event.

In addition, there will be merit badge demonstrations, troop shows, campfires, and many other scheduled events and contests.

Two major arena shows will be conducted, featuring nationally known entertainers Burl Ives, the Oak Ridge Boys, and others.

To attend the jamboree, a Boy Scout must be at least 12 years old and have earned the Second Class rank by July 1, and not have reached age 18 by September 1. He also must pass a medical exam and demonstrate proficiency of certain skills.

The first federal legislation paying workers in private industry a pension was the Railroad Retirement Act. This provision was enacted in 1935, according to a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor, "Labor Firsts in America."

Controversy Continues . . .

Use Of Test Animals In Studies May Be Limited

by Alice Tibbetts
'U' News Service

Controversy over the use of animals in medical research has raged for years. Recently, opponents of research on animals have taken the battle to the top: they have introduced bills in the U.S. Congress and in the Minnesota Legislature to limit the use and availability of test animals.

Federal legislation would force scientists to use other non-animal research methods in more research projects. Alternatives such as tissue and cell cultures, mathematical models, computer simulations, and chemical assays would reduce and eventually eliminate the need for live animals in research, the bill's supporters say. But University of Minnesota researchers believe this is an ideal that may never be realized.

"No one has found a generally applicable method that would eliminate the need for living, whole animals," said Maurice Visscher, professor emeritus of physiology. "Certain tests can be done using tissue cultures instead of live animals and whenever possible, scientists use them.

"No one would be better pleased than the scientists who do the research if we could eliminate the need for live animals entirely. But today that is utterly impossible," Visscher said.

Alternative methods can be used in some kinds of research but their applications are limited, Visscher said. Cancer research, for example, requires the use of live animals. "The antivivisectionists are very impressed by the fact that certain cancer-causing chemicals are also mutagens because many mutagens can be identified using bacterial cultures instead of live animals. But this does not mean that bacterial cultures can substitute for whole living animals in carcinogen studies. Even though most carcinogens are bacterial mutagens, most mutagens are not carcinogens."

Thalidomide, for example, would yield incorrect results if tested only in culture, Visscher said. A tranquilizer given to pregnant women in the 1960s, thalodomide caused severe birth defects. "Thalidomide caused mutations in one species but not in another," Visscher said. "It had no mutagenic effect on the species in which it was first tested but it was mutagenic in certain bacteria."

Live animals are essential in the testing of carcinogens because after exposure to some chemicals animals produce metabolic products that are carcinogenic even though the original substance was not, Visscher said. "The scientist has to test the product formed in the body to know if the original substance is harmful." Researchers just recently discovered that the chemical by-product formed in the human body in reaction to thalidomide was the cause of birth defects.

The federal legislation would also divert federal funds from animal research to fund the development of more efficient methods of alternative, non-animal research. The bill would divert between 30 and 50 per cent of existing research funds to studies of alternative methods.

Diverting money from other types of research will not make alternatives more viable or more useful, said Patrick Manning, director of research animal resources at the University of Minnesota. "This is not a money kind of problem. You won't cure cancer by throwing money at it and you won't find alternatives by depriving other programs of funds."

Scientists will choose alternatives when possible because they are cheaper than animals, Manning said. "There is no question that if an alternative means of testing is available, it is chosen."

The bill also prohibits use of federal funds for research or testing involving live animals if an alternative method for the research has been published. And it prohibits allocation of federal funds for any project that duplicates work involving test animals performed by a federal agency. This stipulation goes against the basis of the scientific process, Manning said. "Any meaningful research is subject to repeated verification. This is an essential, major part of the scientific method."

Federal legislation is a "very great threat," Visscher said. "The bill already has 60 co-sponsors in the House of Representatives and there will be a tremendous effort to get it heard in committee."

Minnesota legislation would have limited the availability of test animals. A bill to repeal the state's bond seizure law, which allows the University to buy unclaimed dogs and cats from the pound, was defeated during the most recent legislative session. Similar legislation has been introduced before but this was the first time such a bill has received serious consideration, Visscher said.

Availability of a large number of inexpensive animals is essential for the University's research programs, Visscher said. Pound dogs cost between $12.50 and $20 each. Lab-raised animals would cost between $140 and $250 per dog. "It would be impossible to get funds to buy dogs at that price in an experiment in which 1,000 dogs are used," Visscher said. That number is not unusually high in some types of drug testing, although the University used only about 3,500 dogs last year.

Supporters of the repeal argue that people's pets are being used in research and that these animals suffer a great deal. "Most of these dogs are not anyone's well-cared for pet," Manning said. "You can tell by the way they respond to commands and whether they are house-trained."

The animals do not suffer or experience extreme pain, Manning said. "I can absolutely assure you that the atrocities that are perceived to exist in research do not exist. The standards in biomedical research are exceedingly high."

V. ROSE ASP (Mrs. Bob Asp) autographs her book "A Dream is a Dream" about the "Hjemkomst" the Viking ship the Asps built. Mrs. Asp joined others recently during the seventh class reunion of the Lincoln high school class of 1946.

Crops Hurt By Rains, Says Technician

Hot, humid weather following numerous rains are stressing the crops quite badly, according to Ralph E. Rundell, soil conservation technician.

"There are fields that are beginning to rot off at ground level and are cooking at the top," he said. "It is weather that brings on rust problems and other crop stress problems. The crops that are filling now are being rushed and could wind up being light. If they are far enough along, they will just come on faster than normal. It is a time to keep a very close watch on crops for problems, insects and diseases."

Rains have shown the need for adequate drainage. There are many drainage ditches that are not adequate to handle the water that flows into them. The problem reaches all the way to Hudson Bay as the drainage problems are cumulative as one goes from Mud River through the Thief River, Red Lake River, Red River of the North and on down the Nelson River to Hudson Bay.

"Drainage problems will remain with us in the future but there are ways of doing local improvements that will not add to the problems downstream," Rundell commented. "We need to recognize the interaction of all the various water users' needs and then work to make the best use and management of water to fulfill the needs of the various users. People must work together to accomplish the goals of good water management to aid in good land use for the future generations."

Diabetics Are Recruited For Eye Research

If you have had diabetes for several years, you may be eligible to participate in a nationwide study of diabetic eye disease and its treatment, for which the department of ophthalmology at the University of Minnesota medical school is now recruiting patients.

The new research project, which will involve 4,000 patients and 19 medical centers across the country, is called the "Early Treatment Diabetic Retinopathy Study" (ETDRS). It is sponsored by the National Eye institute (NEI), a branch of the federal government's national institutes of health.

Each of the medical centers involved in the ETDRS is seeking people for the study who have early signs of diabetic retinopathy, an eye disease that is one of the most common complications of diabetes. Diabetic retinopathy is a disease of the retina, and light-sensitive tissue that lines the inside of the eye. The disorder is the third leading cause of new cases of blindness in the United States, and is present to at least a mild degree in about 40 per cent of the nation's eight million diabetics.

As long as diabetic retinopathy remains mild, it is not likely to cause any visual problems. However, in some people the disorder grows steadily worse over a period of years. In these individuals, the blood vessels of the retina may leak fluid, causing swelling of the central retina and blurring of vision. Or the diabetic retinopathy may progress to an even more advanced stage where new blood vessels begin to grow on the retina.

People who have extensive growth of new blood vessels are at high risk of severe visual loss, even blindness, because the vessels may bleed into the center of the eye and cloud vision at any time. Loss of vision can also occur because of retinal detachment, another eye problem that is particularly common in people with advanced diabetic retinopathy.

Fortunately, there is a treatment for diabetic retinopathy that can sharply reduce the risk of losing vision. In this treatment, called photocoagulation, powerful beams of light from a laser are directed into the eye and used to make hundreds of tiny burns on the retina; the presence of these burns somehow discourages the growth of new blood vessels. A previous study supported by the NEI showed that photocoagulation can lower the risk of severe visual loss by 60 per cent in eyes with advanced diabetic retinopathy.

The major goal of the new study — the ETDRS — is to determine whether photocoagulation would be more effective in preserving vision if it were used earlier in the course of diabetic retinopathy, to treat patients whose disease has not yet progressed to an advanced stage. Another goal is to find out whether photocoagulation is effective against leakage of fluid in the central part of the retina and the blurred vision that often results from this leakage. A third objective of the ETDRS is to determine whether aspirin may be useful in the treatment of diabetic retinopathy.

People with diabetes who are interested in participating in the ETDRS should contact their eye care specialist or the physician who is treating their diabetes for advice about entering the study. Doctors interested in referring patients to the study should contact the ETDRS clinic at the University of Minnesota for further information. The clinic's mailing address is Department of Ophthalmology, Box 493, Mayo Memorial Building, Minneapolis 55455, and the telephone number is (612) 373-4319.

Tips Offered By Community Legal Program

Legal tips included in a recent column written by the Community Legal Education program of central Minnesota may be helpful to persons applying for credit, victims of deceptive advertising and persons who participate in home solicitation sales. Included are the following.

Equal Credit Opportunity Act prohibits discrimination in the extension of credit because of sex, marital status, race, color, religion, national origin, age or the receipt of public assistance. In most instances, if you are applying for credit in your name the creditor may not ask whether you are married, divorced or separated. The creditor may not ask about your spouse unless some part of the income you report to the creditor comes from your spouse. A creditor may not deny credit only because you receive public assistance. He may however, consider factors which will affect your future eligilibility to keep receiving public assistance.

If a creditor denies your application for credit you have the right to request the specific reasons for that denial if you request those reasons within 60 days. The Act applies to decisions to terminate credit as well as decisions to grant credit.

If you have been illegally discriminated against in connection with the granting of credit you may be able to sue the creditor for damages, perhaps punitive damages and possible attorney fees. You may also report the discrimination to the regional office of the Federal Trade Commission.

You see an Ad in the paper: "Special Sale on New 21-inch color TVs: Only $295." So you go to the store only to discover that they don't have any of the special sale item — but they do have a bigger, supposedly more expensive one. The store is using a deceptive sales practice in an attempt to sell a more expensive model. This practice, known as "Bait and Switch," is illegal. It is also illegal to advertise items which are either unavailable or present only in very limited quantity.

A dissatisfied consumer should always first return to the store and give the seller an opportunity to correct the problem. If a call or visit to the store proves unsuccessful, follow up with a written complaint to the store manager and to the manufacturer of the product. Yoy may also contact the regional office of the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) which is responsible for investigating unfair selling practices.

Under Minnesota Law the seller in a home solicitation sale must inform the buyer of his or her right to cancel the contract. A solicitation sale can be either home or telephone solicitations, where the consumer purchases personal or household goods. The right to cancel applies only to the sale of personal or household goods costing more than a total of $25. If you contacted the salesman first and asked him to come to your house the right to cancel does not apply. Remember this if a salesman ever asks you for permission to come to your house. The right to cancel also does not apply to purchases made outside your home, such as at a department store.

You may cancel by mailing a written notice of cancellation to the seller postmarked by midnight of the third business day after the sale. The Notice must be properly addressed to the sellers address as disclosed on the contract. Within 10 days of the cancellation the seller must return any payments, return any trade-ins and cancel any evidence of debt. Within 20 days of the seller returning your money and trade-in you must offer to return the property you purchased upon the sellers demand. You can however ask the seller to pick the property up at your home. You may not make it unreasonably difficult for the seller to pick up the property. If the seller fails to come to your home and request the return of the property you may, in some cases, keep it.

And Behold...
It Was Very Good

Not long ago I was driving home along the parkway, depressed and worried by many problems. The day was bleak and gloomy. Huge clouds boiled and churned above dark, forbidding mountains. Even the foliage hung limp and still.

Suddenly the clouds parted and a ray of sun streaked through. In that fleeting moment the landscape became beautiful . . . grayness transformed into mauves, deep blues and lively greens. It was like watching Creation. For the first time in a long time, I thought of God. And I prayed as I had been taught long ago.

That was a turning point. Since then God and worship have once more become a part of my life and my problems have disappeared in a way I never dreamed possible.

God's goodness is always present. Go to your place of worship and learn the truths that can transform your life.
